

MILL REHIRING PROBE ORDERED BY U. S. BOARD

Labor Commission to Study Charges of Textile Head Here.

Robert H. Cowdrill, in charge of the national labor relations board's local office, today received instructions from Washington to investigate immediately the difficulties which have arisen here in the rehiring of participants in the United Textile Workers of America strike against the Indianapolis Bleaching Company, 900 West Wabash street.

The difficulties described in Washington as "serious" center around charges by Charles P. Drake, business agent for the U. T. W. A.'s Local No. 2069, that the plant is hiring new employees while some of the strike participants still are without work. Mr. Drake says also he has had nineteen complaints of discrimination against rehired strikers.

His charges were referred to the newly created textile labor board through Francis J. Gorman, national strike chairman, in Washington and it was at the suggestion of Dr. Benjamin Squires, textile board head, that the national labor relations board wired Mr. Cowdrill.

The latter expressed some surprise at his orders, since he had believed the case entirely in the hands of the textile board, and immediately wired Washington to determine how far his jurisdiction extended. He conferred this morning with Mr. Drake and was to see Mr. Young.

Mr. Cowdrill's attitude toward the union has been sympathetic and he, at one time, incurred the outspoken displeasure of Charles A. Young, plant manager, because of an unofficial opinion that Mr. Young would have to take back all strikers at once when the strike ended, even if this necessitated the discharge of strike breakers.

Under the final peace between the union and Mr. Young, the latter took back approximately 245 men at once and said he would absorb the balance as rapidly as possible, giving them preference in hiring.

It is in this latter that Mr. Drake charges the plant manager has failed to live up to his agreement.

POLICE PROBE CAUSE OF WOMAN'S INJURY

Victim in Hospital After All-Night Party.

Mrs. Esther Guyer, 27, of 815 North New Jersey, lies seriously injured in city hospital today while the police are pushing an investigation into the cause of her injuries.

A sister, Mrs. Edna Curtis, told police that Mrs. Guyer came into her room early this morning after an all night party and awakened her. Blood was streaming from an ugly gash on Mrs. Guyer's head and dust and gravel were streaked on the back of her coat.

After Mrs. Guyer was taken by her sister to the hospital, police questioned the injured woman who merely repeated the words, "Automobile, automobile."

Regarding the case as serious, Captain Otto Pettit believes that Mrs. Guyer may have been thrown from an automobile some time this morning. She had been drinking, police said Mrs. Curtis told them.

BAKER REFUSES TO PRESIDE IN TOWNSEND CASE

Special Judge to Be Picked From Three Selected by Cox.

Refusal of Criminal Judge Frank P. Baker to serve as special judge brought a delay today in circuit court on a suit questioning the eligibility of Lieutenant-Governor M. Clifford Townsend to hold the office.

Judge Baker refused because he is a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket. Plaintiff in the suit is Don B. Irwin, Republican state chairman.

When Judge Baker refused to serve, Circuit Judge Earl R. Cox submitted the names of Milton Holton, Henry Seiffert and Municipal Judge Dan V. White, from whom a special judge will be chosen.

The Irwin suit contends Mr. Townsend has vacated the Lieutenant-Governorship because he has been named state agriculture commissioner. The Republican state convention nominated Joseph B. Kyle, Gary, for the post.

Judge Cox disqualifies himself because he previously had made a ruling in an identical case filed by a Marion county taxpayer.

The circuit judge announced he also would disqualify himself in a suit filed in his court by State Senators E. Curtis White, Marion county, and John Bright Webb, Johnson and Marion counties, to enjoin election commissioners from replacing them on the ballot.

Both Senators White and Webb are holdover senators.

The Republican county committee, by petition, is attempting to replace Senators White and Webb with Ralph Kane and Will H. Adams, respectively, contending the two holdovers have vacated their legislative offices by accepting places on the state agriculture board.

WEST TENTH LINE EXTENSION ORDERED

Residents Win Verdict Over Service Commission.

West side residents won a victory from the public service commission yesterday when Indianapolis Railways, Inc., was ordered to extend its West Tenth street trolley bus line from Tibbs avenue to the city limits.

Evidence before the commission showed that patrons in the community are required to walk five to eight blocks along West Tenth street, on which there are no sidewalks. The transportation company was given until Dec. 1 to extend service.

The commission also authorized the company to substitute a motor bus for trolley service on the Mars Hill line. The new service will be hourly at 10 cents a ride.
