

LINDBERGH TO TESTIFY TODAY IN DEATH TRIAL

Flier to Identify Hauptmann as Ransom Taker, Is Report.

adjournment Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife, Ann Morrow Lindbergh, will have told their stories to the jury.

Col. Lindbergh's testimony will be one of the highlights of the trial. Then, according to a part of the state's evidence which it permitted to get out previously, he will identify the taciturn German carpenter as the man he saw in the shadows the night the ransom was paid who called out to Dr. Condon: "This way, doctor—this way!"

After Col. Lindbergh finishes his story, Mrs. Lindbergh, then the nurse, Miss Gow, will testify. They will substantiate his description of events in the Hopewell home that March night.

Col. Lindbergh, still of boyish appearance, always hatless, but always intense, has been for the last 24 hours, from the moment he entered the courtroom escorted by two state troopers, one of the most interested figures in the jammed Courthouse.

He seems to have—and this is pronounced—a decided penchant for studying the prisoner, who comes into court, his head down, his eyes downcast, and who never looks to the right or left. There have been times when Col. Lindbergh, standing towering above Hauptmann, within six feet of him, has appeared to be boring through his skull with his intense eyes.

150 May Testify

After the Lindberghs and their nurse maid will follow a long succession of witnesses, perhaps 150 in all, who will attempt to show that it was Bruno Hauptmann, the "man with the flat cheeks and pointed chin" who abducted the sleeping child, killed him, and collected $50,000 for the return of a baby he knew never could return.

A deputy sheriff brought Hauptmann in and state troopers sat on either side of him behind the defense lawyers' table. Hauptmann was wearing the same gray-brown suit he had on yesterday, brown shoes and a dark necktie. He was not handcuffed today.

Col. Lindbergh brought a stack of legal documents to court and studied them. His hair was rumpled and he smiled faintly. Once he looked over at Hauptmann sitting seven feet away, and the line of his lips tightened.

Mrs. Hauptmann, wearing a black hat with a veil that drops to her nose and a black coat, sat against the rear wall.

Defense attorneys passed an envelope to Hauptmann and he studied a letter written on a letterhead that read:

"Success—scientific sales psychology." On the letter Hauptmann was reading was a pencil-drawn sketch that looked like a crude map of the Sourland mountain house from which the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

Anne Lindbergh Enters
The court bustled with excitement as Mrs. Anne Morrow Lindbergh, a slender figure in black, entered the courtroom a half hour after the session began. She was escorted to a seat close by the one occupied by Mrs. Hauptmann. It was Mrs. Lindbergh's first appearance in court.

The jury was completed 25 hours after the trial opened, and after less than five hours of actual court procedure.

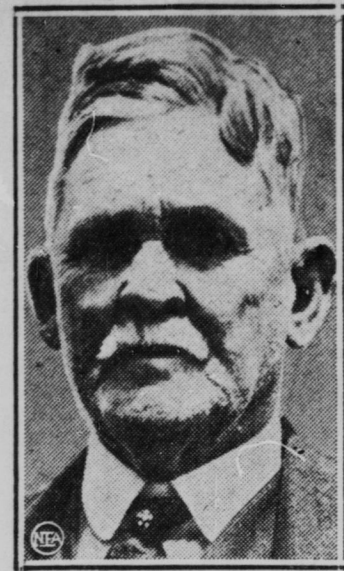

As additional deputies were sworn in to guard the jury, Hauptmann turned and gazed at them. His face was impassive—not a muscle of it moved—as he looked at the men and women who hold his life in their hands.

His gaze was direct, and he did not again face the bench until the five-minute recess was ordered.

Wilentz Begins Opening
Atty. Gen. David T. Wilentz, then began the opening statement for the state.

"A jury of this county," he said, "has returned an indictment charging

BOARD STUDIES MILLION-DOLLAR WORK PROJECTS

Needed Street, Bridge and Sewer Repairs Listed by Engineer.

A list of possible improvements to the streets, bridges and sewers of Indianapolis was submitted to the Works Board by its first meeting yesterday by A. H. Moore, City Engineer.

Mr. Moore made it plain that he was not recommending immediate action on these improvements, but was merely presenting them for consideration.

The total cost of the improvements, according to estimates made by the City Engineering Department would run between $1,000,000 and $1,300,000.

Many of the city's bridges are in a bad state of repair and either should be replaced by new structures or restored to good condition, Mr. Moore said.

Most important of the suggested new bridges would be one replacing the present structure over Fall Creek at Indiana-av. The cost of a new concrete bridge would be about $270,000, including the cost of land damage and right of way. It is possible, Mr. Moore said, that this bridge might be built by the State Highway Commission with funds from a Federal grant.

Bridge Repairs Needed

Repairs should be made on the New York-st bridge over White River, Mr. Moore's report said. This bridge was improperly designed and must be barricaded in time of floods. The necessary repairs would cost about $70,000, an expenditure previous administrations have been unable to make.

A new bridge is needed for Shelby-st over Pleasant River and the present Sherman-dr bridge over the same stream, which was repaired only recently, should be replaced with a new structure, the report stated.

Extensive repairs or new bridges are needed at Vermont-st and Pogue's Run and at 9th-st and the canal. Both these bridges are now closed to traffic.

Street Repair Recommended

Street improvements which may be made under the new administration include the widening and resurfacing of Alabama-st from Fl. Wayne-av to 11th-st; 30th-st from Pennsylvania-st to Fall Creek-blvd; Illinois-st from 34th-st to 38th-st; 21st-st; Rural-st from 10th-st to 25th-st; Ritter-av from Washington-st to Brookville-rd; 49th-st from the Monon Railroad to Keystone-av; 10th-st from Dearborn-st to Olney-st; Madison-av from Ray-st to the Pennsylvania Railroad; Union-st from Madison-av to McCarty-st, and from Palmer-st to Adler-st; Kentucky-av from White River to Harding-st; Morris-st from Kentucky-av to Belmont-st; and Michigan-st from Blake-st to White River.

Widening is contemplated on 34th-st from Meridian-st to Cen-

BURGLAR LOOTS HOUSE

Gets $17, Keys, Bank Book, While Family Eats in Kitchen.

While Margaret Hawley and her family were eating in the kitchen of their home at 3017 N. New Jersey-st, last night, a burglar entered the dining room by way of an unlocked front door and stole a purse containing $17, keys and a bank book.

Adler-st and on Noble-st from Washington-st to Massachusetts-av.

Among the thoroughfares which may be resurfaced are Stadium-dr from Indiana-av to Montcalm-st; Indiana-av from Illinois-st to West-st; College-av from 30th-st to 38th-st; Emerson-av from Washington-st to 10th-st, and South-st from Alabama-st to Senate-av.

Adler-st may be permanently improved from Union-st to Meridian-st.

Mr. Moore's report also stated that some project ought to be begun to take care of the 2800 Federal Emergency Relief Administration workers now employed on flood prevention work at Warfield and near City Hospital.

Since these projects will be completed in the early spring, it was suggested that work for these men might be created removing dirt from the channel of White River near Kentucky-av for filling in the site of the City Yard on S. West-st.

The possibility of resurfacing a number of streets now paved with wood blocks also was mentioned in the report and instances were cited of several city sewers which are in need of repair.

BEER LAW LEGALITY DECISION IS READY

Federal Court to Pass on Constitutionality of Importer Provision.

An opinion expected to determine the constitutionality of the beer importation provisions of the Indiana liquor control act will be handed down at 10 tomorrow in Federal Court.

The suit, in which three out-of-state breweries seek to restrain officials from enforcing the beer provisions, was heard in November. It was tried before Federal Judges Louis FitzHenry Circuit Court of Appeals, Thomas W. Slick and Robert C. Baltzell.

The plaintiffs are the Premier-Pabst Sales Co., Joseph Schlitz Brewery and Anheuser-Busch Brewery.

of petition in the House has been modified almost to extinction.

The rule which permitted 145 representatives to force a vote on any legislation has been abandoned. Henceforth 278 signatures will be required. House leaders are confident that will enable them to keep their chamber in line with White House policies.

The change in rules will not prevent a vote on immediate payment of war veterans' compensation certificates but Mr. Roosevelt is expected to veto that bill if it reaches him.

A review of recovery accomplishments and a general statement of objectives this year will make up the message Mr. Roosevelt will deliver tomorrow. His specific recommendations for legislation will be sent to Congress from time to time in special messages dealing with individual bills.

The political lineup of the 74th Congress is:

Senate—69 Democrats, 25 Republicans, 1 Farmer-Labor, 1 Progressive.

House—322 Democrats, 102 Republicans, 3 Farmer-Labor, 7 Progressives, 1 vacancy.

Byrns Urges Liberalism

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3.—Joseph T. Byrns (D., Tenn.) Speaker of the House, in his speech of acceptance today characterized the spirit of the times as progressive and urged his colleagues to move forward with that spirit.

Mr. Byrns expressed hope for a session with a minimum of bitterness and pledged himself to preserve the prestige of the House and lead toward true representation of the wishes of the nation.

"We live in a progressive age. Time does not march backward. We must march forward with time. We have done so in the last few years. We must continue to do so if our country is to maintain its present proud place."

"There doubtless will be times when some of us disagree as to the path which I feel safe, though, that finally we shall all head in the same direction and do so willingly without bitterness or recriminations. Mr. Byrns predicted party harmony during the session."
