

DEMAND UNION PAY SCALE IN WORK RELIEF

House Progressive, Labor
Heads Fight to Change
New Deal Plan.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—A coalition of progressive House Democrats and Republicans today challenged the Administration's plan to pay 3,500,000 jobs $50 a month and fought to write a "prevailing union wage" requirement into the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill.

The proposed amendment endangered the President's entire new relief program, which is based on a "security wage" below that of private industry.

Despite an organized labor drive, Republican leader Bertrand Snell agreed with Speaker Joseph W. Byrns the bill would go through intact today. Mr. Snell added however "if the Democrats would vote according to their convictions the bill would be beaten two to one."

Chairman William P. Connery of the House Labor Committee and Rep. Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), worked for the "prevailing wage" amendment, along the line of that carried in the NIRA as a construction contract requirement. Mr. Dirksen termed the proposed $50 average wage revealed by Rear Admiral C. J. Peoples, as a "starvation wage."

Mr. Connery said it would make "scabs" of the 3,500,000. President William Green of the American Federation of Labor said his organization would "insist the bill provide for wage schedules equal to the prevailing rates of local communities for the various classes of relief work." He contended that to do otherwise would "lead to a break-down of wage standards in private industry."
