

33 BODIES OF OCEAN TRAGEDY VICTIMS FOUND

13 Others Still Missing Are Believed Dead; Probe Opens Today.

early today. The Icarus, the cutter Champlain and small coast guard surfboats will search for the bodies of those still missing.

Half of the rescued of the Mohawk's passengers and crew—the fortunate ones who came out of the disaster alive numbered 117—remained in hospitals, recovering from the shock of immersion into an icy sea or from hours in open lifeboats in near-zero temperature.

Scenes at the Bellevue morgue repeated in pathos scenes at the improvised morgues in Asbury Park, N. J., in September following the burning of the Ward liner Morro Castle in which 124 lives were lost. In that disaster, passengers accused the crew of rank cowardice.

Passengers of the Mohawk had nothing but praise for her crew. Apparently even less of the instinct for self preservation that could be expected, was present. Capt. Wood was described as a lone, gallant figure on the Mohawk's bridge when her stern turned up, her bronze propeller glittering in moonlight, as she plunged to the bottom.

Socialite Among Dead

Identified dead included Mrs. Julian Peabody, prominent New York City socialite. She was Clementine E. Hitchcock before her marriage to Julian Peabody, architect. Her brother is Tommy Hitchcock, the polo player. Her husband also was lost.

Another was Professor Herman Fitzgerald Cleland of Williams College. He was taking six Williams seniors to Yucatan for a geological survey. Four students were rescued. Two, Julius Palmer and Lloyd Crowfoot, are dead.

Also among the identified dead was John Teller, British vice consul at Orizaba, Mexico. His wife was lost, but their two children and his mother were saved.

Another was the Rev. Francis Frost, rector of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, West New Brighton, Staten Island.

The Ward line issued no statement and one of its attorneys applied modified censorship to members of the Mohawk's crew. It was their duty, the lawyer said, to tell their stories first to official investigators.

Boat Ploughed Into Side

The Mohawk sailed from her Manhattan pier an hour before the Diesel motored Talisman left her Brooklyn pier. The Mohawk stopped outside the harbor, however, to calibrate her radio compass. While she was hove to, the Talisman passed her.

Then, preceding smartly at 16 knots, the $2,000,000 10-year-old liner, passed the Talisman. Suddenly her steering gear "went haywire." Capt. Wood tooted one sharp blast on his whistle to warn the Talisman to veer off. Instead, the Talisman came straight ahead and her bow plunged into the Mohawk's side between her bridge and forecastle peak.

Capt. Wood ordered passengers to boats. Just as the last boat got off, the ship plunged. But not all passengers or crew got off. Survivors in lifeboats saw passengers and crew leaping into the icy sea before the liner sank. Several seamen, it was believed, were killed in their berths, when the Talisman's prow plunged into the forecastle.

FAMED MUSICIANS, FATHER AND SON, VISIT CITY

A musically famous father and son paid a brief visit to Indianapolis late yesterday afternoon, changing trains on a Midwestern trip, staying just long enough to have their pictures taken and to air, informally, their views on music.

The father is Jan Kubelik, Czechoslovakian violinist, who is making his first American tour in 13 years. The son is Raffael Kubelik, just 20 who will appear with the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra Friday, Feb. 15, as guest conductor.

The son's appearance with the Cincinnati organization at such an early age is considered a signal honor in musical circles.

The 55-year-old father, who has been decorated by European governments, and in whose lapel gleams the red ribbon of the French Legion of Honor, was emphatic in his belief that there is an increasing demand for classical music all over the world.

"But, people will only stand for the best," he added.

"Something new is bound to evolve from the type of thing that Stravinsky and Ravel are doing," he said of trends in modern music.

Raffael Kubelik does not speak English with the ease of his father. He does speak enough, though, to make plain the fact that, although a talented pianist, violinist, composer and conductor, he enjoys most conducting.

MERIT CLAUSE IN POLICE BILL IRKS GOVERNOR

Measure Calls for Hearing Before Director Can Be Discharged.

BY JAMES DOSS
Times Staff Writer

The model Indiana State Police bill today was reported to have incurred the disapproval of either Gov. Paul V. McNutt or some of his advisers because of the provision providing for removal of the safety director only after a public hearing.

The bill, expected to be one of the General Assembly's chief contributions to the state's war against crime, has been written by Senator Henry F. Schriker (D., Knox), the Democratic caucus chairman.

In the opinion of Senator Schriker and other members of both the House and Senate, the measure would provide Indiana with one of the most modern safety departments in the United States.

The provision to which some administration leaders are reported objecting is regarded as one of the most important in the bill because it embodies the principle of selection on a merit basis and removal only through civil service procedure.

Responsibility Is Fixed

The Schriker bill, as tentatively drawn, would place complete control of the safety department in the hands of the director, who in turn would be responsible only to the Governor. Al G. Feeney is the present safety director in charge of police work, bus inspection and the state fire marshal's office.

A counter proposal is being considered, it is reported, whereby a state police board of three or five members would be set up over the director.

Many legislators object to such a board, pointing out that it would lead to "buck passing" and would not fix responsibility directly. Some legislators are so insistent on going all the way in the bill with the merit system idea that if the administration approves the bill as drawn, there will be attempts on the floor of either house to amend it.

Gives Governor Power

The administration is reported ready to approve the remainder of the bill, but will not pass along an O. K. until removal of the public hearing provision.

Removal of that provision would permit the Governor to dismiss the safety department head without cause and proper hearing.

The state budget committee has approved an increase of the safety department budget to $975,000 for the biennium.

This increase will permit nearly doubling the force, maintenance of barracks and a state radio system, establishment of a police training school and improvement in crime detection facilities.

SENATORS 'PAIR OFF,' WILL SHUN ELECTION IN SECOND DISTRICT

The coming special election in the Second Congressional District has been a source of worry to Senators I. Floyd Garret (R., Battleground) and Henry F. Schriker (D., Knox).

The Senators are far from home and the election comes next Tuesday—right in the middle of what promises to be a heavy week in the Assembly.

So, like the husband and wife of different political leanings, they have "paired off" by an agreement to cancel each other's vote by staying in Indianapolis.

STATE PLEDGES TO RIP BRUNO'S ALIBIS TO BITS

Hauptmann to Face Bitter Cross-Examination by Wilentz.

next week. He has pulled every trick out of the bag, including his usual plea that the prisoner was "severely beaten by police," and knew not what he was saying or writing while he was being questioned by New York police.

He has also used the traditional Reilly method, effective in hundreds of instances, of "charging everybody else in the world with the crime, including some of the principals." What effect this will have on a country jury which has looked upon the drama with the same objective consideration as a group of theatrical critics, remains to be seen.

There was a deep question about witnesses for the defense today. There was a time when Mr. Reilly announced with confidence that he would have "at least a hundred persons who would prove that Hauptmann was never near Hope-well."

The number dwindled to 75 last week, and was cut still further, to 50, after Bruno Hauptmann began his defense. Today he said he might have 30, but he wasn't sure how he would get the money to pay for them.

"We hope to present them to the court," his associate, C. Lloyd Fisher, said, "but the defense has no money. We can't subpoena people in New York. We are just trying to persuade them come forward in the interest of justice."

There were yellow pieces of paper in a row of seats near the defense table today, all of them labeled "witness."

There were those who wondered—Mr. Reilly would not tell—whether these seats are not peopled by a lot of ghosts, who will never materialize before the eyes of the jury.

We of Seagram recognize: A SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Recently we printed an advertisement.

An advertisement that aroused attention.

It was entitled—

"We who make whiskey say: Drink Moderately."

Of the hundreds of letters we received—most of them commendatory—a few questioned the sincerity of that statement as opposing self-interest.

It is not against our self-interest to counsel moderation. It would be folly to do otherwise.

A Social Responsibility

Our statement—"Drink Moderately," was first prompted by what we sincerely regard as a social responsibility to the public, for our interest and the public interest are inseparably bound together.

This community of interest can best be served by a mutual observance of national, state and local laws, and by regarding whiskey as a luxury of life, the true enjoyment of which lies in moderation.

In the words of Lincoln: "The difficulty lies not so much in the use of a bad thing, as in the abuse of a very good thing."

Firmly we repeat, whiskey cannot take the place of bread and milk and meat—and we do not want a cent of any man's dollar that should be spent for the necessities of life.

Our Self-Interest

We have a motive of self-interest in the protection of the future of our business, our several thousand stockholders, our employees.

With three-quarters of a century of tradition behind it, Seagram, a year ago began building an American institution composed of distilleries, warehouses, distributing facilities and people.

As part of a reborn industry our business has become a part of the permanent, underlying industrial structure of America. Let us look at the facts.

We Open Our Books

In the past six months during which Seagram has been in full operation in America, we have paid to the U. S. Government in taxes on distilled spirits over fifteen million dollars.

To the various states, in this period, taxes on Seagram products brought over three million dollars.

New Jobs

The great boon of industry to man is work. The great need of America today is greater employment. What have these six months meant in jobs and payrolls?

Over $1,250,000 in payrolls was paid to 2,934 persons employed in Seagram's American plants and branches. In the plants of Seagram's American suppliers, many times this number of jobs were created.

From American farmers, we bought in these few months over a million and a quarter bushels of grain.

Other Industry Benefits

In practically every section of the country, industry after industry has benefited. Wholly aside from Seagram's continuing construction expenditure, here is what these six months have meant to American manufacturers and workers in just a few other industries.

Freight moved in and out of Seagram American distilleries, warehouses, and distributing points over American railroads, has been over 4,000 carloads.

Purchases from American glass plants amounted to well over three-quarters of a million dollars.

For just one month's supply of cartons, over 30 carloads of flat sheets were shipped from an American paper mill.

During this period Seagram purchased from American manufacturers over eighty thousand barrels.

Thirteen tons of tin, seventeen tons of cork and ninety-one tons of aluminum were required in the production of bottle caps.

The Public's Interest—Our Interest

We hold to the view that we can best serve our interest by serving the public interest. Moderation protects the continued enjoyment of personal liberty. It best assures the continuance of an American industry and the returns it gives to Government, agriculture, industry and labor.

In the spirit of our social responsibility we again submit the cardinal principles of enlightened and mutual interest—LAW OBSERVANCE, MODERATION.
