

MEXICO LAYS CHURCH BAN TO CLERGY'S ACTS

Fomented Rebellion, Officials Say; Bishops stoutly Deny Charge.

(This is the second of four dispatches explaining the status of the religious controversy in Mexico. The third will be carried tomorrow.)

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 29.—The Mexican government charged the Catholic clergy with responsibility for acts of violence that preceded the tightening of anti-religious laws and resulted in the present situation of the church in Mexico.

The clergy denied responsibility but protested that all Catholics were within their rights in defending their citizenship and its privileges.

The Catholic church claimed the numerous demonstrations and protests against the government's policies could be classified as such defense.

Anti-government demonstrations took various forms. University and preparatory school students were loudest in protest against the Socialistic program of education.

At the National University, oldest university on the western hemisphere and a century older than Harvard, the entire student body struck, demanding that the government abandon its educational plan. The same action was taken at the University of the North in Monterrey, where rioting resulted in the injury of several.

Woman Student Killed
The University of Guadalajara presented an even more violent picture as authorities broke up a student strike there and imprisoned scores of students in the local penitentiary. Preparatory and secondary school students in Mexico City followed the example of university boys and also started protest strikes. For several days the capital was without schools.

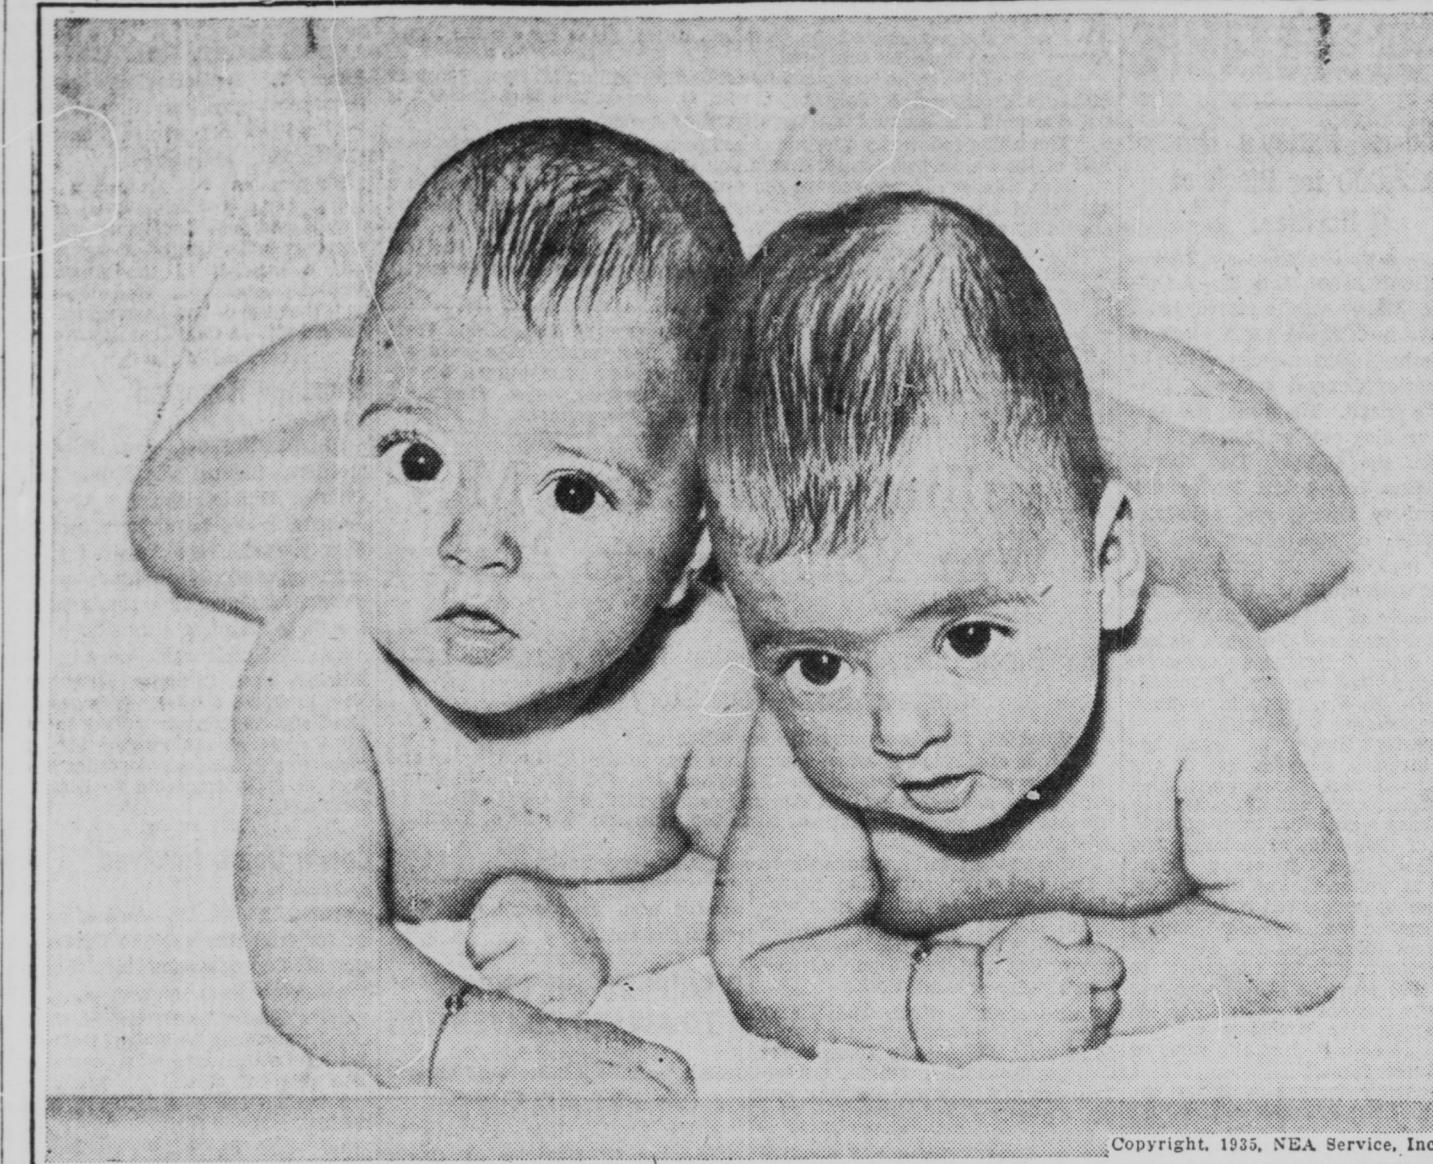

Other sections were going through the same experiences. A woman met death during rioting accompanying a normal school strike.

Sonora, under Gov. Rodolfo Elias Calles, oldest son of Plutarco Elias Calles, was the first state to act. Suddenly Gov. Calles charged the priests of his state with fomenting rebellion, closed the churches and ordered all priests to leave the state. Within 48 hours most of them had crossed the international border at Nogales, Ariz.

Archbishops in Exile
In general the church has submitted to the laws while protesting against their alleged injustice. A few priests have been arrested and fined for holding services in unauthorized places. At least one has been jailed for distributing what the government called subversive literature. Two archbishops, now in exile in the United States, have been indicted on charges of fomenting rebellion.

The two accused archbishops are the Apostolic Delegate Ruiz y Flores and Archbishop Manrique y Zarate of Huajuca. They were indicted after then President Abelardo L. Rodriguez sent documentary evidence to Atty. Gen. Portes Gil reported to prove their connection with rebellious movements.

The evidence was said to consist largely of letters exchanged with prelates in Mexico. Immigration and custom agents along the border have been ordered to arrest them should they attempt to re-enter Mexico.

Slot Machine Measure Is Killed in Committee

House's Public Morals Unit

Shunts Anti-Gaming

Law to Side.

Mr. Feeney said he was not surprised at the committee action.

"Of course," said Mr. Feeney, "this bill, which would have taken care of the situation in Indiana, would be opposed by every one having anything to do with gambling. A similar measure cleared up the racket in New York state and could do so here."

Rep. William J. Black, (D., Anderson) seemed to express the opinion that most of the provisions of this measure were covered by existing statutes.

Ignoring the fact that in the past, several state courts have failed to convict persons possessing or operating slot machines, the committee without debate moved to report the bill back to the House with the recommendation that it be indefinitely postponed.

Rep. Morris H. Coers (D., Indianapolis) seemed to be in accord with Rep. Black's statements, and he went on to say "we have too many laws now."

It was pointed out that penalties provided for by this measure would have been much greater than can now be given under the law on gambling devices.

The committee returned a favorable report on H. B. 206, which would provide that all school buses be equipped with safety glass and have steel bodies.

FULL CREW ACT IS BACKED AT HEARING

Railroad Representative to Present Data.

Proponents of a Senate measure designed to promote safety of passengers and employees on trains by adoption of a full crew act, presented their case last night before the Senate Railroads Committee.

W. J. Behmer, railroad company representative, asked for an extension until tomorrow night to prepare figures.

Speakers included Alex Gordon, chairman of the legislative committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen; Martin H. Miller, representing the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen; E. L. Kinney, representing the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors; Adolph J. Fritz and Senator E. Curtis White (D., Indianapolis).

EMERGENCY EDUCATION AIMS ARE OUTLINED

Teaching of 43,000 illiterates in Indiana Is Goal.

The principal aim of the Indiana emergency education division of the Governor's Unemployment Relief Commission is to educate 43,000 illiterates in Indiana so that they will be able to read newspapers and write intelligently, W. F. Bacon, literary superintendent of the division, said yesterday at a division meeting.

Quentin Hartke, recreation committee member, urged that persons be taught the profitable use of leisure time through interest in athletics, music, sewing, dramatics and other hobbies.

More than 7000 adults are enrolled in state emergency schools, according to William A. Myers, general education supervisor for the commission.

MOHAWK DISASTER TO SPEED LAW REVISION

Congressional Leaders Prepare to Push New Sea Code.

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—Congressional leaders in maritime legislation, spurred by the Mohawk disaster, prepared today to speed revision of obsolete sea safety laws.

Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.), said today he would ask the Senate this week to create a special committee to investigate the whole subject and suggest legislation. Rep. William I. Sirovich (D., N. Y.), plans to introduce a joint resolution setting up an investigating committee representing both Senate and House, "to put a stop to these disasters once and for all."

Given Emblem.

An emblem signifying 30 years' service has been presented J. W. Hannon, 4456 Washington-blvd., general superintendent of the Indiana Bell Telephone Co., by F. A. Montrose, vice president and general manager.

Mr. Hannon was appointed district wire chief at South Bend when the Indiana Bell Telephone Co. was organized in 1920, and was made plant supervisor in 1921. In 1923 he was made Indianapolis division plant superintendent and in 1925 was made general superintendent.

FINGERPRINT WORK IS EXPLAINED BY EXPERT

City Bertillon Head Speaks at I. U.

Club Luncheon.

The uses of fingerprints in fighting crime were discussed yesterday by Lieut. Albert G. Perrott, head of the Bertillon Bureau of the Indianapolis Police Department, at the Indiana University Club luncheon at the Washington.

Lieut. Perrott said that, once a criminal had been arrested and his fingerprints taken, he could never conceal his identity no matter what attempts he made to obliterate the tissues on the finger tips.

PUT FORTH 38 WAYS TO CURB HOLDING FIRMS

Federal Trade Commission Continues Its Drive on 'Greedy' Financing.

By Scripps-Howard Newspaper Alliance

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29.—The Federal Trade Commission today suggested to Congress 38 ways to control utility holding companies.

Its suggestions, designed to make the "greedy" financing of the last decade unprofitable, fell into four general fields: (1) taxation, (2) direct statutory inhibition of undesirable service contracts, (3) a compulsory Federal licensing act, and (4) a permissive Federal incorporation act.

The widespread belief that the Roosevelt Administration would seek eventual elimination of all utilities concerns other than operating companies was encouraged by the commission's suggestions. The six suggested methods of taxation, all based on sharply graduated income levies, were designed to make service contracts, writeups and capitalization of intangible values unprofitable.

They included sharply graduated taxes on gross income, unissued stocks, net income and income derived from intercompany contracts.

In the field of inhibitory legislation, the commission suggested that interstate transmission of gas and electricity be restricted to operating companies charging rates based on prudent investment, and that the sale of stocks or bonds in interstate commerce be prohibited unless they present and equivalent of physical property.

For the protection of stock purchasers, the commission suggested that holding company executives be prohibited from speculating or dealing in the stocks of affiliated concerns, that they be prohibited from declaring dividends except those represented by actual earnings, and that all stock issues—common or preferred—have full voting power in company affairs. Voting trusts would be made illegal.

The evils of the holding company system, the commission said, fall into two general groups:

1. Unsound and needless financial structures which frequently are a detriment to both investor and consumer.

2. The "milking" of operating companies through financing, service charges and service contracts. Investigations, the commission said, showed that in many instances the holding companies received from 50 to 300 per cent profit on their service charges to operating companies.

Arias Court to Meet

How to Guard against the FLU

Every Times reader is urged to heed these precautions

The flu epidemic has reached this community. The health authorities are doing their part, but every individual must be on guard.

Keep your medicine chest supplied with the sensible aids to health; any sickness weakens the system and lowers your resistance to germs.

Every household should have at least one hot water bag, in good condition, or an electric pad; and a fever thermometer. Sleep in airy rooms, with ample covering. Avoid an overheated house during the day; dress warmly when you go out. Beware of overcrowded cars, poorly ventilated public meeting places, stuffy telephone booths. Flu is contagious! Breathe through the nose. Keep the bowels in good order; Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is a good laxative and an excellent antacid, too. If you have any symptom of a cold, take Bayer Aspirin according to directions. A common cold is especially dangerous at a time like this, because it lowers your resistance.

Eat plain foods, get enough rest, and don't over-do. Take these extra precautions to keep in sound physical condition, so your system will have its normal resistance against germs.

At any sign of actual flu, call a doctor at once. Do not try to treat yourself for influenza!
