

BEECH GROVE PROGRESSIVES NAME TICKET

Party's Mayoral Candidate Is Charles Adams, Now Town Treasurer.

Charles Adams, present town treasurer, will carry the banner of the Progressive party in Beech Grove's first mayoral race on Nov. 5. The Progressive party, which has not lost an election in Beech Grove for 10 years, nominated Mr. Adams by a unanimous vote in a party convention held yesterday in the town hall. William Gearhart, present town clerk, was nominated as a candidate for clerk-treasurer.

Nominations for the City Council are Chester Smith, First district; Noble Stogdill, Second district; Arthur Hendricks, Third district; and Herman Kumpart from the new Fourth district.

The nominations were made without opposition after party leaders held a caucus, and prepared a slate Tuesday. Lewis Marine, who is scheduled to receive the appointment as city attorney, gave the convention address.

The party went on record as favoring rigid governmental economy, and leaders said all improvements calling for large expenditures of money will be withheld until they are requested by referendum.

Projects calling for street improvements and repair expansion of the sewage disposal system are under consideration in Beech Grove, but the Progressives intend to hold these up.

The party members estimate that the city would have to buy $3000 worth of materials to improve the streets and spend $2000 on the sewage disposal plant. This would result in a 24-cent increase in the municipal tax rate, they say.

The party pledged itself to enforce the state liquor law and to keep city schools free of partisan influences.

Meet the Busiest Housekeeper in Town

Methodist Hospital Official Checks Thousands of Linen Pieces Daily and, Aided by 67 Employees, Keeps Giant Institution in Order.

Operation and maintenance of the average household is considered a full-time job by most housewives. But there is one woman in Indianapolis to whom it probably would be child's play.

She is Mrs. Jessie George, executive housekeeper of Methodist Hospital, under whose watchful eyes 67 employees are busy each day maintaining the housekeeping routine.

Each day Mrs. George, who works under the supervision of Mrs. Carrie H. Lloyd, chief registrar, passes out the linen used in the hospital. Her daily list calls for 1000 face towels; 300 bath towels; 1000 sheets; 650 pillow cases; 300 spreads; 400 gowns; 400 washcloths; 400 size table covers and 200 dresser scarfs.

Each week she makes an inspection of the hospital's supply closets before assigning supplies. The hospital uses weekly 135 gallons of liquid soap, 150 cakes of soap, 250 pounds of scrubbing powder, 8700 paper towels and 350 pounds of sweeping compound.

All linens are mended in the sewing room, and when sheets are too worn to be used on hospital beds, they are made into tray covers and small treatment sheets. Even the hems are utilized for cloths in the engine room.

Upper Left—The average household has one mending day each week. But Mrs. Nina Trapp, who works under the supervision of Mrs. Edith Nautert in the Methodist Hospital mending room, is kept busy every day.

Upper Right—Mrs. Jessie George, executive housekeeper, approves the bed-making of Mrs. Bertha Williams, one of the 32 maids at the hospital. Training in room care is given the maids in classes directed by a representative of the nurses' home.

Lower Right—Checking a household laundry list would seem a simple matter to Mrs. Florence Hawkins, who has charge of the hospital linen room. Daily she accounts for thousands of pieces of hospital linen.

U. S. WAR MOTHERS LAUD LUDLOW BILL

Convention Delegates Adopt Favorable Resolution.

(Reprinted From Late Times Yesterday)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Three hundred delegates to the American War Mothers convention are on record today as unanimously approving the Ludlow plan for a Constitutional amendment for a referendum on war and elimination of war profits.

The resolution was adopted at the closing session and reads in part: "We have a full realization of the horrors and anguish of war and pray that no future generation of mothers will know such anguish as has been ours. So, therefore, we resolve in favor of passage of the Ludlow bill to prevent future wars."

Pleas for War support. Rep. Louis Ludlow today said that he intends to push his plan more vigorously when Congress convenes in January.

CITY MAN IS NAMED CAPTAIN OF INFANTRY

Fred C. Dyer, World War Hero, Is Promoted by U. S.

Fred C. Dyer, 3246 Guilford, has been named a captain in the One hundred fifty-second infantry, according to announcement today from the War Department.

Capt. Dyer joined the National Guard as a private in 1917, and was awarded the decoration of the Purple Heart for wounds received in action during the World War. He was transferred to the One hundred fifty-second infantry in 1930.

War Finally Declared

But the arrangement had not been official, and the Non-Inter-course Act went back into effect against both belligerents, who continued to violate American rights.

The act was superseded by Madison's Bill No. 2 of May 1, 1810, which restored commerce with the whole world, but allowed President Madison to cut it off at his discretion, with either France or England, in case the other respected America's neutrality.

Napoleon promised to rescind his decrees against American shipping, and even though he was found to be only partly sincere, the 1810 law was brought into play against England. A new act of March 2, 1811, again forbade American entry to British goods, and the United States drifted into the War of 1812.

Embargo Act Passed

President Jefferson determined upon peace at any price, and resisted the British and French encroachments by non-military measures. In April, 1806, Congress passed the Non-Importation Act, which forbade entry to certain specified British goods. This proving ineffective, and the Federalists protesting that the Administration was actuated by sympathy with France, the Embargo Act of December, 1807, was enacted.

It forbade all American ships to engage in any foreign trade. As with prohibition in the twentieth century, the rewards of bootlegging were high enough to cause considerable violation of the law.

'HAIR TONIC BANDITS' FLEE STATE PRISON

Police Hunt Local Thugs After Farm Escape.

Local police today were searching for Donald Joseph, 27, and Paul Pierce, 25, the "hair tonic bandits," who escaped from the Indiana State Prison yesterday afternoon.

The local thugs, convicted of the $700 robbery five years ago of the Freihofer Baking Co. and Frank Reside, Gary, walked away from the prison farm and are still at large.

The Indianapolis convicts were named the "hair tonic bandits," because of a strong odor of hair tonic noticed by their victims.
