

THE TINYTIMES

The pumpkin pie the Tinies ate left them in quite a happy state. Just show me how it works. I'll learn as quickly as I can."

"I guess we've eaten all we can. The rest must be left in the pan. We never before have tackled tarts of such a size."

"If you ask me, you did real well. It should have made your tummies swell," replied the kindly farmer. "Now a new treat is right near."

"I'll ask you all to follow me and very shortly you will see a tiny little railroad train, without an engine."

"Of course the train is very small, but I am sure 'twill hold you all. I've seen wee tots in it before. 'Twas merely made for play."

Then Scouty cried, "I'll gladly be the engineer. Leave it to me. Just show me how it works. I'll learn as quickly as I can."

"Okay," replied the farmer. "You will soon know just what you should do." And then he led the way, and after him the Tinies ran.

The little train was very cute. "Oh, we will make it toot, toot, toot," said Goldy, as she climbed aboard. "Come on, let's start away."

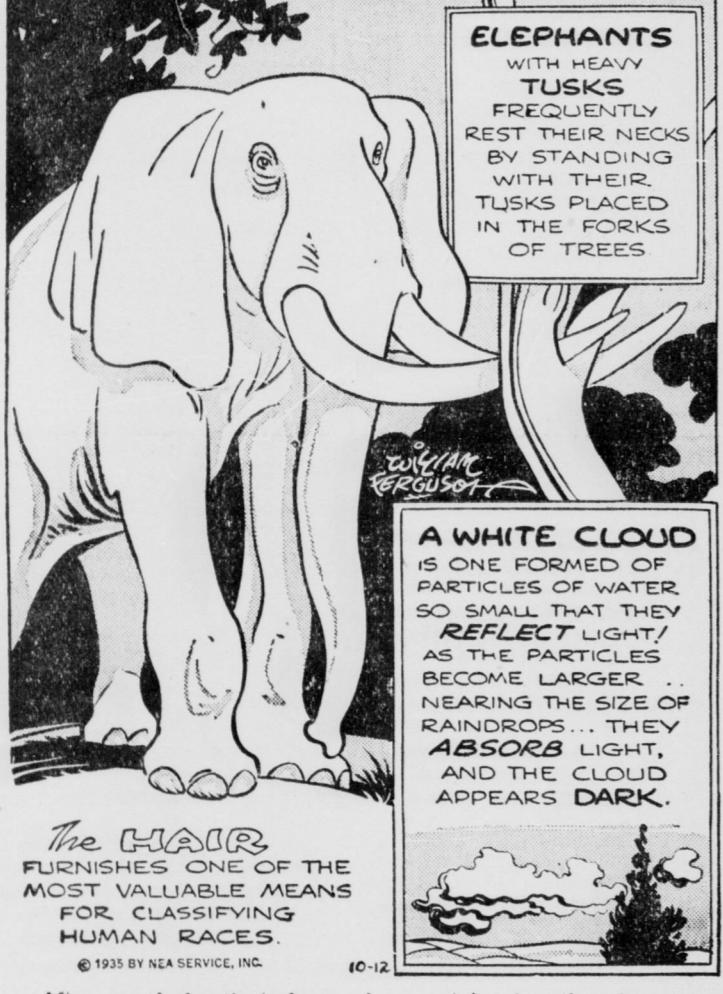

An engineer's hat Scouty found. He said, "you'll all be safe and sound, 'cause this will make me look just like an engineer today."

It didn't take the farmer long to show him what was right and wrong. Then, with the Tinies hanging on, the train began to creep.

"Hurray," cried Coppy. "What we need is just a little bit more speed. Keep on the level. Do not try a hill that's very steep."

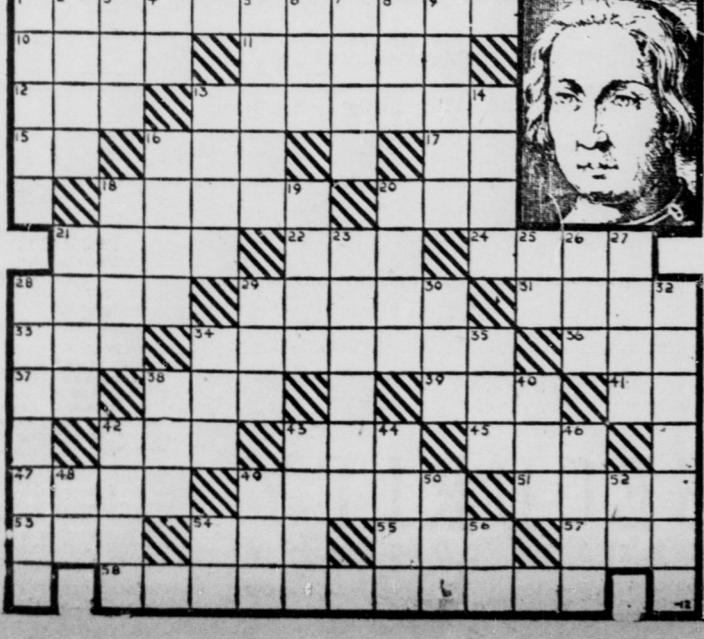

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

After an elephant's tusks reach a certain size, they become a hindrance to him. The enormous weight, often several hundred pounds, exerts such a downward pull upon his neck that he is unable to keep up with the rest of the herd, and frequently is forced to live a solitary existence.

TARZAN AND THE FIRE GODS

Then, answered Tarzan, "command the turners of the wheel to pull them to the Fiery Pillar." Lady Beth was aghast. Had the Jungle Lord abandoned them? Tarzan looked at her: "Translate as I have said!" he commanded sternly. Niarchus was elated.

"Pull!" he cried. But to his amazement there was no response from the hidden niche whence the fatal rope was controlled. Lady Beth, Jerry and Arbeila were no less astonished, for they did not know that Tarzan had slain the wheelmen. The ape-man smiled.

"Baal hath rendered the wheelmen powerless, to show that I am in truth Iskander," he said to Niarchus. He turned then to slash the bonds of the captives. But the mad Niarchus crept up behind him, his bony fingers gripping the hilt of his sacrificial knife!
