DON'T SELL OLD PURDUE SHORT

BOILERMAKERS ARE CLICKING

THE Purdue Boilermakers are doing less worrying than their followers. Naturally, they are going to miss the valuable services of Capt. Ed Skoronski, center, who was ruled ineligible the other day, but any team that bags three consecutive victories without allowing an opponent to score is not going to fold up because of the loss of one warrior. Purdue was tabbed as the "Forgotten Team" last year, losing to Rice, Notre Dame and Indiana, but Coach Noble Kizer lost no time in rebuilding, and without spreading the success of his progress in the headlines.

First 1935 opponent was Northwestern, defeated, 7-0; second was Fordham, bowled over, 20-0, and third was Chicago, blanked, 19-0. That record is a convincer. The Boilermakers are on their way again. Skoronski will be replaced by George Bell, an able varsity warrior, and other grid gladiators will be developed to assist Bell. Leave it to Kizer. He is a smooth coach.

A demonstration of the "comeback of Purdue" will be given at Lafayette Saturday when the Boilermakers tie into Carnegie Tech. It will be homecoming on the campus and the Old Gold and Black pigskin chasers are sure to be at their best. Football observers in New York and Chicago readily admit that this year's Purdue machine is geared to score points as well as defend its own goal. That's fair enough in any league.

A VETERAN baseball fan lodges a grievance. "What's become of the stove league gossip?" He expresses the opinion that newspapers have turned off-season baseball overboard and have gone collegiate, forgetting that many baseball fans don't relish being dropped off the limb when the league schedules end. And he winds up his phone call with, "and all you read nowadays is college and high school football and bowling. Give the rocker chair veteran a break on professional sports. He usually pays the freight anyway when the newsboy comes around to collect."

It won't be long now. The Stove League will be up and at 'em shortly. The big convention of the minor leagues will be held in Dayton, O., Nov. 20, 21 and 22, and the guess is that plenty of news will pop at the pow wow. In the meantime clubs in all leagues are scheming to buy, trade and sell to ready-up for the annual convention.

WELL, as the Detroit Free Press says, it added close to 130,000 readers last summer, and the newspaper, without any reservations, according to Sporting News, attributes the increase to its enterprise in playing up Mickey's Bengals. The Press got a break, of course, because Mickey's Bengals got out in front and stayed there—and then went on to win the World Series.

The New York Yankees lost 27 games by one run during the 1935 season. Perhaps Babe Ruth wasn't overpaid after all.

The Louisville Colonels are looking for a new manager. Pilot Ken Penner won't be back. He used to pitch for Indianapolis.

ERRORS in composite box scores of the 1935 World Series charge PITCHER Lon Warneke of the Chicago Cubs with two earned runs. He, however, yielded only one, and allowed it when serving as a relief hurler in the third game. The mistake was generally made of charging Warneke with one runner left on base by Bill Lee in the eighth inning of that contest, who later scored, but the tally should have been chalked up against Lee and not Warneke.

Chuck Klein and Johnny Corriden, attention! Checks to the members of the Chicago Cubs for their share of the World Series money probably will be mailed tomorrow, the office of Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis announced today.

THIRTEEN is Arkansas' unlucky number. The Razorbacks have lost three straight—to Texas Christian, 13-7; Baylor, 13-6, and Louisiana State, 13-6. Six is California's lucky number. The Golden Bears have won from Whittier, Oregon and Santa Clara by the same score, 6-0. Unbeaten Princeton has had to come from behind in every game it's played.

MANHATTAN COLLEGE'S No. 1 rooster in New York is a bartender in a tavern near the campus. He imports rabbits as good luck charms for the Manhattan grid team. He claims that Manhattan's failure to kick the goal which would have beaten Holy Cross last Saturday was due to the fact that one of the rabbits got out of its cage!

IOWA and Illinois have met on the gridiron 11 times with Bob Zuppke's Illinois winning seven and tying one. The last time they played was in 1929 at Iowa City when they battled to a 7-to-7 deadlock. Saturday's game at Illinois will give Ozzie Soem, Iowa coach, his first opportunity to match wits with Zuppke. Soem went to Iowa in 1932 after serving at Drake for 11 years.

State Senior Golf Players Organize

LEBANON, Ind., Oct. 24.—The Indiana State Amateur Senior Golf Association will be organized here tonight by a group of linksmen who are at least 50 years old and belong to one of the recognized clubs.

A state championship tournament will be held early each year by the association, with 54 holes of medal play determining the winner. The first tournament likely will be held on the lower course at French Lick Springs.

Tech Gridmen Seek Victory Over Irish

As their second city opponents, the Tech gridmen will line up against Cathedral at the Tech athletic field tomorrow at 2:30.

The East Sidors will be out to score their fifth triumph and to avenge last year's 31-to-6 defeat at the hands of the Irish. This will be the third meeting of the two teams, each winning once.

ATTACKS IN SCRIMMAGE
Crispus Attacks High School warriors held a long scrimmage yesterday in preparation for their clash with the Lincoln gridders at East St. Louis, Ill., Saturday.

John Revolta Is Winner of P. G. A. Title

Ex-Caddy Beats Armour in Finals; It's Present for His Wife.

By United Press
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24.—An erstwhile caddy from Wisconsin today presented his wife a handsome fourth wedding anniversary present—the National P. G. A. championship—feasted with $1000 in cash and the wherewith of a many-times richer harvest within the year.

The donor was John Revolta, 24, who eliminated Tommy Armour of Chicago in the final match of the annual tournament, 5 and 4.

Revolta's victory a few weeks ago in the Western Open apparently gave him the confidence he needed for the event.

He Knew He'd Win
"I knew I was going to win," he said after the final match. "I had wired my wife I'd win this one for her as an anniversary gift."

To the winner went $1000 first prize money, along with the assurance of reaping some 10 times that much in side money going with the title.

Revolta's match with Armour was a re-enactment of the oft-played drama of youth against age—as age as counted in golfing circles. Armour has held the National Open, the British Open and the P. G. A. National titles.

Armour Crowd's Favorite
Armour was the favorite of the crowd that trooped over the chilling fairways to watch the deciding match. He was considered the underdog, since Revolta had been playing better golf.

Revolta took the lead on the first hole and held it through the thirty-second, where the match ended. His score for the first nine was 33, two under par, and at the end of it he had a three-hole lead.

The advantage had increased to four holes at the halfway mark. Early in the afternoon play Revolta carded two consecutive birdies and was five up. At the start of the last nine the advantage was six holes. Three holes were halved, Armour won one and then the match ended with Revolta two strokes over par for the 32 holes and Armour eight over.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY'S five-man back field formation has caused a lot of furore. It is a "mish-mash" invented by Coach Bo McMillin. Bob Keck holds down one of the guard positions on the Crimson team and as such is frequently referred to as the fifth man in the back field. It all depends upon how Bob shifts, whether he is a guard or a back field worker. He is especially dangerous because he can carry the ball and kick.

Saturday Indiana will try to please home-coming fans with a victory over the vaunted Ohio State Eleven. The Buckeyes will invade Bloomington a top-heavy favorite, but Indiana usually does its best playing before the old grads.

To make the five-man backfield a veteran affair for the Ohio State clash Coach McMillin last night assembled Vernon Huffman, Wendell Walker, Roy Eads and Corbett Davis, with Huffman calling signals and Davis at the full back position. Keck displayed form in the first of-doors workout of the week and indicated his injured knee has mended. The week-end celebration festivities will open with a huge campus pep session tonight.

Ezar Golf Exhibition at Highland Sunday
Joe Ezar, well-known trick golf shot artist, will give an exhibition at Highland Sunday afternoon following a two-ball mixed foursome in which he will team with Mrs. Freeman P. Davis against Neal McIntyre, Highland pro, and Mrs. C. A. Jaqua. The match will get underway at 1 p. m. with the trick shot making starting at 4 p. m. It will be free to club members and their guests.

Yankees Build Italian Appeal
Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, is borrowing a trick from boxing and wrestling. He is loading his team with "foreign" color. However, his "foreigners" are Americans. For example, next year, Tony Lazzeri, Frank Crosetti and Joe Di Maggio.

Butler, Valparaiso to Clash With Perfect Grid Records and League Lead at Stake

Bulldogs and Uhlans Both Have Clean Slates in Indiana Conference Competition; Night Tilt in Bowl Likely to Draw Best Crowd of Year.

One of the topnotch collegiate grid attractions of the season is scheduled here tomorrow night when Butler University's football team clashes with Valparaiso in the North Side bowl. It will be a night tilt with the kickoff scheduled at 8:15, and it will be the last game played under the arcs by the local eleven this fall.

The game attracts unusual attention because neither the Bulldogs nor the Uhlans have met defeat so far this season in the Indiana Intercollegiate Conference race. In fact, neither has been defeated. Valparaiso was tied by an out-of-state eleven, St. Viator's of Illinois, the count being 7-7, but in games with Indiana foes the Uhlans defeated St. Joseph's, 26-0, and Ball State, 20-6. Last Saturday they downed Defiance, 14-7.

Locals Total 145 Points
The Bulldogs machine, under the coaching of Tony Hinkle and Wally Middlesworth, has revealed strong power this fall with topheavy victories over Evansville, Hanover and Indiana State Teachers, their three Hoosier foes. The Bulldogs also took Louisville into camp, 29-0, to give them a total of 145 points in four games to 14 for the opposition. As a side attraction in the tilt Inman Blackby, Butler sophomore ball-kicking star will have his leadership of the state league in high scoring at stake, as his closest competitor for the honors, Willie Karr, is a member of the Valparaiso eleven.

The Butler mentors have been working on a versatile attack for this game, undecided as to just which might get the best results against the upstarters. Coach Jake Christensen always presents a stiff defense, but injuries have forced him to shift his lineup before every game.

Group of Stars
Besides Blackaby the locals have other topnotch offensive men in Andy Bon, another sophomore find; Jim Wulle, former Cathedral star; Waldo Stout of Sheridan, Emerson Musgraves and others.

Generally speaking the Bulldogs appear to have one of the strongest teams that has represented the local school in years, the forward wall, too, being made up of veterans with strong sophomore replacements.

The Blue coaches felt they discovered more power last night at practice when Dick Curtis, 178-pound varsity guard, came through as a place-kicker.

The game tomorrow will be designated as "High School Night," with students from Manual, Shortridge, Tech, Washington, Cathedral and Broad Ripple admitted free.

The fine records of the two teams, together with the interest being shown locally, indicates the largest crowd of the season will take in the struggle.
