

WILLIAM POWELL, AT LOEW'S, EQUALS 'THE THIN MAN' TRIUMPH

'Rendezvous' Offers Mirth and Romance

Rosalind Russell, Playing Opposite Star, Also Wins Laurels.

BY JOHN THOMPSON

Witty lines, exciting action, acting by William Powell and Rosalind Russell make "Rendezvous," at Loew's, equal to "The Thin Man," in entertainment value.

Mr. Powell never has been more comically romantic. Miss Russell proves that the stardom she has won quickly is justified. Lionel Atwill, Billie Barnes, Cesar Romero and Charles Trowbridge add to the excellence of the spy story.

A former puzzle editor on a newspaper, William Gordan (Mr. Powell) enlists in the army at the outbreak of the World War. He meets Joel Carter and wishes he hadn't joined the army. He makes her kiss him good-bye at the railroad station two days before his train leaves.

She falls in love with him and gets her father, Assistant Secretary of War, to order her sweetheart to stay in Washington. Mr. Gordan's ability to solve all sorts of codes and puzzles, makes him invaluable and Mr. Carter issues the order.

Outraged at having to stay behind a desk instead of going to the front, Mr. Gordan takes up his eye-shade and goes to work.

Secret messages, German broadcasts from Mexico, and counter-espionage activities all center around a beautiful spy, Olivia (Miss Barnes) who almost traps the romantic Mr. Gordan. All turns out well before the final fade-out.

Miss Russell is splendidly casual as Mr. Powell's leading lady. She has an engaging smile, fair amount of beauty and plenty of talent.

The other picture on the Loew's double-feature bill is "Guard That Girl," featuring Florence Rice and Robert Allen.

Lyric Stage Show Topped by Billy House's Fun Making

Stuttering Roscoe Ates, Water Ballet and Perry Mason Film Starring Warren William Complete Bill.

Billy House, rotund comedian, is "the big shot" of the current Lyric stage show which includes the appearance of Roscoe Ates, screen stutterer. The picture at the Lyric is Warren William's latest Perry Mason role, "The Case of Lucky Legs."

Mr. House, who throughout his act decodes the fact that he and his company are "thumping" their way to Dayton and would appreciate any applause they could get, puts his comedy line over with vigor. The bedroom skits are excellently done, mostly because of Mr. House's injections of genuine humor.

Mr. Ates is pleasing in a brief sketch in which he demonstrates his ability to stammer perfectly, play the violin and tear up a trombone. Mr. Ates' act has few participants who can get the tonal variations, bass gurgles and generally mixed-up word formation acquired by him.

One of the most dazzling spectacles seen on the Lyric stage is Lottie Mayer's water ballet. In this act a chorus of young women appears in ballet costume, mount high steps and walk down into a huge tank of water built on the stage. Large mirrors reflect the fact that the girls really do enter the water, clothes and all.

Then they appear from the tank wearing different costumes. Diving feasts and dance formations feature the act. A finale shows one girl held aloft on a swing from which she dives into the tank. Colorful costumes and settings and good dancing make Miss Mayer's act outstanding.

The whirlwind Daredevils, speed roller skaters, perform at dizzy speeds a foot or so from the footlights. The three are seen in skating adagio and trick spins and derbies. (By J. T.)

Final Visit of Don Cossacks Awaited Here

Program at English's on Nov. 10 Will Be Wholly New.

In a program entirely different from the four previously presented here, the Don Cossack Russian Male Chorus makes its farewell appearance at English's Sunday afternoon, Nov. 10.

Exiled forever, with "En Voyage" written on their League of Nations passports, these giant Cossacks and their diminutive leader, Serge Jaroff, are keeping alive, in their public the memory of Mother Russia.

From the vast store of their musical heritage, the Don Cossacks have chosen to give examples of the mystic loveliness of Russian orthodox liturgical music, tonal narthex of Cossack lore and the Russian folk song, with its pervading note of melancholy.

The complete program follows:
I
"Credo".....Gretchenhoff
"Lord Be Thou Lord".....Katsalovsky
"We Sing to Thee".....Katsalovsky
"Funeral Song".....Katsalovsky

Isle Marvenga Will Head Cast; Young, Leavitt Also Coming.

"The Student Prince," perennially popular operetta, is to revisit this city for a three-day engagement at English's beginning Thursday, Nov. 14, with a Saturday matinee.

Following the success of "Blossom Time," Lee and J. J. Schubert commissioned their authors, Sigmund Romberg, composer, and Dorothy Donnelly, librettist, to make a musical version of the play, "Old Heidelberg," which Richard Mansfield had played in 1903.

The result of their efforts was "The Student Prince." The work attained immediate popularity, both here and abroad, and has become one of the favorites in the field of light music-drama in the decade since its first appearance.

Heading the cast for the local production is Miss Isle Marvenga, who created the role of Kathie, a part which she has sung over 3000 times in Europe and America.

Other principals are Hal Young, Douglas Leavitt, Belle Sylvia, Ruth Lockwood, Donald Blair, Irving Green, Jose Lay, Clarence Harvey, George Dill, Terry Horn Charley Howard, Lee Beggs and Libby Larn-dell.

Variety Club Will Stage Amateur Show

A newcomer in the amateur entertainment world is the "Major Marc Wolf's Amateur Hour," which is to make its bow to Variety Club members and their guests tonight at 11:15.

All Indianapolis amateurs are eligible for place on the program. Mr. Wolf is president of the Indianapolis Variety Club, which has its clubrooms in the Claypool.
