

Handling of Jumping Bid Is Explained

Test Hands Illustrate How It Works When No Pass Is Made.

Solution to Previous Contract Problem

BY W. E. MCKENNEY
Secretary American Bridge League

In my previous article I explained how the Four Aces' System of bidding handles the jump two-over-one bid by a player who has previously passed.

Today I shall discuss how this bid should be handled by a player who has not passed. As I stated before, this bid conveys one message when a player has previously passed, and an entirely different message when made by a player who has not passed.

Today's Contract Problem

South is playing the contract at four hearts, doubled by West. South can make his contract, but by clever doubling West can misguide the declarer into playing the hand wrong. How would you make such discards from the West hand?

Solution in next issue. 28

For example, if South were to bid one heart and North, on his first chance to bid, were to jump to two spades, North would be saying, "Partner, my hand is very strong. If you have opened with a psychic bid two over one, as I still want to play this hand at game. If you have a true bid, even though it is the minimum, take some further action, so that we may continue to either a small or a grand slam."

Here is a hand to illustrate the various points of this bid.

NORTH
♠ A K Q J 9 2
♥ A 5
♦ 7
♣ A 9 7 4

SOUTH
♠ 5 2
♥ 9 6 3
♦ 8 4
♣ J 8 6 5 3 2

28-1

Suppose South were to open the bidding with a psychic bid of one club. North should bid two spades to show the great strength of his hand. South must respond with two no-trump, informing partner that his original bid was contract for game with a bid of four spades.

However, suppose we change the South hand as follows, using the same North hand:

SOUTH
♠ 8
♥ 8 4 3
♦ A K 6 4
♣ K Q J 8 2

28-2

Here South has an honest opening bid of one club. North bids two spades to show his strength.

South now should bid three clubs, which will inform his partner that his opening bid was not a psychic and at the same time indicate a five-card club suit.

North bids three spades, taking things easy; South bids three no trump, showing a minimum sound original bid.

The bidding, however, will not stop here, as North's jump of two spades was one assuring that the contract could go to slam, provided that the original bid was not a psychic. North bids four clubs to show club support.

South bids four diamonds to show control of the diamond suit. With this information, North can go to seven clubs.

Daily Recipe

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

1 chicken
1 pint coffee cream
2 1-2 tablespoons flour
2 1-2 tablespoons of butter
1 small can mushrooms (drained)
Buttered bread crumbs

Cook chicken until done. Let cool, cut in small pieces. Melt butter, add flour and cream and cook over slow fire, stirring constantly until thickened. Season with salt and pepper. Put chicken and mushrooms into white sauce and pour into buttered baking dish. Butter three-fourths cup toasted bread crumbs, sprinkle over top. Bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, until thoroughly heated.

Black Evening Dress Has Two Personalities

BY GERTRUDE BAILEY

GRANTED that two dresses are better than one in this season of fashion etiquette that calls for a different degree of formality every five minutes, we still maintain that one good dress is better than two cheap ones, especially if that one contains the parts of two.

Let us explain. We do not mean the usual double duty arrangement that more often than not is only presentable one way. We mean the well cut simple black dress of great sophistication that has a dramatic touch independent of the jacket or tunic or cape that gives it a second personality.

It is not the easiest dress to find, but we found it and here it is sketched both ways on today's page.

Orry Kelly designed it for Jean Muir. She wore it when she was in New York. The basis of the costume is a beautifully cut black crepe gown with a gold belt. The dress is slit in front and has a loose panel at the back, suggesting a train but not exaggerated. The décolletage is waist deep in back. This is a kind of dress that you can wear many times during the winter. It can be made even more glamorous with the large gold jewelry, with a gold kid bag and cut-out sandals of gold kid—yes, gold kid leaves in the hair for strictly formal occasions.

BUT it will be worn just as often with the short gold lame jacket that makes it less than formal, but sufficiently important for dining and dancing and the theater. The dinner jacket has a large corsage of green velvet flowers on the lapel, to start you off with emerald and gold jewelry for the final flourish. One of the new little half-hats of velvet that show as much coiffure as hat would be adorable with this costume.

Formal or informal—this costume may be either because of a beautifully cut black gown and a gold lame dinner jacket.

Baptist Group's Meeting Is Set for Tomorrow

Work of the marriage and home department of the Indianapolis Association of Baptist Women is to be emphasized at the fall conference, from 10 to 3 tomorrow in the Thirty-first Street Baptist Church, 31st and Annette-sts. Mrs. W. A. Shullenger is to speak on "The Fine Art of Living Together."

A short business session is to be held, followed by a talk by Mrs. L. C. Trent on "The Forward Movement," and a talk by Mrs. G. E. Bartlett, administrative vice president of the East Central District, Woman's American Baptist Home and Foreign Missionary Society.

Miss Esther Pelacios, native of Nicaragua, who has served 20 years as a missionary, is to talk on her work. Devotions are to be directed by Mrs. Everett Edwards and Mrs. George Kimsey, and special music is to be provided by Miss Roberta Trent, violinist, and Mrs. Roy Vice, soloist.

CONVENTION TO BE TOPIC OF REPORT

Reports from the national convention of the Auxiliary to the Railway Mail Association are to be given by delegates from the local organization, at its meeting tomorrow at the Woman's Department Club.

Mrs. Walter H. Vinzant, member of the Indianapolis branch, and former member of the national executive committee, has been elected national vice president.

Mrs. Charles E. Irwin is chairman of the dinner committee. Other members include Mesdames Fulton Smith, Paul G. Vickery, E. H. Hughes, Mark Leach, W. O. Brown, Otto Stonbraker, Jerry McDermott, Charles E. Heagy, Archie Kelly, John D. Yoder, C. M. Barksdale, Vance Conner, John M. Rehm and Olive Campbell.

Bridge Party Set

Members of the Lambda Chi Alpha Mothers' Club and their guests are to attend a bridge party at 2 tomorrow afternoon at the Butler University chapter house, 4721 Sunset-blvd. Mrs. Harry Daniel, hostess chairman, is assisted by Mesdames Cicero Disher, E. M. Fuller, J. F. Hufford, R. C. Sims and J. H. Lang.

Sunshine Club to Meet

Regular meeting of the Children's Sunshine Club of Sunnyside is to be held at 2 Wednesday in the Fletcher Trust Co.

Military Motif Spreads

The military trend in fashions becomes more important by the minute. A good many little hats look like Russian, German, English and French officers' headgear. The Cossack influence is strong in suits and coats as well as hats. Cavalry type gloves, wide leather belts, decorated in martial motif, military capes and jackets with braided details and frog fastenings are shown in practically every collection.

Cleanser for Leather

If you have leather to clean, mix two parts kerosene oil with one part vinegar. This will soften the leather as well as clean it. Polish afterward with a dry cloth.

Approach to Religion Is Vital Factor

Piety Fails When Attitude is Wrong, Declares Jane Jordan.

Everybody knows the help that comes from discussing a problem with a friend. Write to Jane Jordan today!

Dear Jane Jordan—I was an unwanted baby born to my parents late in their lives. Worst of all, I was frail, which complicated circumstances. As soon as my skinny legs could carry me I was the unpaid servant for my parents and six older children with never a thank-you for my labor. It delighted the older ones to exchange Christmas and birthday gifts, leaving me standing aside with nothing. My heart ached but I decided that time would soften their hearts toward the unwanted sister. But 30 years have gone by and their hearts remain the same. They delight in telling me of long drives in the open country while I and my three little ones remain at home with my husband, who is a semi-invalid. They tell their friends of our poverty and talk about us while I pray.

When I recall the many five-dollar bills which I worked for in other people's kitchens and gave to them during their lean days, it drives me from them and their so-called religion. Recently I decided to join a different church, a church I was taught to hate. They didn't seem to notice my shabby clothes but thought only of higher things, of lifting up when all I've ever known was tearing down. I didn't go as a beggar but as an earnest seeker of truth and have found it in the church my family hates. Even if the Bible does say forgive 70 times 70, can we go on forever or should we break loose and embark on a new sea?

MOTHER OF THREE.

Answer—You are not the first person to discover that he is an alien in his own family. It is a bitter experience. Whether or not it is harmful depends on the individual's ability to handle disappointment. With some families, hate acts as a spur which drives them to built up compensations in other groups of people and other fields of endeavor. Some sink into envy and despair and never drop the futile search for the comfort and security of parental protection which they missed in their unhappy youth.

Frustrated in their original love impulses, their viewpoint becomes jaundiced. Instead of coming to grips with the problem they retreat into some form of useless inactivity.

I have no wish to discourage your turn to a new religion, but I should like to warn you that you will get out of it only what you put into it. If, as I suspect, you have chosen this religion because it is one which your family despises, you have done an ethically worthless thing. If you come to your new faith with the attitude of a child expecting your life to be given to you by a divinity more indulgent than your human parents, you are courting another disappointment.

The reason your prayers have not been answered is not that you have been praying at the wrong altar but that you have been cherishing the wrong attitude. It is better not to ask for a change in others but to work for a change in yourself. Not that you are to blame for the situation, nor that it is necessary for you to turn the other cheek to your persecutors. It is only that as human beings we are obliged to learn how to lead successful lives in spite of the fact that we are surrounded by injustice, cruelty and wrong doing. If your religion will help you face things as they are without going down to defeat because they are not miraculously changed to make things easy for you, you are on the right track.

Dear Jane Jordan—I am a girl of 15 interested in a boy of 18. He can't get married until he is 21 for he promised his mother he wouldn't. Do you think that we can wait? What can I do to keep him?

NINA L. W.

Answer—I know of nothing which will guarantee permanence in love. If your affection does not survive the passing of time it is not what you are looking for. Since you are only 15, perhaps you are the one who will change.

Neatness Is Secret With Beauty Aids

Well-Groomed Effect Is Matter of Careful Study.

BY ALICIA HART

Just as too many accessories—even though they are handsome ones—spoil the well-groomed effect for which you strive, too great a collection of attention-getting beauty aids, worn at one time, make you look haphazardly turned out, instead of neat and trim.

The woman who starts out wearing long, artificial eyelashes, an intricate coiffure, a black beauty spot on cheek or chin and scarlet nails impresses others in much the same way as one who dresses up a frock with beads, earrings, bracelets, a mesh collar and jeweled belt.

The easiest way to solve the problem of what to put on and what to leave off is to decide first of all just which feature or which part of your face you wish to dramatize.

If you have nice eyes, make them up as much as you like, wear an off-the-brow hair-dress and don't use enough rouge and lipstick to draw attention from your eyes.

If you have a beautiful mouth and chin, forget about mascara and eyeshadow and concentrate on learning how to apply lipstick to accentuate your mouth.

Girls with lovely ears are the ones who should wear their hair off the face and go in for earrings. Broad faces look less wide if hair is parted in the center. Long ones, and long noses, too, look shorter if the hair is done with side part.

If you have a well-shaped head, wear your hair flat across the back. Incidentally, ringlet curls, unless they are pinned down smoothly, don't lend themselves well to large faces, whether round or oval. Leave these for girls with rather small features.

Unless your hands are truly pretty, better wear neutral polish on your nails. Vivid tones attract attention to your hands, of course.

Roll Pastry Lightly

The reason you should roll pastry lightly is so that the air may not be pressed out of it.
