ings and homes. Buildings poorly constructed were wrecked. Many of the better built ones lost their roofs. It was the debris from houses, together with hundreds of signs from the sides of buildings, overturned automobiles and uprooted trees, that filled the streets.

Sea Water Receding

Though the scenes of desolation were bad enough, they did not begin to approach those of the frightful hurricane of 1928 when Miami was virtually wrecked and 1500 to 2500 were killed in Florida.

Almost all building construction after that disaster was planned with a view of the fury of the hurricanes to which this area is subject. Yesterday's storm proved that this building was done well.

Early today sea water was receding from Miami Beach, where at the height of the hurricane it was four feet deep. The howling winds, reaching at their peak a velocity of 130 miles an hour, piled up terrific seas and great tides. Traffic between Miami and Miami Beach still was paralyzed. Police blocked off the connecting causeway, which had 10 feet of washouts.

Two yachts—the 247-foot Chelena, owned by Charles MacCarr of New York, and the 188-foot Arcadia, owned by Mrs. Margaret S. Hardwick of Brookline, Mass.—moored to the causeway, were smashed against one another and badly damaged. The smokestack of the Miami Beach plant of the Florida Power Co. was blown down. Damage to other neighboring resorts was equally severe.

At Hollywood a new high school lost its roof. Almost every window in the Hollywood Beach Hotel, which has 700 rooms, was broken. Driving rain ruined much equipment and the hotel's arcade was choked with sand. Two airplane beacons were bent double. The roof of the $250,000 Hollywood Casino was torn off. During the storm the entire Hollywood "lake" section was under water.

Is That So?

By United Press
FT. LAUDERDALE, Nov. 5.—Wanting coffee badly enough to brave flying debris during yesterday's hurricane, William Hackett made a dash from the Broward Hotel to a restaurant across the street.

"Bring back a cup for me, will you?" a fellow refugee shouted. When he returned, soaked and windblown, Hackett was met with this question: "Did you put sugar in it?"

"I certainly did," said Hackett. "Hell," said the beneficiary, "I can't drink coffee with sugar in it."

Follows Unusual Course

By Science Service
WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The Florida hurricane pursued an unusual course in approaching the American coast. Instead of coming up through the Caribbean, as most such tropical storms do, its center moved shoreward from the open ocean, at about the latitude of Wilmington, N. C.

Then, when about 100 miles offshore it veered at almost right angles, moved southward nearly 400 miles and again veered at right angles to strike Florida a little north of Miami.

Milwaukee Police Sure Another Youth Died in Explosion.

By United Press
MILWAUKEE, Nov. 5.—Police were convinced today that a second youthful terrorist was blown to bits in the dynamite explosion which rocked the South Side Sunday.

A piece of torn, blue jacket found in the wreckage was identified as that of Paul Chovonec, 16, companion of Hugh Frank Rutkowski, 21, whose death ended a series of bombings of public buildings here. The third victim of the blast was 8-year-old Patricia Mylnarek, whose home adjoined the garage where the youths were experimenting with a time bomb.

Once Pride of Theater-Goers, Old Park Is Razed

Once the pride of Indianapolis' theater-goers and actors, the Park Theater is being razed today, with only a small part of the building remaining erect. Wreckers are tearing down the structure to make way for a modern business building. This air shot of the interior shows what remains of the stage, the first floor, the balcony and the second balcony-gallery to most of us. Old-time boxes can be seen at either side of the photo.

JUDGE WILL RULE ON RELIEF SALARIES

$7000 Back Pay Held Up by Attorney General.

Superior Judge Joseph Williams at 2 Friday is to hear a petition brought by Center Township to order County Auditor Charles A. Grossart to pay approximately $7000 to employees whose salaries are ruled by Atty. Gen. Philip Lutz Jr. to be illegal.

The petition, brought by Leo X. Smith, attorney for Miss Hannah Noone, township trustee, says that the workers are necessary to conduct relief business of the township and that if they are not paid and the 46 employees are discharged, the relief work will suffer.

Meanwhile, another action brought in Superior Court today further embroiled the affairs of the township in the courts. The Star Store asked that Auditor Grossart be ordered to pay $7993.25 for relief supplies it says Miss Noone bought for township relief.

Subscriptions to Humorist Memorial Heavy in Indianapolis; Mrs. Kin Hubbard Pays Tribute.

With opening of the second day of the Will Rogers Memorial Fund campaign, subscriptions totaling more than $1200 have been received in Indianapolis, Fred Hoke, city executive committee chairman, said today. Indianapolis and Marion County banks have volunteered as depositories for gifts to provide a memorial to the humorist. Committee members announced additional stations for receipt of contributions will be established in libraries, office buildings and utility company offices.

The campaign began yesterday, the fifty-sixth anniversary of Will Rogers' birth, and is to continue until Nov. 27. Arthur V. Brown, president of the Union Trust Co. and Indiana National Bank, has been appointed treasurer for the Indianapolis campaign. Contributions sent by mail will be received either by him, Mr. Hoke, or the Indianapolis Chamber of Commerce, headquarters for the campaign. Scores of letters, many accompanied by checks, have been received by Hugh McK. Landon, state chairman, and Mr. Hoke.

Mrs. Hubbard Is Leader
Mrs. Kin Hubbard, widow of the man Will Rogers insisted was the best humorist in the country, wrote: "It will be a great honor and deep satisfaction for me to serve as chairman of the women in my locality. I shall endeavor to co-operate in all things to make the memorial a success."

Charles M. Teator, Hagerstown, president of the Perfect Circle Co. and chairman there, said: "I am extremely happy to aid in this undertaking and will do my utmost to make it a success. I feel certain that I shall have the co-operation of every citizen of Hagerstown. Although our population here is only 1500 I hope to have every person here registered as a contributor."

7 STATES VOTE TODAY IN TEST OF NEW DEAL

400 or More Indiana Towns Go to Polls on Local Issues.

C. Megordon, clerk-treasurer; Oakley Patch, Floyd Hardy and O. B. Ryerson, trustees. The "insurgent" group is comprised of Mr. Hardy, Charles Mawson and C. A. Rosell for trustees, and Gene E. Middleton for clerk-treasurer.

Lawrence voters will have only one ticket, but will vote on installation of a municipal water plant. At Salem they are voting on changing the town status to that of a city and at Rising Sun on public ownership of utilities.

Rocky Ripple will have two tickets in the field. The present officers, Francis Joy, Charles Maddux and Alroy Sieloff, trustees, and Fred Doepfers, clerk-treasurer, are seeking re-election. The opposition ticket consists of Goldie Dold, Marvin Babcock and Herbert Stewart for trustees and Henry Keeler for clerk-treasurer.

Other Marion County communities either will not have an election or will re-elect their present officials.

In practically all Indiana towns holding an election, the issues either are the issues listed or legalization of hard liquor. Neither major political party has taken an active part in the campaign.

The Indiana Anti-Saloon League has been active in advising local dry groups to elect trustees opposed to legalizing hard liquor by ordinance as the new state liquor law permits towns and cities under 5000 population to do.

New Deal Awaits Vote

By United Press
WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—Elections in three states test New Deal strength today, 12 months before President Roosevelt will hear from the country whether his experiments with reform and recovery are holding their own against increasingly fierce adverse critics.

Politicians seeking straws in the wind will look to the majority contest in Philadelphia, the New York election of a lower legislative house and a typical Kentucky scramble for the Governorship.

But far-sighted observers may turn first to the liquor vote in Kentucky. The $100,000,000 Bourbon whisky distilling interests are undisputedly alarmed. The state votes today on a proposal to amend the constitution by substituting local option for the technically prevailing bone-dry prohibition now mandatory by provisions of the state constitution.

Dry leaders became confident this week they had an unexpected chance to win Kentucky. That fits perfectly with their announced program to attack the liquor problem this time through the states rather than through the Federal government.
