

NEW ROMANTIC TEAM TO OPEN INDIANA EARLY WINTER FILMS

Ann Harding, Gary Cooper Have Leads

Margaret Sullivan to Be Seen After 'Peter Ibbetson.'

A new romantic team, Gary Cooper and Ann Harding, are to be seen in "Peter Ibbetson," pictorialization of George DuMaurier's love story, which comes to the Indiana screen next Friday as the first in a series of new pictures announced today by I. M. Halperin, Indiana-Circle manager.

"Peter Ibbetson" features also the work of Dickie Moore and Virginia Weidler, as juveniles; John Halliday, Douglas Dumbrille and Ida Lupino. It is perhaps the most poetic picture translation yet presented.

Following "Peter Ibbetson," the Hollywood adaptation of Stark Young's 1934 best seller, "So Red the Rose," starring Margaret Sullivan, is to be presented.

Tells of Women's Courage

Featured are Walter Connolly, Randolph Scott, Elizabeth Patterson (Hoosier), Janet Beecher and Dickie Moore. The novel, adapted for the screen by Maxwell Anderson and Laurence Stallings, is the story of the effect of the approach of the Civil War upon a fine old Southern family. It deals primarily with the courage of the women of the household.

The day after Thanksgiving, "In Person," Ginger Rogers' first starring picture, is to be shown. Miss Rogers, who has been shooting skyward in pictures with Fred Astaire, will have George Brent as her leading man. From the pen of Samuel Hopkins Adams, "In Person," tells the predicament of a movie star on vacation after a nervous breakdown caused by a mobbing "public."

After she attaches herself to a likeable young man, the picture takes on a "Taming of the Shrew" angle.

Coming to the Indiana shortly is "I Dream Too Much," which will introduce the operatic star, Lily Pons, to the screen. Henry Fonda, of "Way Down East" fame, is to be her leading man. In the cast will be Eric Blore, whose budding and waiting in several recent pictures has been fine.

Ohio Presents Two Features

'Keeper of the Bees' Comes to Local Screen.

"Keeper of the Bees," the picture play of Gene Stratton-Porter's story, is the chief feature of the Ohio's double-feature program to-day and tomorrow. The other picture is "Going Highbrow" with Guy Kibee and Zasu Pitts.

"Keeper of the Bees" tells the story of a young soldier who discovers that he has only a short time to live. He decides to desert the hospital to which he has been assigned and really "live" the last months of his life. He stops at a quiet bungalow where an aged bee-keeper lives and learns that there is more to life than time.

Neil Hamilton and Betty Furness are starred.

Laugh Riot Here

Tonight at 8:15, "Three Men on a Horse," rated in New York as one of the funniest of the plays presented last season, is to be presented at English's theater. It will also be given to-morrow night and Wednesday night with a Wednesday matinee.

Times Special

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 11.—Cedric Gibbons, Hollywood art director, has fitted the last of 2769 scale photographs into a combined mosaic and cross-word puzzle to complete a unique pictorial map of Verona. From this he is constructing settings for the production of "Romeo and Juliet," which is to star Norma Shearer.

The map shows all important medieval and renaissance structures in Verona. The photographs, made from every conceivable angle, provide a detailed and accurate picture of important and historical buildings in exact relationship. They represent the efforts of two camera crews, working in Verona for four months.
