

WILLIE MASON IDENTIFIED AS DAIRY ROBBER

State Expects to Conclude
Police Murder Case
Late Today.

Willie Mason, on trial in connection with the machine gun slaying of Police Sergeant Lester Jones, today was identified as one of the bandits who staged a holdup of the Capitol Dairies the day before the police officer was slain.

Testifying in Criminal Court, two employees of the company pointed out Mason as one of the bandits. He and Edward (Foggy) Dean face a charge of committing physical injury during a robbery.

Miss Louise Oberling, pretty switchboard operator at the dairy, and Floyd Sachs, credit manager, recalled Mason as one of the bandits who staged the raid Feb. 6, 1933.

May Rest Case Today

Prosecutors said they expect to rest the case late today. If Richard Keller, alleged Cincinnati slayer, and pal of Mason, is not brought here from St. Paul by this afternoon the state will conclude its case without his testimony.

There were reports that he had confessed Dean told him of participation in the Peoples Motor Coach Co. robbery in which Sgt. Jones was slain, but these reports have been denied officially.

That Mason lived up to his reputation as a toughly was related to the jury today by William Conklin, former Kentucky probation officer. He said he had been threatened with death by Mason in 1933, while authorities sought the suspect.

Mr. Conklin testified that he and another probation officer went to the home of Ed Miller in Louisville and that Mason and George Schwartz, now serving a life term, put guns on them and threatened their lives.

"Reach for Ceiling"

"Reach for the ceiling, big boy, or I'll turn on the heat," Mr. Conklin said he was threatened by Schwartz.

"What happened to the machine gun?" Mr. Conklin was asked.

"I don't know. All I wanted was it taken off me," he said.

Two state witnesses yesterday identified Dean as one of five armed thugs who participated in the $3000 Polk Milk Co. stockup Jan. 4, 1933.

Bruce Parsons, Polk distribution manager, leaned forward in the witness chair and said, "That man in front of me is the one that put the gun on me."

Attempting to shake the identification, Clyde P. Miller, defense counsel, asked, "Weren't you badly frightened?"

"Oh, no," Mr. Parsons, victim of other robberies, replied. "These men weren't the type to scare you like they usually are."

PRISON WARDEN SEES LUTZ ON WATER RATES

Demands to Know if PSC Can

Louis F. Kunkel, state prison warden, Michigan City, and Howard Crosby, chief clerk, have conferred with Attorney General Philip Lutz relative to a proposed increase in water rates at the prison, it was announced today.

The Northern Indiana Public Service Co. seeks increase of several thousand dollars annually despite a contract which has some time to run.

By United Press
BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 14.—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight boxing champion, was examined at Johns Hopkins Hospital yesterday for what was described as a minor eye ailment.
