

TECH PROGRAM IS ATTENDED BY 11,000 PERSONS

Education Week Observed
by Schools With Open House.

Education Week programs were held yesterday and last night throughout the Indianapolis public school system.

Virgil Stinebaugh, school curriculum revision director, spoke at the School 43 Parent-Teacher observance, and 11,000 persons attended the Technical High School open house last night.

"Today we have the child-centered school, where the premium is placed on the child and not the subject matter," Mr. Stinebaugh said. He outlined the progress of education through to the present day.

At the high school open house, 133 classes representing 18 departments held demonstration meetings for visitors. In an address over the public address system, Principal DeWitt Morgan explained that "all work is done by contact between teacher and pupil, working out daily problems."

A. J. Elliott, Y. M. C. A. worker, addressed Manual Training High School pupils yesterday. More than 400 mothers attended the program.
