

SANDERS SEEN AS POSSIBILITY TO SAVE G. O. P.

Mentioned Frequently as Compromise Candidate for Governorship.

BY ROBERT K. KYLE The visit here of Everett Sanders, former Republican national committee chairman, now practicing law in Washington, has revived interest in him as a compromise possibility for the Indiana governorship nomination.

At the Hoosier Republican meeting last Saturday his name was mentioned most frequently as the only person who could unite the various factions in the party and at the same time be strong enough to defeat a strong Democratic opponent.

Although Mr. Sanders is not regarded as an outstanding liberal in party ranks—he was a protégé of Calvin Coolidge—his record as congressman, as secretary to President Coolidge and as G. O. P. national chairman is considered as one of the foremost in Hoosier politics.

Not a Single Matter

Since he is friendly with all factions, some of the party leaders are said to be turning to him to carry the party to victory next fall. All that remains, in their opinion, is to get the Terre Haute man's consent. On the surface this seems simple, but underneath, political followers declare, it would mean a considerable sacrifice of a lucrative law business.

And Mr. Sanders is astute enough, they assert, to remember that most of the Governors in his time have left office financially "broke." Being a disciple of Coolidge's it might be necessary to some reversal of philosophy for him to cast his hat into the Indiana whirligig, it is pointed out.

Hoosier Republicans are interested in the announcement from Washington that Claudis Houston, former Republican chairman, is looking upon former Senator Arthur R. Robinson, as a "dark horse" possibility for the presidency.

Removal Is Welcome

Mr. Robinson's removal from the state picture will be welcomed by candidates and maneuverers alike, political observers hint. His close association with the powerful Hearst and MacFadden publishing interests might make him a threat in the national arena at the June convention in Cleveland, they feel.

While the various candidates for the governorship are jockeying, very little is being done to formulate a constructive line of strategy in the state. Thus far nothing has been accomplished save a "Down with Roosevelt and the New Deal" attitude. That hasn't accomplished anything to strengthen party possibilities.

There are a number of G. O. P. strategists who are reported to be out of sympathy with these tactics. It is quite possible, say followers of the situation, that at the next meeting of the state committee an altogether new attack will be launched, this time against Gov. McNutt's running mates—Frank McHale and Bowman Elder, and the "Two Per Cent Club."

CAMPUS RING PROBED IN 'CRIBBING' SCANDAL

North Carolina U. Expels 33 as 40 Others Await Hearing.

By CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Feb. 1.—Fifty additional students of the university of North Carolina faced expulsion today in the investigation of a campus ring alleged to have procured and distributed examination questions to a selected list.

Thirty-three already have been expelled when secret sessions of the student council, the investigating body, opened today. It was announced that between 25 and 40 students were scheduled to appear. It was announced that an honor graduate has confessed that he operated the examination question ring. He had access to the duplicating department, where examination questions are prepared.

WALLACE TO SPEAK TO INDIANA FARM BUREAU

Secretary Expected to Explain AAA Substitute Feb. 12.

Henry A. Wallace, secretary of agriculture, is to speak at an Indiana Farm Bureau meeting for Hoosier farmers in Indianapolis Wednesday, Feb. 12, it was announced today.

Secretary Wallace is expected to explain the new Federal farm program designed to replace the Agricultural Adjustment Act, invalidated by the Supreme Court. The meeting is to be open to the public.

46 Men, 20 Women Here Take Oath of Allegiance to Stars and Stripes

Majority of New Citizens Received Training to Pass Naturalization Tests at American Settlement or at Jewish Welfare Center.

BY TRISTRAM COFFIN Twenty women and 46 men, natives of lands scattered over the globe, and one former woman citizen have sworn to Federal Judge Robert C. Baltzell their allegiance to the United States.

In voices, some tinged with foreign gutturals and accents, they answered questions put to them yesterday by W. A. Kiefer, naturalization officer, and became United States citizens.

Most of the new citizens received their training in Americanism at the American Settlement, 617 W. Pearl-st., under Miss Mary Rigg, or at the Jewish Welfare Center, 17 W. Morris-st.

The Settlement is to have a gala party tonight to welcome the new citizens of its classes into the community. Lined up before Judge Baltzell in the dignified Federal courtroom, the candidates answered "no" to questions inquiring if they had violated the law or planned to overthrow the government.

Woman Regains Citizenship

Mrs. Rosa Hui, 29-year-old mother and former De Pauw University student, said, "I am very happy to regain my citizenship." She is of Chinese descent.

Trim and attractive, American-born Mrs. Hui lost her citizenship under an obsolete law when she married in 1926 because her husband was a native of Canton, China. Today, she once again is a citizen of the United States.

The candidates were housewives.
