

New Machinery Left in Ruins After Blast at Continental Baking Company Plant

This picture shows the concrete sidewalk on the New Jersey-st side of the baking company after the explosion. On that part of the sidewalk when the blast occurred was Stanley Bates, a pedestrian, who subsequently was treated for nervous hysteria.

sounded the basement thoroughly but found no one.

The first floor apparently had been raised by the explosion, and some of the wooden floor was splintered. The steel beams held, however, and the machinery did not drop into the basement.

A 12-inch brick supporting wall was wrecked by the explosion and Mr. Hurd ordered temporary stays installed to protect the building.

Glass Is Blown Out

Glass and window frames were blown out. Some of the glass was hurled to roofs of buildings across New Jersey-st. A large, heavy bolt of wrapping paper catapulted from the inside of the first floor across New Jersey-st into a yard, where it rested undamaged.

A manhole cover from the sidewalk was blown into three pieces, one of which was found across the street.

The doors of the bakery garage, some distance from the wrecked part of the plant, were blown clear of their hinges, and one plate glass window was broken.

There was no disturbance in the offices of the plant.

Hotel Windows Shattered

All front windows of the Arthur Hotel, directly across the street, were shattered, and the glass sprayed over the guests, 40 of whom were seated at dining tables. Some of the dishes on the tables were broken by the concussion.

Inside the lobby were about 10 men, all of whom were sprayed with broken glass. Among them were George Check, Palace Hotel, and J. V. Scott, Arthur Hotel.

Ernest Black, who also lives at the Arthur, only a moment before the explosion had parked his car in front of the place and gone to his room. He was showered with glass from the window of his room, and the two windows of his car exposed to the wrecked building were broken out. The roof of the car also was damaged.

Witnesses Tell of Blast

Miss Mildred Vinson, 5432 Julian-av, a bookkeeper at the Henry-Randall-Warner Co., witness to the explosion also called the Fire Department.

"I was here at my desk," she said, "when the blast occurred. My first sensation was seeing a great flash of light in front of the bakery, and in another instant the bulging sidewalk and the shattered glass. I grabbed a telephone and called the Fire Department."

Another Henry-Randall-Warner employee, Mrs. Helen Harris was alone in the publishing firm bindery at the time.

"I heard the report," she said, "and at the same moment felt the floor raise under my feet. Believe me, I was badly scared. I thought the explosion had occurred in our building."

SLAYER OF G-MAN BECOMES CATHOLIC

Barrett Turns to Church as Death Nears.

BY SAM TYNDALL

The realization that he is soon to die on the gallows for slaying a Federal agent has caused George W. Barrett to devote himself solely to religion.

The quiet mild-mannered murderer now confined to the Marion County jail infirmary under 24-hour guard called for the Rev. John F. McShane, pastor of St. Bridget's Catholic Church, and was baptized Friday.

Barrett was convicted in December and sentenced to hang in the Marion County jailyard March 22 for killing Federal Agent Nelson B. Klein.

"He has given up all interests except the Scriptures. I have been reading to him every day," Father McShane said. "They are his sole comfort."

Praising the intelligence of the doomed prisoner, Father McShane declared that "he has shown a broad knowledge of religious history and uses an unusual choice of words."

Barrett, considered a "model prisoner" by Sheriff Ray, became ill several days ago and is now on a diet of eggs, milk and oranges.

Fear that the prisoner might attempt suicide prompted the removal recently of all articles thought to be possible suicidal agents. These included his suspenders and glasses.

The traffic light at Washington and Alabama-sts was knocked down last night by a truck driven by Frank Auslander, Chicago, which skidded into it.

John Neal, 12, was recovering today from injuries he received when he coasted his sled into the side of a truck in the 1600 block E. 18th-st yesterday. He lives at 1204 Bellefontaine-st.

Transportation Paralyzed

By United Press
Snow choked Midwest and Eastern transportation systems today and the nation recruited thousands of men armed with shovels and snowplows to break through the mountainous drifts.

At least eight deaths were attributed to the arctic wave.

Armed guards were posted around 10 derailed coal cars at Imogene, Ia., where a fuel famine created a state-wide emergency. At Des Moines, double shift operation of Iowa's coal mines was proposed in a plan for union officials by Gov. Clyde L. Herring.

One hundred and twenty-five passengers on a Chicago & Northwestern train were rescued after hours of imprisonment amid the drifts at Jackson, Wis. The state ordered 4000 men and 800 snowplows out to clear traffic arteries.

A school bus was blown off the icy pavement near Peru, Ind. None was injured.

Many schools closed. Supplies were cut to the danger point in parts of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Kentucky and Massachusetts. Ashland, Wis., reported the temperature at 28 degrees below zero.

A bitter northwest wind swept a new cold wave down from the Canadian Northwest, across the Midwest and toward the East. Snow which stalled trains and blocked highways drifted back again after plows dug out main transportation lines.

Heavy rains swept streams in four Southeastern states out of their banks, causing at least four deaths and leaving many families homeless. A cold wave added to the suffering after the rains in Alabama, Mississippi, North Carolina and Georgia.

F. D. R. ORDERS MONEY CHECK

Billion Authorized Loans Canceled as Fiscal Aids Are Summoned.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—With threats of inflation rumbling in the background, the New Deal took inventory of its spending needs today preparatory to presenting a tax program to Congress.

Developments in the swiftly changing financial situation were:

1. House Administration leaders will call at the White House to urge postponement of bonus tax proposals.

2. President Roosevelt summoned heads of "spending" agencies to a White House conference tomorrow.

3. Rep. Wright Patman (D., Tex.), inflation leader, called a meeting today of currency expansionists to plan for a legislative fight.

4. Inflation "scare" depresses dollar value and sends gold exports of $15,665,000 abroad in two days.

5. Cancellation of more than $1,000,000,000 in congressional authorizations to government lending agencies announced by President.

A desire to strengthen the Federal government's credit and borrowing ability was reported back of Mr. Roosevelt's move to reduce lending authorizations of its credit agencies.

The principal agency affected by the cancellation, Mr. Roosevelt said, will be the Home Owners Loan Corp., from which authorization of $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000 will be lopped. Others mentioned were the Farm Credit Association and the Reconstruction Finance Corp.
