

CROQUETTES TO BE GOOD NEED CAREFUL FRYING

Leftover Beef, Veal, Fish, Ham, Pork Make Tasty Dish.

BY MARY E. DAGUE
NEA Service Staff Writer

The beef, veal, fish or ham of yesterday will go down twice as well the second day if you make it into croquettes. Or you may combine two or three of the meats, veal and ham, say, or chicken and ham, or veal and pork.

Of course every bit of skin, fat or gristle must be discarded and only clear, tender flesh used in the croquette mixture. Mince the meat and add to sauce as the sauce is taken from the fire. This is important because of the danger of overcooking the meat.

Every particle of the surface of a croquette must be completely covered with crumbs and egg. The egg quickly coagulates in contact with heat, forming a coating which the frying fat can not penetrate. But carelessness in crumbling and eggging may permit the croquette to break during the frying, which is ruinous. A first coating of fine crumbs, one of slightly beaten egg and a final one of crumbs is the proper order.

Handle Mixture Gently
The mixture must be handled gently, with the least possible pressure in molding.

The usual shapes are ball, cone, cylinder, chop and cutlet. The last two require a large amount of the mixture than the others. To shape croquettes thoroughly, wash your hands and rinse in cold water but do not dry. Take a rounded tablespoonful of the mixture and place on a molding board. Shape quickly with fingers. Roll the mixture into a ball first. Then if not wanted in this shape, roll to a cylinder and flatten ends. If a cone is wanted, flatten only one end and gently roll with greater pressure on the other end.

The inside of all croquettes should be soft and creamy and the outside crisp and brown.

For a luncheon, serve mushroom sauce with veal croquette and have stuffed tomato salad. And for dessert this time of year nothing could be better than a strawberry shortcake of meringue shells filled with maple mousse.

For a simple veal croquette family dinner, begin with tomato juice cocktail, have creamed carrots with the croquettes stuffed peach salad and finish with rhubarb pie.

CHICKEN BROTH AIDS SPAGHETTI

This Variation Is Called Tops Among Recipes for Tasty Food.

Spaghetti boiled in chicken broth!

As a variation in the use of spaghetti this recipe is among the tops.

The undiluted irradiated evaporated milk—poured over the spaghetti—is so rich that no additional thickening is required.

Spaghetti With Chicken

2 1/2 cups cooked spaghetti (boiled in chicken broth)
2 cups diced cooked chicken
1 tall can irradiated milk
2 cups buttered bread crumbs
Bring 1 quart well-seasoned chicken broth to a boil. Add one-half of a six-ounce package spaghetti and cook until tender, and broth is almost evaporated. Turn into a buttered baking dish. Cover with a layer of chicken, pour milk over all and top with buttered bread crumbs. Brown in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) Yield: Six servings. Two cups boiled beef and one quart beef broth may be substituted for the chicken.
