Adults Outnumber Children in Crowds That Visit Colleen Moore's Doll House

$435,000 Lilliputian Castle to Arrive in City on Sunday.

BY ELIZABETH CARR

When is a grown-up too grown up for fairy tales? That's a point on which Indianapolis is speculating today.

Colleen Moore's doll house has been traveling about the country for almost a year for the benefit of the nation's crippled children and has been viewed by hundreds of thousands of persons. Sixty-five per cent. of the total audience has been adult.

Miss Moore and her $435,000 miniature castle are to arrive Sunday for exhibition in L. S. Ayres & Co. from April 7 to 14 for the benefit of the James Whitcomb Riley Hospital for Children.

200,000 Pieces in It

Constructed of aluminum and copper with fantastic angles, turrets and steeples, the castle is made up of more than 200,000 individual pieces. It is nine feet in length and width. The scale is one inch to the foot throughout.

Light bulbs the size of wheat grains burn in a chandelier hung with pear-shaped diamonds and a cathedral organ with golden pipes six to 11 inches high plays through an electric system in remote control. Miniature -pestries, musical instruments and a library of first editions are designed for a Lilliputian domain.

The doll house was started as a hobby. Since Miss Moore was 2 years old, her father, Charles Morrison, an engineer, has designed doll houses for her. He built the first of a match box. The one being brought here was constructed by more than 700 workmen, artists and master craftsmen at a cost of almost a half million dollars.

Movies to Show Arrival

Motion pictures taken of Miss Moore's arrival Sunday are to be shown at downtown theaters. Mayor Kern, city officials and committee members are to welcome her and a child from the Riley Hospital is to present flowers.

Mrs. Perry Lesh, Junior League president, is to entertain with a luncheon Monday noon at the Indianapolis Athletic Club, followed by a tea at which Miss Moore is to be hostess to committee members.

Invitations have been sent out for a preview showing of the dollhouse for 7:30 in Ayres' sixth floor under the auspices of the Junior League. Dinner is to be served in the tearoom preceding the preview. At the formal opening at 8:30 Miss Moore is to explain her dollhouse over the radio.

On Thursday, General Motors Day, a miniature coach, a replica of the Napoleon coach that has served as the project of the Fisher Body Craftsman's Guild since 1930, is to be presented for Miss Moore's fairy princess. At an evening showing General Motors employees, dealers, officials and their families are to be guests.

Children of Indianapolis orphanages, hospitals and institutions are to attend a dollhouse party Easter Sunday at Ayres. Indianapolis Community Fund is to select the children for the party and provide transportation.

BANGS IS HELD VICTOR IN ORDINANCE DEFEAT

Action Sequel to Ouster of Water Works Chief.

HUNTINGTON, Ind., April 1.—Passage of an ordinance that would empower the city council to remove any city official or employee today had been defeated by a two-vote margin.

The ordinance, interpreted as an attempt to restore James F. Adkins as superintendent of the municipal water works, was considered an indirect attack on Mayor W. H. Clare Bangs.

Mayor Bangs dismissed Mr. Adkins after contending that "paper profits" had been listed as actual revenue in the water works' annual report. The report had been approved by the council.

Mr. Adkins yesterday filed suit for $50,000 damages, charging that headlines in the Mayor's newspaper had inferred a $12,000 shortage in the water works account.

INDORSE MRS. TETER FOR INDIANA U. POST

TEACHER IS TO QUIT AFTER 50 YEARS' SERVICE

'Uncle Billy' Franks of Garrett to Resign This Spring.

Times Special
GARRETT, Ind., April 1.—Will Franks came here in 1886 to teach school. Then a young man, he already had taught nine years in nearby communities, and today, after 50 more years, he still is teaching.

Garrett then was a town of 1000. It's seven times larger now. Mr. Franks then was just Mr. Franks, but he long since has been known to several generations as "Uncle Billy."

As in '86, Teacher Franks appears in his classroom daily to further the learning of the Johnny and Mary Joneses. But today they're the grandchildren of those who once attended his classes.

Because he has become an institution here, "Uncle Billy" is spared one of the most troublesome of pedagogic problems. Discipline among his pupils is as natural as their laughter when he recounts a funny experience. They come to him with respect.

"Uncle Billy" expects to quit this spring. A golden anniversary of teaching in one city is enough, he feels. Besides, his years are taking the toll, and hundreds of friends, while missing him, agree that he should take time now to sit down and reminisce.
