

WPA DIRECTOR DENIES OUSTING UNION WORKERS

Coy Says Men Are Free to Organize on Their Own Time.

Charges that Works Progress Administration workers in Indiana have been discharged for organizing unions were denied today by Wayne Coy, state and regional WPA director.

An Indiana delegation attending the Workers Alliance convention in Washington laid these charges before Senator Frederick Van Nuys yesterday. He said he would present the complaint to Administrator Harry L. Hopkins.

"No one has been dismissed on a WPA job for organizing. We neither encourage nor discourage organization. This is the first I have heard of the charges," Mr. Coy said.

Challenges Alliance

"Of course, workers are not permitted to use government time for organization purposes. I challenge the Workers Alliance to give me the names of individuals discharged for any other reason than refusing to work or organizing on our time."

"We don't care what the workers do on their own time, but if they organize on our time when they should be working, they would be poor workers."

The workers who presented the charges said they were from Brazil, Terre Haute, Hammond, Clay City and Princeton.
