

Rights to Be Topic of Women

Voters' League to Hold Discussion Session Wednesday.

Rights of Indiana Women as guardians of their own children and as owners of property are to be outlined at the Indianapolis League of Women Voters panel discussion Wednesday morning in Rauh Memorial Library. The discussion is to be directed by members of the Department of Government and Legal Status of Women.

Questions to be answered by the leaders include: "How is legal residence determined in Indiana? Are women in Indiana industries adequately protected? Do Indiana women serve on juries?"

Preceding the discussion, Mrs. William Sneath, department chairman, is to explain the national league's stand in opposition to the "Equal Rights Amendment."

Mrs. Ottinger to Preside

Mrs. Ross Ottinger, co-chairman, is to preside and explain the department's purpose.

Mrs. Leo M. Gardner is to lead the panel discussion in which Mesdames Elsa Brant, Ross Coffin, Edna Keiser and Joseph Stine are to take part. Other department members are Mesdames F. C. Alberghard, Thomas A. Elder, Edward Harman, Homer Hupard, Lester Smith and Gretchen Welliver.

The Indianapolis League members participated in the recent project of the national league, in which questionnaires were sent out to gauge public opinion on certain aspects of neutrality legislation.

The answered questionnaires have been collected from 22 state leagues and the District of Columbia, and have been used in the preparation of three chapters of the "Reference Memorandum on Neutrality," recently published.

Chapters are "Our Present Neutrality Legislation," "The History of Neutrality Legislation and Factors in its Discussion," and "The League of Women Voters Studies Neutrality: Conclusions Reached and Decisions Yet to be Made."

Local Women to Report at Dayton Parley

Indiana delegates to the Fifth Corps Area conference of the Women's Overseas Service League Saturday and Sunday at Dayton, O., are to report on the Indiana survey of needs of former service women.

Studies have been made in Indiana, Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia by the league and the American Legion Auxiliary Past President's Parley. Leagues are establishing funds to aid needy service women, not eligible to government hospitalization or government homes.

Miss Florence Martin, Hoosier unit president, and Mrs. Tom C. Polk, Indiana league president, are making arrangements for the local delegation.

The meeting is to open Saturday night with a dinner where Miss Edythe Davidson, Pittsburgh, national president, is to speak. Dinner on Sunday is to be at Miller Cottage, National Soldiers' Home.

EASTER may be over officially for the grown-ups but Jewell Jean and Buddy Lain decided to dress up in Sunday's best bib and tucker in honor of the annual egg rolling fete on the White House lawn today.

Since such tiny pairs of feet can't carry them so far on short notice they are on their way to stage a celebration of their very own!

They are as smart little fashion plates as you'll find anywhere and carried off the honors in the Easter parade at their house yesterday.

Buddy takes his new white cotton knit suit quite seriously... and hasn't the remotest idea how huggable he looks in the little French knit beret, made to match his suit. Even the chickie he clasps

GOOD TO EAT

BY LOLA WYMAN

ON SPRING RHUBARB

LONG pink and green stalks of rhubarb always mean spring to me. Now your grocer has plenty of it, so let's discuss it today.

First of all, let me tell you about making a rhubarb sauce—or what is simply known as stewed rhubarb. Be sure you do not add the sugar until the plant is cooked tender.

Not long ago a reader wrote me that it took so much sugar to make the sauce sweet enough for her family to eat that she couldn't afford to use rhubarb at all. I found that she was cooking the sauce and sugar together.

So I told her to add the sugar just before taking the rhubarb off the fire. Then let it come to the boiling point and remove at once. This makes a deliciously sweet and delicately flavored sauce.

This first spring rhubarb is usually so tender that it does not need to be peeled at all. As the season advances, the skin grows tough and stringy and should be removed. Simply cut the plant in inch pieces, add just enough water to cover the bottom of the pan and cook just a few minutes until the plant is tender. Then add the sugar.

RHUBARB UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

1 pound rhubarb.
2 tablespoons butter.
2 eggs.
1 cup sugar.
1 cup flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
1/4 teaspoon salt.
1/4 cup hot water.
1/4 teaspoon vanilla.

Wash the rhubarb and peel if necessary.

Cut in inch lengths.

Melt the butter in a large frying pan and add the rhubarb.

MISS LEIPER TO BE PARTY GUEST

Mrs. Jack Burke is to entertain with a crystal shower and bridge party tonight in honor of Miss Helen W. Leiper, bride-to-be.

Insecure Feeling Inspires Girl's Actions, Jane Says

Put your puzzles before Jane Jordan, who will help you find the answer by her replies in this column.

Dear Jane Jordan—We are a group of girls who have been dear friends for several years. Each would do anything in her power for the other. We are especially interested in the welfare of one of our group who is talented and very attractive. She comes from a respectable family, but she goes places unbefitting to a young lady without an escort, leaving her mother to believe that she is some place else. She knows that this is wrong and that her mother does not approve, but has the impression that by doing these things she is making herself popular and modern, although actually she is doing the opposite. She is really sweet and makes friends easily, but she isn't popular with the opposite sex because she is too bold and boisterous. She is a young lady trying to grow up but who still has childish actions. We are all members of the same church choir and attend choir rehearsals regularly, except this girl who cuts practice to stag a dance hall alone. We are not "prissy-prims." We enjoy dances and parties as well as she, but we don't want to make life miserable when we have to spend an evening at home. She wants to be on the go all the time. She doesn't like to be lectured about these things and when we try to reason with her, she ignores us. Please tell us what we, her best friends, should do to help her.—T. C. N. CLUB.

Answer—Something in the young lady's home life accounts for all these actions. It may be something difficult to detect, but it is there, nevertheless. I will tell you what to look for and you can ferret it out for yourself, with eyes sharpened by sympathy.

Does she have brothers and sisters, one or even two of whom outshine her in some way? Sometimes the eldest child in the family unconsciously resents the appearance of rivals in other children. Sometimes the youngest of a group feels the strain of keeping up with those who came before, whereas the child in the middle bracket is in the competitive position of all because the older ones are continuously running ahead and the younger ones are forever catching up in the rear. A child in any one of these positions at home might well make a break for a spot where people are not so competitive.

Now let us suppose she is an only child with no competition at home. Are her parents happy together or is there an undertone of discord from which she longs to escape? Even if the trouble is unspoken it can be keenly felt by a sensitive girl. Do the parents dote on the girl too much and over-protect her to the extent that she pulls at the tether in emphatic determination to have a life of her own at any price.

To reverse the case again, do her parents ignore her except to put some conventional prohibition on her conduct? It may be that she fancies one or the other or both do not love her as deeply as other girls are loved and that she feels that she must compensate by other conquests, however cheap. Is she over-devoted to her father and does he sometimes side with the mother against her in a way which drives her to succeed at dance halls to ease a sense of failure at home? The knowledge that she has defied her mother may give her much secret satisfaction and make her feel that she has slid out from under maternal influence at last.

Remember this: That only a secret sense of inferiority makes her bold and boisterous. She knows no other way at present to attract attention to a self whom she feels would be otherwise ignored. She doesn't see enough boys at home, or can't have them to herself at home, or she wouldn't search for them in dance halls. Study the situation from the angles which I have suggested and write me again.

"Girls—here's a secret! Men can't resist a lovely skin"

says BARBARA STANWYCK

Don't risk Cosmetic Skin! Guard against it the Hollywood way...

"A CLEAR, LOVELY SKIN is a charm no man can resist. Every screen star knows that's true!" Barbara Stanwyck says.

And this is just as true: A girl who has Cosmetic Skin—dullness, enlarging pores, tiny blemishes—is sure to be unattractive!

Easy to guard against this danger! "I never worry about Cosmetic Skin," Barbara Stanwyck says. "I use Lux Toilet Soap."

Lux Toilet Soap's ACTIVE lather gets out of the pores every hidden trace of dust and dirt, stale powder and rouge that might remain to choke them. You'll find it keeps skin lovely. "I've used this soap for years—and I know!" Barbara Stanwyck says.
