HERRON INSTITUTE OWNS BUST OF TARKINGTON

This portrait bust of Booth Tarkington, the well-loved Hoosier author, is by Walter Hancock, St. Louis, a pupil of Wuerpel and Grafy, who won the Prix de Rome, a prize coveted by young sculptors, in 1925. The head may be seen in the John Herron Institute of Art, which received it in 1935 as a gift from the Friends of American Art, a local organization whose president is Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge Sr.

Mr. Hancock, by virtue of winning the Prix de Rome, was able to spend the years from 1925 to 1928 abroad in study. He has designed several important memorials and at present is an instructor in sculpture at the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts.

This head is a good portrait of Mr. Tarkington. Note how successful the artist has been with the lines about the mouth, and the laughter wrinkles at the corners of the eyes. The eyes are always a difficult problem in a bust. This head, like those the Romans made, escapes giving the beholder the "blind" look so often found in this type of sculpture.

Cursory Examinations Draw Criticism of Patty at Parley Here.

The two-day session of the twenty-fifth annual conference of the Indiana Tuberculosis Association is to conclude today with election of officers.

Speaking before delegates in the Hotel Lincoln yesterday W. W. Patty, physical welfare training department director, Indiana University, urged high school physicians to conduct more thorough physical examinations for high school athletes, instead of issuing certificates after "cursory examination." "It will be in this way only that we can make the proper safeguards against tuberculosis," he said.

"Tuberculosis continues to take a heavy toll, despite the fact that health certificates are required of each football and basketball athlete," he said.

Mr. Patty recalled the case of one southern Indiana high school basketball player who died of tuberculosis the day after engaging in a basketball game. "Another star," he said, "was examined after his playing became mediocre and was found to be suffering from tuberculosis." Great strides have been made in the field of public health in the last 10 years, he said, and coaches are becoming more interested in the physical welfare of athletes.

Frank H. Hammond, supervisor of schools, Angola, Ind., urged that more emphasis be placed on health teaching in county schools. The afternoon session closed with a talk by Miss Faye Nixon, school nurse, Goshen, Ind., on mental health problems of the high school pupil.

Artist Transfers Amusing Mural to Kitchen Wall in Home Show Exhibit

Shown here is the mural that is to decorate the kitchen in the "Electrohome," centerpiece of the Home Show to open tomorrow at the Indiana State Fairground.

Amusing Design Is Put on Wall Over Room's Breakfast Nook.

Robert Purdy today is transferring from sketch to wall his kitchen decoration design that was selected as best for the fifteenth annual Indianapolis Home Show model home opening at the Indiana Fairground tomorrow night.

The mural is to go on the wall over the breakfast nook, and is said by officials to be the first of its kind ever to be put in a home.

Mr. Purdy is from Louisville, and is a member of the mural painting class of Henrick Mayer at the John Herron Art Institute.

Nashville Artist Wins

Floyd Bailey, Nashville, was successful with his fireplace design, which also is to be included in the home, called the "Electrohome," and which is the centerpiece of the exhibit.

The kitchen is designed with a round corner and a built-in bench that can serve as a breakfast corner or a work bench. The mural for the nook is amusing rather than serious and the colors will blend with the pale tan of the walls and the bright yellow cushions.

The fireplace mural is a simple geometric pattern which gives the impression of carving.

Selection of wall paper for the model home was made from the stock of the Acme Wall Papers, Inc., Wright said. The paper selected for the dining room is described by E. L. Osborne, president of the Acme company, as being a romantic and intriguing wall decoration from the French and Colonial period. It is titled "A June Day" and gives the impression of mural paintings.

French Colonial Paper

The living room paper selected is a yellow and ivory stripe pattern and the hall paper is a French Colonial floral design of red and green figures on a white background which gives an inviting appearance to the entrance.

One of the features of the "Electrohome" is the Normandie room, which was designed to serve as a book room or a guest room. However at the show the room will be furnished as a bedroom by Banner-Whitehall Co.

The walls of the Normandie room are paneled of dark mahogany with the panels running horizontally. The ceiling is celotex to provide a quiet, atmosphere.

Connecting the Normandie room with a bath is a wardrobe which has provisions for clothing. Drawers for shirts and underwear, racks for ties and shoes with shelves for hats line the walls of the connecting passageway.

Fixtures Are White.

The bathroom is furnished with white fixtures. The walls are painted light green and buff and the floor tiles are dark green. The lavatory stands before a full-length mirror. Shelves of dark glass are in the corner to the left of the mirror for toilet articles.

Miss Colleen Moore, motion picture actress who has been exhibiting her doll house at L. S. Ayres & Co., is to be a guest at the opening dinner of the Home Show tomorrow night in the Indianapolis Athletic Club.

COUNTY TO ASK BOND ISSUE FOR BRIDGE REPAIRS

$15,000 Estimated Cost of Work on 3 Projects; Survey Scheduled.

The County Commissioners are to ask a bond issue for emergency repairs to three of the county's bridges, John S. Newhouse, president of the board, said today.

The most important to be repaired is Southport covered bridge over White River on the new Belt Highway. It may be necessary to close this bridge for two weeks to effect repairs, the Commissioner said.

Built in 1868 to handle a load of 10 tons, the capacity is now limited to two tons. Some of the main timbers have so badly decayed that it is possible to remove pieces by hand, Herbert Bloemker, county surveyor said.

It was repaired after the 1913 flood with concrete and steel pilings, but now the end members have rotted, the surveyor said.

Another county bridge, that over Indian Creek just south of Sunny-side, needs new underpinning and refilling and should be widened, according to the surveyor.

The other is the Olin-ay bridge. This bridge is now closed and needs a new floor, Mr. Bloemker said. It forms an entrance to the new West Side park, plans for which are now being prepared by the city, Mr. Bloemker said.

Repairs to all three bridges are to cost an estimated $15,000, but it will not be possible to determine a definite figure until an engineering survey is made, he said.

The County Council and the State Tax Board have indicated their approval of the bond issue when it is prepared, Mr. Newhouse said.

City Work to Start

The Works Progress Administration shortly is to begin repair of the W. 10th-st. bridge over White River, according to Carl Kortepeper, assistant supervisor of operations for the Sixth district WPA organization.
