

CANZONERI RANKS AMONG ALL-TIME GREATS, JOE SAYS

Italian Placed Little Below Veteran Aces

McLarnin Victory Doesn't Add Much to Tony's Favor, However.

BY JOE WILLIAMS
Times Special Writer
NEW YORK, May 11.—Mr. Ed McNamara, the actor man was talking . . . "I see by your column you consider Tony Canzoneri one of the great lightweights of all time. Just how would you rank him? I mean in comparison with Joe Gans and the other old timers."

This presented an interesting problem. Just how would you rank the walloping Italian? In the first glow of excitement as a result of his spectacular victory over the heavier Jimmy McLarnin, a critic might be pardoned for ranking him very close to the top. But analyzing the victory in calmer mood it becomes less monumental.

At the risk of distressing the Canzoneri following, it must be admitted he didn't whip much, though his performance in every respect was strictly first rate. McLarnin was little more than ordinary. The year's layoff made him a fumbling, uncertain, inept opponent. His timing was miserable, his tactics amateurish. Throughout the fight he was a bewildered stooge for every Canzoneri stratagem, rising to the lure of every bait.

And yet from the second round on, Canzoneri was in such complete command of every situation that it is quite conceivable he might have won just as decisively if McLarnin had come into the ring in the best possible fighting trim. But this is theory. The established fact is he won over a blurred carbon copy of the real McLarnin—a McLarnin who certainly wouldn't have gone the distance against, say, Barney Ross.

NOW if this is true, how would you rank Canzoneri? You would hesitate somewhat, wouldn't you, before you put him alongside Joe Gans, Kid Lavigne or Benny Leonard, the three lightweights most popularly grouped as the supreme leaders of the division? If you agree, then, that these three are out, would you place him fourth, fifth, sixth or just where? It's a difficult decision to make because it so happens the lightweight division has produced more really great fighters than any other. Just run over the list. Besides Gans, Lavigne and Leonard, there were Jack McAuliffe, Frank Erne, Battling Nelson, Al Volgast and Willie Ritchie and the aforementioned Ross, who, incidentally, beat Canzoneri for the championship. Where does Tony fit in this group?

Playing it safe, I'd say he doesn't belong at the top, nor yet at the bottom. He might have beaten Erne. Over the present-day short route he would have beaten Nelson, and possibly Ritchie. Volgast might have proved too tough and rough for him, though this, like the others, is mere speculation.

PERHAPS it is sufficient glory for Canzoneri to be named in the same group with these fine old-timers. Admittedly, there have been few better fighters, pound for pound, than the tousled-headed Latin, who came up from bootblack row in New Orleans. And no one can say he hasn't sustained to the fullest the heroic traditions of the lightweight guild.

Shires to Handle Main Go Tussle

Art Named Referee of Mat Feature Tomorrow.

The services of Art Shires have been obtained to referee the wrestling encounter between "Dynamite" Gus Sonnenberg and the "Black Secret" tomorrow night at the Armory. Matchmaker Lloyd Carter of the Hercules A. C. announced today.

Shires, a former major league baseball player, is recognized as one of the most capable mat officials ever to appear here. The tussle is for two falls out of three with a 90-minute time limit and is a "big league" test for the "Secret" who has gone undefeated in eight bouts and has triumphed over such well known grapplers as Tom Marvin, Otto Kuss and Leo Numa.

Sonnenberg formerly was undisputed world's heavyweight champion. Gus scales 210 and the hooded matman, 220.

Tomorrow night's semi-windup pits Big Boy Davis, 240, Columbus, O., against George Koverly, 220, Minneapolis. Eddie Newman, 220, Jewish heavy from New York, tackles Otto Kuss, 228, in the opener at 8:30.

Bottema's home run and Mueller's triple featured the losers' attack. While Nevitt led Beanblossoms with three hits. Leon Tailoring took the measure of Rector's Grocery, 10 to 6, in a game halted by rain after six innings.

School United Soccer Club to three as Field's Tavern triumphed, 16 to 3, in the Elm-Roe Senior League. Fashion Cleaners also won, 13 to 1, with Copp, Decker and Egan giving up only three hits. Bennett Coal trounced So-Athlet, 24 to 5, and the 30th and Illinois Street Merchants won over Gullin Auto Electric, 4 to 3, in other league contests.

Brink's Incorporated leads the Big Six League after downing Inland Box, 6 to 2, while the Irvington Merchants were losing to Community Service yesterday. It was Brink's third straight victory, and was clinched when triples by Ray Nuttall and Dick Vanthant drove Longmeyer. Inland pitcher, from the box in the sixth, Battler was Ad Nuttall and Ammeter for the league leaders, and Longmeyer, Trenpohl and Perkinson for the Inlands.

2 Teams Gain High Class A Pin Positions

Indiana Wheel and Lagers Crash Top Five in City Meet.

BY BERNARD HARMON
Activities in the annual city bowling tournament, now in progress at the Parkway Alleys, will again get under way tomorrow night, no events being scheduled today.

Although teams in each of the three classes faced the ripples yesterday only two changes were registered among the top five, each occurring in Class A. Indiana Wheel and Rim Co. combined games of 882, 1026 and 955 for a 2,863 that commanded third place, while Lieber Lagers, with a 2844, went into fifth. The Lagers had games of 897, 1017 and 930.

Minor events got under way Saturday night, with some classy totals resulting. A trio of 600 scorers topped the standings of Class A, Art Rowley being in the lead with 630, Larry Langbien second with 611, and Jimmie Hurt third with 601.

Stark is fourth, with 597, and Pritchard, fifth with 595. Langbien and Johnny Goodwin are first in the Class A doubles with 1113. Perk Holtman was in fine form, taking first place in the Class B singles with 617 and sharing the lead with Degisher in the two-man event. The pair totalled 1199. Bultman was out in front in the Class C singles with a 573 total, while Putnam and Essary led the doubles with 1096.

Mounts Rolls 300
Fred Mounts of the Falls City Hi-Bros, 1936 A. B. C. champions, yesterday added a 300 game to his list of bowling accomplishments. Participating in the Derby Festival tournament in Louisville, the popular sorrel-tot produced the necessary 12 consecutive strikes in the doubles event.

Paired with Ray Roberson, Mounts opened with 213, followed with the perfect game and then tossed a 201, for a 701. Their total was 1246, good for fourth place. Mounts continued his bombardment and cracked out games of 215, 248 and 217 for a 680 in the singles, also landing in fourth place in that event. Coupled with his five-man total of 588, he assumed the all-events lead through a 1982 total.

The team play of the tourney closed Saturday, with Budweisers of St. Louis at the top. Bowes Seal Pastos and Lieber Lagers, Indianapolis teams, finished in eighth and ninth places, respectively. Doubles and singles competition will close tonight.
