TRIAL OPENS IN DEATH OF WOMAN WRITER

Piece of String Main Evidence Against Ex-Convict.

By United Press
NEW YORK, May 19.—The frayed string that curly-haired John Florenza dropped beneath the nude body of Mrs. Nancy Evans Titterton brought him into court today, charged with strangling the short story writer in her Beekman-pl apartment on Good Friday.

The 13-inch length of cord was used to tie the wrists of the wife of Lewis H. Titterton, National Broadcasting executive, when the 24-year-old ex-convict, inflamed by her quiet beauty, forced his way into her home and then left her to die in the half-filled bathtub of the apartment.

Florenza is expected to plead insanity when selection of a jury starts today.
