

NAME SCHOOL AT BOONVILLE FOR EDUCATOR

Retired Teacher, After 36
Years' Service, Given
Public Honor.

Times Special
BOONVILLE, Ind., May 28.—Many artists, teachers, scientists and writers die before their work is recognized and their names accorded rightful niches in history.

But not Miss Ella Williams, who lives a quiet and retired life in her comfortable home on a side street of this Warrick County seat.

It was in the days of the state, when the school slogan was "spare the rod and spoil the child," that Miss Williams began a teaching career which was continued for 36 years in local public schools.

School Bears Her Name
As a result of her teaching success, the name of the building in which she last taught was changed from the First Street School to the Ella Williams School.

"I don't know why they did it, even now," said Miss Williams. "It still is a surprise to me to see my name over the school door."

She came to Boonville in 1882 as a grade teacher in the old Seminary Building, situated where Ella Williams School now stands. The Seminary, now only faintly remembered by older residents, had but two rooms, though the grades ran from one to eight.

Winters Were Cold
"The building was just like a barn even though it was constructed of brick," Miss Williams said.

"In the winter one could be roasted to a turn near the fat, old stove, while if he sat in a far corner from it, he would freeze."

She taught in the building but one year, then was transferred to the Gum Street School where the present Clarke School is situated. It was here she taught primary grades for the first time.

Training at Home
Miss Williams recalls that a special German teacher was employed by the school so that children might learn the language spoken by their elders.

"And manual training—my, we had nothing like that," she said. "Boys were taught all about carpentry helping to build barns and houses. And the girls learned domestic science right in their mothers' kitchens."

There were several other teachers in the old Gum Street School who stayed in the profession as long as I did—C. E. Clarke, for whom the Clarke School was named, and Charles A. Roberts, who retired in 1922.

Became Teacher at 18
It was while she was on vacation in 1921, three years after her retirement, that the School Board, acting on numerous requests, officially changed the school's name to Ella Williams.

A graduate of Moravian Boarding School, Hope, Ind., Miss Williams entered the teaching profession in Johnson, Shelby and Bartholomew Counties at the age of 18. She has not lost contact with the schools and still attends parent-teacher meetings.

"The building was just like a barn, with of Abraham Lincoln, and another of herself are her gifts to the school that bears her name."
