

June Presents Full Schedule of Weddings

Four Couples Choose 13th as Date for Nuptials.

June, traditional month of brides, presents a full schedule of weddings this year.

Nuptials are to be read in many of the Indianapolis churches during the month, while home weddings have been announced by a number of local young couples.

Miss Josephine McElhany, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. McElhany, is to be among the first brides of the month. She is to be married Thursday in the McKee Chapel, Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, to Norman L. Hanna, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Hanna, Cincinnati.

Wedding Next Sunday
Miss Rebekah Shideler is to be married next Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Shideler, "Four Winds" in Brendenwood, to C. Lawrence Price Jr. Mr. Price is the son of Mr. and C. Lawrence Price, Dr. Ambrose Dunkel is to perform the ceremony. On June 10 Miss Janet Marie Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Guy Bradley, is to be married to Donaldson Brown, son of Charles Brown, Logansport. The wedding is to be at the Tabernacle Presbyterian Church.

Christ Church is to be the scene of the wedding of Miss Lillian Belle Steinmetz to A. Elwood Tarr, June 12. Miss Steinmetz is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward L. Steinmetz, and Mr. Tarr is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred M. Tarr.

Select June 13

Four weddings of prominent young people are scheduled for June 13. Miss Margaret Jones, Fort Wayne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lucell Jones, is to be married in the Wayne Street Methodist Church, Fort Wayne, to Charles W. Moore, Indianapolis, son of Mrs. Charles W. Moore, Rosemond, Pa., formerly of Indianapolis.

On the same day, Miss Delma Vestal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Vestal, is to be married at the Irvington Methodist Church to Charles Franklin Rohm, Cleveland. Mr. Rohm is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rohm.

Miss Marjorie Meek also has chosen June 13 as her wedding date. She is to be married to D. Forrest Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Bowman, at the Irvington Presbyterian Church. Miss Meek is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer G. Meek.

Chapel Chosen by Two Others

Miss Mary E. Frey is to be married on the same day in the McKee Chapel, Tabernacle Presbyterian Church, to Russell V. Barton, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Barton. The McKee Chapel is to be the scene of another wedding June 19, when Miss Louise Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Merrick, is to be married to Robert D. Beckmann, son of Mrs. Philip S. Brown.

Miss Mildred Warner will be married in Third Christian Church June 20 to John G. Turnbull, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Turnbull. Miss Warner is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Millard V. Warner.

A garden wedding has been scheduled June 22, when Miss Barbara Oakes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mansur Oakes, is to be married to Charles Wendell Taylor in the garden of the Oakes' home. Mr. Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Taylor.

Nuptial in New York

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Zeller are to attend the wedding of their daughter, Miss Eleanor Zeller, New York, to Jerome C. McGehee, New York, at the Park Avenue Presbyterian Church in New York City June 27. Miss Zeller formerly lived in Indianapolis, and Mr. McGehee formerly lived in Montgomery, Ala.

Two other weddings are scheduled for the same day. Miss Mary Jewell Fargo, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chancellor C. Fargo, is to be married June 27 to Berkeley Wilson Duck Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Berkeley W. Duck. The ceremony is to be held in the Second Presbyterian Church.

Miss Emma Lou Lutz is to be married the same day to Dudley M. Hutcheson, son of Mrs. Henry Albert Hutcheson, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Draper Lutz.

LATEST FASHIONS FROM LOCAL SHOPS

BY MARJORIE BINFORD WOODS

FADS have no place in riding clothes, believes Mrs. Margaret Abraham Peore, widely known in this part of the country as an accomplished horse woman.

Mrs. Peore (shown above with her horse, Bachelor King), recently opened the Fairground School of Equitation and is in a position to give counsel to all riding aspirants.

One of her pet dislikes is a feminine rider flying along in flapping sleeveless jackets or combinations of loud colors that are enough to frighten any self-respecting horse!

"Almost more than any other sport, there are definite clothes and colors for riding," Mrs. Peore says. "Any deviation from them makes the rider look sadly out of place and is generally impractical on some count or other."

Here we see her in correct riding apparel. She has selected a white salt sack riding coat with the slenderizing Kentucky jodhpurs of beige cavalry twill, made exclusively by Meyers. Her shirt is dark brown with a four-in-hand tie of brown crepe decorated with tiny white horse heads. Brown jodhpur shoes, matching sports hat of felt and yellow pigskin gloves complete the outfit.

In discussing riding clothes, Mrs. Peore doesn't refer to habits seen in show ring riding, for there are numerous other rules that govern the formality of dress on those occasions. "I'm discussing habits for the girl of moderate income who rides perhaps once or twice a week, or one who is just thinking of taking it up and is not well acquainted with the ins and outs."

She counsels that one is always safe in sticking to tans and browns in jodhpurs and she points to the new Kentucky jodhpurs without the peg top as the more comfortable and becoming, rather than breeches and boots. Riding coats may be of checks or plaids in brighter blending colors. If a riding coat seems out of the question, then complete informality should be attained. A simple cotton shirt with rolled sleeves or a knitted polo shirt in conservative colors will do.

"Of course, if you plan a vacation on a dude ranch," Mrs. Peore adds, "you'll see smart women wearing loud shirts, regular blue denim jeans and high-heeled cowboy boots. Fit your riding habit to the occasion and the locale in which you intend to ride."

Mrs. Meyer Weeps, and for Good Reason, as Mate Scores Third Speedway Triumph

BY HELEN LINDSAY

A WIFE'S tears baptized the third victory of Lou Meyer, winner of the 1936 Speedway classic. While the crowd cheered and applauded as he swept by the checkered flag, Mrs. Meyer dropped her face into her hands, and sobbed.

For hours she had remained almost motionless in the front row seat of the paddock box, where she was surrounded by other drivers' wives and racing attaches' wives. Even when the last grueling eight laps were being run, and the sound of the announcer's voice came over the loud speaker, revealing that the race nearly was run, she continued her silent, restrained attitude.

All about her, other wives discussed the possibility of the gas lasting throughout the race. Standing behind Mrs. Meyer, Mrs. Lawson Harris, wife of Meyer's riding mechanic, joked with a friend in the next box.

"You bet we'll celebrate if Lou wins!" she said.

Mrs. Meyer turned her head from the track, and gazed stolidly at the floor. Hundreds of miles away, in California, her 4-year-old son was waiting to hear the results. In the next box were Mrs. Babe Stapp, Mrs. Rex Mays and Mrs. Tony Gulotta.

SUDDENLY the car driven by Rex Mays, in fifth place, was called out of the race. "Out of gas!"

Indignation was revealed in the remarks of the drivers' wives. "I guess these racing officials are satisfied now," one leaned over to the track, as if determined to keep from watching the cars flashing by. But as each one came into view in front of the paddock box, she jerked her head up quickly, to catch the number. When the car numbered 8 raced by, with her husband at the wheel, she half-rose from her chair, and watched it speed down the track.

Back it came again, to leap by the blue car, and she smiled there was only one more lap to go. Both driver and mechanic raised their hands in triumphant salute to their wives as they passed.

A DOZEN hands flashed into the air, their index and middle fingers crossed in the traditional symbol of "good luck." "Look, June, we're pulling for Lou!" Mrs. Stapp said. Mrs. Meyer smiled at Mrs. Stapp and dropped her head again. The others leered on tip-toes on their chairs, to watch the finish, but she remained seated.

A few seconds later, Meyer speeded by the checkered flag, the winner. Mrs. Meyer dropped her head into her hands and wept. Her shoulders shook convulsively, and other drivers' wives, gamely concealing their disappointment at their own husbands' failure to win, crowded about to congratulate her. A few minutes later Mrs. Meyer regained her composure and hurried out of the paddock to cross the track and greet her husband. Twice before she had seen him win the great 500-mile classic.

"She never was this nervous before," a friend explained, and then, confidentially:

"You see, she's expecting another baby in September."

MY DAY

By Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sunday.—Some one sent me a cartoon not long ago of a gentleman sitting at the telephone in a newspaper office, looking extremely wild because I was reporting that nothing of interest had happened for my column that day.

I doubt if the cartoonist knew that I am often looking forward to a day when I will do nothing, and therefore have nothing to chronicle as far as comings and goings are concerned. It will be interesting to see whether one's mind stagnates as well as one's body.

This Memorial Day and Sunday in the country have had some activity. The skies were gray and it was more like autumn than summer, but that made it all the pleasanter for exercise. After going on a hike I had a glimpse of my grandchildren. They are delighted at the prospect of having the horses and their own dogs here by the end of the week, when they return to Hyde Park for good.

I sat for some time with my mother-in-law who is going to sit up tomorrow and insists that the next day she is going to dinner downstairs in a wheel-chair. The doctor tells her she is a most cheerful patient and is taking this whole thing very well.

She, with the philosophy which comes from her early bringing up, I am sure, insists that she is quite comfortable and that she has her lovely trees to look at, and an oriole, which came twice yesterday and perched on the branch of a tree outside her window just so she could have a good look at him.

She told me once, that in her youth her father used to say they complained, "all weather is good weather." When they said they had not had time to do a certain thing, one of his aunts always remarked, "You had all the time there was." A good basis for philosophy in later life.

I read Mr. Heywood Brown's column on tolerance with joy. Nothing is more irritating than some one who agrees with every one he happens to be thrown with. Once that was called "being all things to all men," but I think some of us have found that you can not be all things to all men and remain anything yourself.

So more power to you, Mr. Brown, may you always be sure of what you think and continue to be as courageous in expressing it. My trouble is that I am not always sure of what I think.

A peaceful Sunday in Hyde Park, and back to Washington on the midnight.

Pool at Hoosier Athletic Club to Be Open Daily for Summer

The Hoosier Athletic Club's swimming pool is to be open daily throughout the summer for mixed swimming. Dr. Paul Kernell, athletic director, announced today. Under the new policy, members and their families may swim from June 15 to Sept. 15.

Marking the opening of the pool, a swimming party is being arranged for this month. Other parties and social events also have been arranged for this month at the club. Nightly parties are to be held on the roof garden, which was opened formally Saturday. Club parties on the roof are to be under direction of Thomas W. Kercheval, entertainment committee chairman.

Guest night activities are to be directed by Peter B. James, club manager. New members are to be welcomed at a dance June 24. Women's guild, Booster Club and the Woman's Athletic Club committees are arranging parties this month for picnics and outings at Kameh Lake. The Women's Athletic Club is to give its annual outing at the lake June 21. Miss Marcia B. Kinder, president, announced today. Swimming, hiking, games and a barbecue supper are scheduled. Committee members are Misses Edith Ambuhl, Helena Wanner, Betty McMahon, Mildred Kinkbinner, Virginia Fellingner, LaVerne Phillips, Leona Wiemar and Margaret Rudbeck.

Business meetings are to be held by the club's board of directors and the women's guild this month, and guild members are to elect officers Thursday.

The Boosters Club is to entertain new members and women guests June 21, with informal dancing entertainment. Mrs. Virgil Rupp is to have charge of the final meeting of the contract bridge group. A special meeting to organize for next year is to be held this month.

A monthly social dance is to be held on the roof by younger club members. A committee is to be named tonight.

A business man's gym class, instruction in fencing for beginning and advanced students, and dancing lessons for women are to be arranged.

ALLIANCE ELECTS ALDRICH AS HEAD

Prof. Clide E. Aldrich, Butler University, is the newly elected president of the Alliance Francaise.

Other officers are Mrs. W. L. Richardson, first vice president; Edward J. Meunier, second vice president; A. W. Shumaker, third vice president; Miss Jean Hampton, secretary; Mrs. Jacqueline Ulbrich, treasurer, and L. A. Tolle, librarian. The Saturday luncheons are to be continued by the alliance throughout the summer months at the Washington.
