HELD AS WITNESS IN PENNY DEATH

Mrs. Alma Louise McCleary Makes Statement About Alleged Stoning to Prosecutor Spencer.

Mrs. Alma Louise McCracken McCleary, 24, was held today as a material witness in connection with the alleged fatal stoning of John M. Penny, an Indianapolis truck driver, March 7, 1935, near Belleville.

Mrs. McCleary, alias Ruth Miller, made a statement to Prosecutor Herbert M. Spencer Saturday, a few hours after a Criminal Court jury convicted Harry F. Peats, union official, of voluntary manslaughter in the Penny death.

Peats, business agent of Teamsters and Chauffeurs Local 138, was charged with "aiding and abetting" the alleged slaying. Emmett Joseph Williams, recording secretary of the union, was acquitted.

Mrs. McCleary, named George Haygood, a state witness in the Peats and Williams trial, and Victor Crickmore, who is to be tried soon on murder charges, as those who stoned the Penny truck.

Statement is Released
Her statement in part, as released by Mr. Spencer, follows:

"On March 7, 1935, Gerald (George) Haygood came to the cafe for me about 9:30 p. m. I was living at 621 E. New York-st at the time. We picked up Crickmore and then drove to the home of Mary Freels. (Mary Freels also a state witness in the Peats and Williams trial, is in custody of the prosecutor as a material witness.)

"Mary Freels went to get some one to stay with her babies and we drove down to Eagle Creek and Haygood and Crickmore picked up some rocks. I didn't know where we were going at the time. They put the rocks in the back of the car. We returned to Mary Freels' home and got her.

"We drove out some road... and we drove along until we saw a truck. They had certain trucks they wanted to rock. They would pass the truck and then turn around and come back and throw rocks at them."

Refers to Stoning
Referring to the alleged Penny stoning, Mrs. McCleary said, "I heard glass break and then both of the boys said, 'We sure got that windshield.'"

The day following the Penny stoning, Haygood look Mrs. McCleary to Louisville, the young woman said. Penny died March 10 in Methodist Hospital here.

Prosecutor Spencer received a telegram from Mrs. McCleary in Jasper, Ind., Friday night as Chief Deputy Prosecutor Oscar C. Hagamier was making his closing argument to the jury.

She said in the telegram she would arrive at the prosecutor's office Saturday morning. Mrs. McCleary said her mother, Mrs. Ethel McCracken, West Baden, persuaded her to surrender. Mrs. McCleary and Mrs. Freels are charged in an indictment with accessory after the fact.

Peats is to be sentenced formally

PERIOD OF RAIN PREDICTED FOR FUTURE YEARS

Present Dry Era Phase of Weather Cycle, Study of Records Shows.

Times Special

WASHINGTON, July 20.—When the present drought definitely comes to an end farmers may expect a period of years with comparatively heavy rainfall, according to a 100-year survey of drought conditions in the United States made by J. B. Kincer of the United States Weather Bureau here.

Mr. Kincer, who said the present drought is only a phase of a period which began in 1830, concluded from his survey that "in planning a permanent farm program, the basic considerations should include the practical certainty that dry climatic phases, at least as severe as in the past, will recur."

He said that droughts in the United States may be divided into two general classes. In one are those of a transitory nature, affecting usually a relatively small area and of comparatively short duration, frequently lasting only a single year. The other class includes droughts which persist for long periods. The transitory type is not usually related in any way to them, he said.

Further Droughts Likely

He said that while the study of weather records has not disclosed a law to justify a forecast of future droughts, such study warns that droughts as severe as those in the past may be expected.

The report stated that prior to the minimum phase of precipitation responsible for the present "family of droughts," the last general condition of this kind was experienced in the latter part of the '80s and early '90s. Following this period there was a marked tendency for subnormal rainfall from 1886 to 1895, which culminated in the severe droughts in 1894 and 1895, the driest years of that minimum phase.

Mr. Kincer listed the "transitory drought periods" as occurring in the years 1901, in the Southwest; 1910 in the Central and Northern states; 1917, Southwest and Northern plains and in 1925 the Southwest.

"Thus for some 60 years up to 1930," he said, "there have been a

CLOSE ELECTION RESULT STUDIED

Possibility That House May
Name Next President
Believed Remote.

BY NED BROOKS
Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The admitted remote possibility that the House of Representatives will select the next President is engaging the attention of politicians.

Under the Constitution, the election would be thrown into the House only if the electoral vote failed to give a majority to any candidate. It could happen this year only if Rep. William Lemke, Union Party candidate, received enough electoral votes to prevent either President Roosevelt or Gov. Landon from polling a majority.

On his performance to date, leaders of the two major parties are not conceding any states to Rep. Lemke. They admit privately, however, that it is too early to gauge the strength of the third party movement. Its power can be judged more closely later on when the four horsemen of the Union Party—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Dr. F. E. Townsend, the Rev. Gerald L. K. Smith and Rep. Lemke—take to the hustings in their combined speaking tour.

Interest in the possibility of a House choice of a President has been stimulated by the Institute of Public Opinion poll indicating a close division of the electoral vote between President Roosevelt and Gov. Landon.

The poll gave Gov. Landon 272 electoral votes, or only six more than the required majority of 266, against 259 for President Roosevelt.

SON STABS HIS FATHER, CHARGE

Printer, 56, Is Near Death
After Quarrel in Home,
Police Say.

A 56-year-old printer was near death today from knife wounds, his wife was recovering from lacerations and his son was charged with assault and battery with intent to kill as the result of a Saturday night quarrel, police said.

Edward Loyal, 29, of 1006 W. 33d-st, was alleged to have told police he stabbed his father, Benjamin Loyal, 56, when he heard his mother scream.

The son was brought to City Hospital as his father lay on the operating table. Asked to identify his son as the assailant, the elder Mr. Loyal reportedly said: "I never saw that man before in my life."

Thrown Against Piano, Claim

The mother, Mrs. Minnie Loyal, said she was cut on the scalp when her husband threw her against a piano, police reported.

Edward was ordered out of the house by his father, police said, but returned when he heard his mother's screams. The son said, according to police, that he stabbed his father with a butcher knife when the latter threatened him with a chair.

Mrs. Betty Green, 36, of 1006 Congress-av, who, police said, was in the house during the quarrel, was held under high bond as a material witness.

Police said charges against young Loyal would be continued in Municipal Court until physicians determined whether his father would recover.
