

TENTATIVE U. S. APPROVAL GIVEN ROAD PROGRAM

$6,000,000 Federal Aid Plan Submitted by State Highway Body.

Tentative approval of the $6,000,000 Federal aid highway improvement program submitted to the United States Bureau of Public Roads by the Indiana State Highway Commission was announced today by James D. Adams, commission chairman.

Cost of the paving, grading, surfacing, bridges and grade separations included in the program is to be borne equally by Indiana and the Federal government, Mr. Adams said.

Projects include grading and paving of 2.31 miles of Road 29 between W. 38th-st and Kessler-blvd and paving of three sections of Road 67 southeast of Indianapolis. Paving, surfacing and grading on 162.43 miles of state highways, 22 bridges and five grade separations are included. Federal funds involved amount to $3,007,613 and must be matched by the state, Mr. Adams explained.

Changes Now Necessary

"These projects mark a continuation of the improvement safety programs inaugurated by the commission three years ago," Mr. Adams said, "and are of primary importance in modernization of Indiana's state highway system to meet present-day and future traffic needs."

Plans for some of the projects have been completed, and plans for the remainder are being hurried to completion, the commissioner said, because all plans receive final approval from the United States Bureau of Roads before bids are taken and contracts awarded.

Project Completion Cited

Some of the projects in the 1936-37 Federal-aid program are for the completion of work started as part of the 1935-36 program, Mr. Adams said.

Projects included in the program are:

- Paving 13 miles, Road 30, Indiana's first divided-lane highway, and construction of five grade separations.
- Paving 14 miles, Road 9, in Jackson and Bartholomew Counties.
- Surfacing 18 miles, Road 44, between Shelbyville and Rushville.
- Surfacing 14.8 miles, Road 62, between Charlestown and New Washington.
- Paving 12.8 miles, Road 3, between North Vernon and Westport.
- Paving 15.8 miles, Road 67, between Anderson and Muncie.
- Grading and paving 2.2 miles, Road 31, north from Fort to eliminate the present hazardous curves.

Local Teacher-Artist Is in Revolution-Torn Spain

Washington Instructor Has Cabled No Word to Her Family.

Miss Frances Failing, Washington High School art teacher, went to a small seaport town on the northwest coast of Spain to paint, and today finds herself in the midst of a civil war.

Mrs. W. I. Failing, her mother, with whom she lives at 3515 N. Pennsylvania-st, said that she had not received a letter from her daughter since actual hostilities broke out, and that she cabled her daughter several days ago, but had received no answer.

"She believes that strict censorship is the reason for her failure to hear from her daughter."

"Rebel forces are striking at Madrid from the North, and Vigo, where Miss Failing is spending the summer, is in the center of the revolution-torn area."

Miss Failing taught in a school just outside London last year, after being chosen as an exchange teacher. She is a prominent local artist, having exhibited paintings at the John Herron Art Institute and the Lyman Art Gallery.

POLICE DOG IS SLAIN; ATTACKED 11 OTHERS

Several Persons Also Threatened Before Animal Is Shot.

A police dog that bit 11 dogs and attempted to attack several persons on the North Side last night was killed by police. The head is to be examined for rabies.

The dog, police said, roamed between 47th and 57th-sts on Illinois Meridian and Pennsylvania-sts. One woman is reported to have escaped from the dog by running into the house and slamming a screen door.

Locarno Powers Meet Today to Discuss New Peace Setup

Future of Europe for Years to Come Hinges on Outcome of Parleys Sponsored by British.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—Upon the series of international conferences scheduled to begin today in London depends the future of Europe probably for decades to come.

Deliberately turning her back upon the humiliating diplomatic defeat of modern help France if attacked still stood.

Now France wants Britain to make it permanent, with or without Germany. But Foreign Minister Anthony Eden objects. For Britain, France and Belgium formally to agree to continue on the basis of the existing pacts, he feels, would be regarded by Germany as nothing less than a triple alliance aimed at her.

And Mr. Eden is adamant against such alliances until every other way out has been tried and found wanting. He is convinced another world war is just ahead unless almost superhuman efforts are made to head it off. England has assumed the leadership in these efforts.

Second Parley Planned

It was so she would have a free hand to tackle this job that Britain dropped Ethiopia. She knew what it would mean to her in loss of prestige the world over. But so grave does she view the European situation that there was nothing left for her to do.

After the meeting scheduled to begin today, Mr. Eden plans to invite Germany and Italy to a second conference. If that works out a third gathering will be held—a European round-table or sort of second Versailles, to consolidate the peace of the old world.

If all efforts are vain, Britain will fall back on her armaments. These she now is building up as fast as her factories, working day and night, can turn out the material. Not until then, however, will she become a partner in a new European line-up based on the old-fashioned balance of power.

Rhineland Coup the Cause

Such is the background of the meeting of the Locarno powers—Britain, France and Belgium—today in the British capital.

Today's event had its origin in the startling coup of March 7, when German troops, without warning, marched into the Rhineland in violation of the treaties of Versailles and Locarno.

For 48 hours it was 50-50 whether there would be war. Part of the French cabinet wanted to occupy German territory and bluntly inform Hitler that when Nazi troops were pulled out of the Rhineland French troops would evacuate Nazi soil.

Uncertainty over what Britain would do in the event of war had much to do with France's hesitation. And that hesitation probably saved the peace. But France since has clamored for Britain to reaffirm the Locarno pledge to fight Germany in case of aggression.

Eden Proves Obstacle

This Britain has done, though temporarily. Last March at Geneva, Germany formally was pronounced guilty of repudiation of the Locarno agreements, and London gave Berlin to understand that the pledge to

AAA BEATEN IN SUIT TO ENJOIN MILK DEALERS

Revised Act Doesn't Give Interstate Control, Is Court Ruling.

BOSTON, July 23.—The amended AAA does not confer on the Secretary of Agriculture the right to regulate products in interstate commerce, Federal Judge Elsie H. Brewster ruled today in the so-called Boston milk suit.

Judge Brewster made this ruling in dismissing the Federal government's petition for an injunction to compel dealers to comply with the Boston milk marketing agreement. He based his decision on the now-famous Hoosac Mills case, which originated in his court and in which the United States Supreme Court subsequently ruled the AAA unconstitutional.

"Inasmuch as the court is without jurisdiction to entertain the bill in equity, the court is without power to grant the mandatory injunction prayed for, and the motion is denied," Judge Brewster stated.

Gentlemen:

I am a man.
I am a sad man.
But I am a wiser man.

I thought "Standard" prices were high--
I saved $.50 on a grease job and replaced my clutch for $18.50.

I saved $.10 on a quart of oil, and put in new bearings for $25.00.

I saved $.03 per gallon on a couple of fillings of gas, and found out I was short measured.

But now I am firmly convinced that my peace of mind and my pocketbook demand that for superior products--courteous service--and honest dealing, I stick to "Standard."

Very truly,
