

Drought-Ravaged Land? No, It's the Statehouse Lawn

The pictures above were not taken in some rural pasture land. They were taken on the Indiana Statehouse lawn. Wild and overgrown with weeds, clogged with rampant, wind-blown papers, desolate with dead shrubbery, the lawn is an eyesore to downtown Indianapolis. Picture No. 1 shows a corner of shrubbery which has become a trap for waste paper that is allowed to stay where it comes to rest. Picture No. 2 shows a weed that, even in the drought, attained the height shown in the picture, unmolested by lawn mower. It is in the middle, not on an outer edge, of the lawn. Picture No. 3 shows a shaggy part of the lawn, with weeds choking out the grass. The state entomologist early this spring advised gardeners to prune out branches of shrubbery killed by the cold weather. That has not been done at the Statehouse, and so the drabness of the winter still is carried on into the summer. Despite four or five automatic lawn sprinklers that may be seen almost any day idle on the lawn, the grass is dead in huge patches.

DON'T SCRATCH, SOOTHE THE IRRITATION

Quick relief from the maddening itch of eczema, psoriasis, poison ivy, and irritation about the rectum or personal parts is obtained by applying an ointment called Resinol. Leave it on over night. It lessens the desire to scratch, and eases the irritation.

The soothing effect of Resinol takes the sting out of the irritated parts and makes you comfortable. The skin heals sooner, too, with the help of Resinol.

The oily base of Resinol Ointment is ideal for penetrating the outer layers of the skin and securing deeper action. Bathing the affected parts first with Resinol Soap hastens the effectiveness of Resinol Ointment. Many nurses suggest and use Resinol—why don't you try it?
