

Passing of Summer Brings Return of Travelers; Many Back From Vacation Trips

Conversations Center Around Experiences at Lakes, in Europe and Various Other
Playgrounds for Wanderers.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Society Editor

We are reminded that summer is on the wane when vacationists begin tramping home. They reappear looking rugged with glowing sun-tans and bright-eyed with eagerness to tell about trips or fishing.

Mrs. William H. Krieg is one woman who bails her own hook when she fishes. She sticks to that story even if listeners are skeptical. She and Mr. Krieg with Mr. and Mrs. Noble Ropkey and Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Ballweg returned recently from Mackinac Island, Mich. The party fished in Black Lake and took frequent dips in Lake Michigan. From time to time friends and relatives visited them for holidays. Mr. Frederick W. Ballweg, Mrs. Krieg's mother, and Mrs. Stanley Gray, her sister, with Stanley Jr., joined them. So did Mrs. Norman H. Gillman and June Ann Gillman and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Shapert.

While Dr. and Mrs. Matthew Winters with their children, Matthew Jr., Jane and Barbara, were at Mongoose Lake, Ontario, all the family enjoyed fishing. They returned home late Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Hal Keeling traveled through the East and Canada for a month. They enjoyed stays at Dixville, N. H., New York, Norwich, Conn., and Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Pier came home with enthusiastic reports of the Wisconsin lodge of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Whitehill where the Piers vacationed with Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Whitehill. The Eugene Whitehills now are at Lake Wawasee, and Mrs. Pier is arranging to go to Ventnor, N. J., to visit Mrs. Thomas Mahaffey Jr. and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Watson, and sister, Miss Elizabeth Watson.

Miss Charlotte Buchanan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Buchanan, and Miss Mary Jane Hamerstadt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Hamerstadt, lead many conversations as they describe their European travel experiences.

They left Miss Joan Johnson and her party in Paris shortly before the group started for Scotland. Mr. and Mrs. John Bookwalter are back after a week and at Lake Maxinkuckee where they visited their son, Charles, enrolled in Culver Military Academy summer school. Young Charles was named for his grandfather, formerly mayor of Indianapolis.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Haerle left town yesterday headed for Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Miller, Iowa City, Ia., stopped here for a few days to visit before going to Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Irving Lemaux.

There's Romance in the Air; Air Firms' Taboos, Cupid's Ally

BY MARY MARGARET M'BRIDE
WPA Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Stewardesses and pilots on American Airline planes are not supposed to hold any unnecessary conversation with each other. They must not be seen in public together even off-duty.

These rules are meant, of course, by the practical company, to discourage romance. But pilots and stewardesses go right on marrying each other, regardless.

American Airline stewardesses also marry airport officials. And male passengers. So do the stewardesses of United and all the other airlines.

In fact, judging from records, airline stewardesses are about the marryingest young women in the whole country. At least, American Airline officials estimate that with all precautions, their stewardesses still serve only an average of a year and two months before succumbing to Cupid. United does a little better with a staying average of two years. The other airlines, which have had stewardesses only a short time, report terrifying symptoms of getting-engaged tendencies among their female employees.

Fixing the Blame
OF COURSE, come right down to it, it's the airlines' own fault. They require that a stewardess shall be easy on the eyes, tactful, charming and the possessor of lots of gumption—this to be determined by observations during trial service. How's that for a description of the perfect wife? The ideal stewardess must also weigh no more than 120 pounds, be not more than 27 years old (some lines say 25) and no taller than five feet five inches—about as high as a man's heart.

Stewardesses also must be registered nurses, not because nurses are needed so often on airplanes, but because officials have a theory that nurses' training produces an unusual understanding of discipline, dignity and self-control. Well, you know how men have always been about nurses! So that requirement means just another hazard for the company.

Four of the original six who innovated stewardess service with one airline have married, and the other two are engaged. But Laurens married the chief radio operator of her line in Chicago, W. T. Bishop, and somehow talked the company

Early Lessons in Beauty Culture Are Held Proper

BY ALICIA HART
Times Staff Writer

If your small daughter is taught the elements of beauty now, she will acquire basic training invaluable later.

This does not mean that on her fifth birthday she should be presented with a dressing table overflowing with sophisticated cosmetics. But she can learn, just as casually as she learns to wash her face, not only fundamental routines, but many of the beauty precautions that prevent blemishes from appearing.

A thorough brushing of the hair each day is simple, yet the most important method of maintaining the natural glossiness and vigorous resiliency of the hair. There is really no good reason why Little Darling should not brush her own hair, instead of having mother do it.

Mother will have to guard against excessive sunburn at the beach. Young, tender skins are very susceptible to the dangerous actinic rays that harden the skin and produce blemishes.

Nail Biting Habit
Nail-biting is a juvenile evil that a mother should suppress. It makes the cuticle tough and hard, spoils the shape of the fingers, and besides, is an unlovely habit. Occasional manicures will develop daughter's pride in the appearance of her hands. While on the subject of nails, a thought should be given to toenails—careful trimming avoids painful ingrowing.

Little girls are made of sugar and spice and everything nice, but if they stuff themselves with these pleasant ingredients too much they will grow sideways faster than they grow up. The wise parent watches her daughter's weight. If the diet is carefully checked and an abnormal overweight condition still persists without apparent cause, a physician should be consulted.

Putting should be firmly squelched. Not only will it spoil a potential Cupid's bow month, but it is an expression of silliness, no mood for a child supposed to be gaining a background of beauty.

Braid Makes Flocks
Old-fashioned white, rickrack braid makes entire summer frocks, jackets, berets, gloves, collars and since married, Charlotte Gerlach married George Backhausen, a Chicago broker whom she met in the air. Daryne Olive married Pilot Mike Matucha and Agnes Hurt married Harry Bitterman, also a pilot.

ALL but one of the original stewardesses employed by another air line in May, 1930, have since married. Charlotte Gerlach married George Backhausen, a Chicago broker whom she met in the air. Daryne Olive married Pilot Mike Matucha and Agnes Hurt married Harry Bitterman, also a pilot.

Another of the girls is the wife of a San Francisco lumber executive who travelled over her line until he persuaded her to say yes.

"Blondy" Ryan, former short stop of the New York Giants, met Kathryn Barry while flying between New York and Chicago. They were married within a few months.

Another stewardess-passenger romance culminated in the wedding of Elma Rothkath to Elmer Southard, New York certified public accountant. Stewardess Emily Diller was assigned to the Chicago-Cheyenne Division one day, met Dr. Francis McGrath, a Cheyenne doctor, in the air next month, and they were married quickly.

Miss Margaret Moore, formerly on a Chicago-to-New York air route, selected as "Flying Diana" last year, recently married James Moser, of another airline. They live in Newark.

"Many men passengers flying for the first time are scared, and they hide this by talking to the stewardesses," one stewardess explained with a blush (she's just announced her engagement to a one-time passenger). "Once they have landed, they somehow feel grateful to the stewardess; or feel, maybe, that they two have shared a great danger. Thus romance begins—and ends at the altar."

Party to Fete Local Woman Before Wedding

Misses Lucille Morrison and Frances Brumit are to be hostesses Saturday at Miss Brumit's home at a linen shower in honor of Miss Mary Phyllis Sharpe, bride-to-be.

Miss Sharpe's marriage to Clarence August Wacker is to take place at 8:30 p. m. Friday, Aug. 14, in Bethlehem Lutheran Church.

Guests are to include Mesdames Raymond G. Moore, Roger Banks, August Johnson, Morris Bartick, and Misses Virginia Strang, Emily Vilhaus, Mary Champion, Anne Vithaber and Hilda Greenberg.

TIPS ON WEARING ORCHID CORSAGES

When the bride sails away for her honeymoon, she will probably wear an orchid corsage, correctly, with stems down.

June is a big steamer month when thousands of women sail for a vacation, and, whether they are brides or not, a large majority wear corsages. Flowers on the shoulder or at the waist add to the gala and excitement. Every woman, whether she's in her tens or sixties, loves to wear flowers in her hair.

If they are orchids, she will be doubly flattered, for she knows they are the most luxurious and elegant of all flowers and also that she will be able to wear them several days if she puts them in water in a cool place.

LOCAL GIRL GUEST AT GRAND RAPIDS

Miss Rosemary Treanor, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Walter Treanor, who is visiting Miss Josephine Jones in Grand Rapids, Mich., has been honored at several parties recently.

Miss Jones entertained with a tea yesterday. Mrs. Lou G. Klesner and her daughter, Miss Mary Louise Klesner, entertained with a luncheon at the Peninsula Club and Miss Betty Beel was hostess at luncheon at the Woman's City Club.

Miss Pearce and Mr. Mower are to be married at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow.

The bridal party includes Misses Alice Wilde, Joette Yeich, Ruby Mower, Evansville, bridesmaids, and Miss Gladys Mower, Mr. Mower's sister, maid of honor; Ralph Brandt, best man; William Mullenholz, Harry Lister and James Laswell, ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Mower, parents of the bridegroom-to-be, also are to attend.

Cool Drink Recipe

A particularly good hot weather drink is the Madeira cooler (Tom Collins glass). Fill glass with crushed ice. Add about three ounces of Madeira, juice of half a lemon and a dash of orange juice. Fill with soda and add sliced fruit and fresh mint.

Frog Accessory Ornament

Heretofore the frog has had to depend upon his legs for his importance—now he has a catkin back studded with rhinestones and a pin under his simulated gold body, better to attack himself to a frock, hat or a bag.

Wooden Spoon Helpful

A wooden spoon is essential in the kitchen. It is useful for many things and for some absolutely necessary. For example, a fudge sauce should always be stirred with such a spoon and so should vegetables as rice and barley, and so should acid fruits.

Jealousy Based Upon Fancy Indicates Pathological Case, Jordan Tells Unhappy Wife

Expert Aid of Psychiatrist May Be Needed for Husband, Jane Tells Mother Who Is Distrusted by Mate.

Put your troubles in a letter to Jane Jordan, who will help you by her answers in this column.

Dear Jane Jordan—I have been happily married to a wonderful man. We were happy up until about two months ago. We have an only son three months old, and before he was born no one could have been happier than we two. It isn't that my husband doesn't like the boy. It is simply that he doesn't trust me any more. He works at night and one morning about two months ago he came home from work and accused me of having a gentleman visitor the night before. Well, it seemed that we got along during the daytime all that week, but every morning when he came home from work he insisted that I had stepped out the night before, I finally convinced him that he was wrong, but a week ago he started it all over again. My kid sister has been visiting us and he said I sent her home so that I could entertain some "boy friend." Probably you can understand how hurt I am, but can you tell me what I am going to do? I trust him completely. I never doubt his word and try to be a good mother and housewife. Please answer soon because I am nearly insane.

Talks Arranged for Meeting of Garden Society

Mrs. Thomas W. Jackson and Mrs. L. H. Ostrander are to address the Forest Hills Garden Club meeting tomorrow when Mrs. Jackson entertains at her home 527 E. 59th-st. Mrs. Jackson is to read a paper on "Flocks of Phlox" and Mrs. Ostrander's topic is to be "Among the Newer and Better Irises—Hemerocallis."

Mrs. Joe McFarland, president, is to be in charge of the meeting. Other officers are Mrs. B. F. Orr, vice president; Mrs. John Downing, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Burke Nicholas, Mrs. E. B. Rhodes and Mrs. Ross A. Smith, program and transportation committee members.

Others are Mrs. R. R. Scott and Mrs. G. E. School, lookout; Mrs. Thomas W. Jackson, exchange; Mrs. Charles V. Elcholls, publicity; Mrs. Orr, garden monitor; Mrs. Woodburn Masson, historian; Mrs. Rex P. Young, librarian; Mrs. E. H. Bach, Mrs. A. B. Cravens, Mrs. Thomas P. Rogers, flower show committee; Mrs. Young, Mrs. Orr, Mrs. Downing, home show; Mrs. McFarland, Mrs. Young and Miss Margaret Seegmiller, roadside development.

The club meetings are held monthly during the year.

Shower and Card Party Arranged for Bride-to-Be

Miss Charlotte Pasho, whose marriage to Edward L. Hansen is to take place Aug. 29 in St. Mark's Lutheran Church, is to be honored at a linen shower and bridge party to be given Saturday afternoon by Miss Martha Belle LaMar, Richmond, at Meridian Manor.

Miss LaMar is to be one of Miss Pasho's bridesmaids. Appointments and decorations for the party are to be carried out in the bridal colors of peach and aquamarine. The hostess is to be assisted by her mother, Mrs. Adam LaMar, Richmond.

Guests, with Miss Pasho and her mother, Mrs. William Pasho, are to be Misses Dorothy Lyon, Doris Slaven, Esther Hansen, Dorothy Schatz, Esther Gilmer, Dorothy Larson, June Sink and Mrs. Helen Moss.

Miss Pasho has chosen as her maid of honor, Miss Hansen, sister of the bridegroom-to-be. Miss Lyon is to be the other bridesmaid. Marilyn Gibbs is to be flower girl and Robert Bernd is to be Mr. Hansen's best man. Ushers are to be George Grieb, Stanley Hansen, Gerald Grieb and Charles Muse.

Miss Pasho is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pasho, 1902 N. Talbot-st. Mr. Hansen is the son of George A. Hansen.

I am sorry I can not help you more, but your letter contains no slight statement of the case that all I can do is ask you questions which I hope will turn your investigations into channels which may uncover more of the difficulty. After you have thought this answer over, why not write again?

ARTIFICIAL BLOND HAIR LOSES VOGUE

Whether it was the influence of Jean Harlow who has gone "brown-et" or whether the girls are only exercising their ancient feminine prerogative to change their minds, it remains a fact that artificially blond hair is losing its chic.

In a recent coiffure show introducing new hair arrangements, leading hair dressers turned thumbs down on blondined tresses.

Titan is said to be the chic shade of the moment for women who can't resist the impulse to go nature one better. This shade can be achieved, except where the hair is gray, with henna rinses which are not harmful to the hair.

Glass Table Tops

Mirrored glass and plate glass, both tinted and clear, are used increasingly as tops for small occasional tables. There are two chief tints in plate glass, flesh and blue. Among mirrored glass tints are flesh, deep blue, gunmetal and gold.

Pumice Smooths Nails

Molly Lamont uses a small amount of powdered pumice to smooth the surface of her nails when manicuring them. When this is done, the polish may be applied more evenly and will last longer.

Miss Lamont is featured in "Mary of Scotland."

Home Lights Important

To show the importance of attention to home lighting, experts have discovered that during the eight-hour working day throughout the year, artificial illumination is necessary during nearly 50 per cent of the time.
