TESTIMONY HEARD IN FARMER SLAYING

Self-Defense Angle Aided,
Officials Say.

Presentation of evidence continued today at a coroner's inquest into the death of Daniel O'Hara, 63-year-old Julietta farmer, shot Tuesday during an argument over a cow. Henry August Elkman, 53, a neighbor, is held under $2000 bond in connection with the slaying.

Officials said a verdict of justifiable homicide might be returned in light of purported testimony indicating Elkman fired in self-defense. Elkman admitted the shooting, according to officers, but said he thought O'Hara was reaching for a gun.

Deputy sheriffs claimed that O'Hara's wife, Carrie, removed a blackjack from the dead man's pocket after the shooting.

Elkman was cut on the arm by O'Hara when they started arguing over whether a neighbor's cow should be permitted to graze on Elkman's property, testimony revealed.

Elkman was given a preliminary hearing in Municipal Court yesterday and his case continued until Aug. 25.
