Etiquette

By PATRICIA

CARVING BEEFSTEAK—Separate the meat by cutting along the edge of the bone with the thin point of the knife. Then, beginning with the wide or bone end and following the grain of the meat, divide the steak into sections an inch or more wide.

In porterhouse and similar beefsteaks, the tenderloin and the wider sections of the steaks are most tender and have the finest flavor and texture. For this reason steaks of this kind are carved in small sections and a serving of a portion of the finer quality meat with one of less choice is given to each person.

LEG OF LAMB—Place the roast on the platter with the small end to the left of the carver and the curved side of the leg uppermost. Hold the meat with the fork firmly in the center muscle. Cut thin slices downward across the grain of the meat to the bone. Insert the point of the knife beneath and cut along the surface of the bone to release them.

Wolcott Pastor to Officiate at Cousin's Wedding

The Rev. Leonard Watson, Wolcott Methodist Church pastor, came here to officiate at the marriage of his cousin, Robert L. Goodwin, and Miss Lois Hunter at 2:30 p. m. today. The ceremony is to take place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter.

The bride is to be given in marriage by her father. Her white satin gown has long sleeves and a tailored collar, and her tulle veil is of fingertip length. Her bouquet is to be of white roses.

Miss Ada Hading, maid of honor, is to wear a coral crepe gown and carry Talisman roses. Leroy Clouse is to be best man.

The couple is to leave on a trip following a reception.

Devotes Time to Friends and Wardrobes Before Leaving; 'Be Sure to Write' Is Byword

Eastern Schools Beckon Many, From City; Large Delegation Goes to Connecticut; Party Planned for Tonight.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Society Editor

THERE'S time enough to be concerned about studies, the college set believes. Right now, it's more to the student's liking to keep busy replenishing wardrobes, seeing friends before they leave and enjoying parting attentions of families and friends.

Miss Katherine Myer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myer, is Dawes House president on the Smith College campus and she is to return earlier than most students to welcome the residents. Misses Maude and Virginia Balke, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Balke, also are to be at Smith. Miss Betty Tharp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Tharp, is to begin her senior year and Miss Patricia Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Jones, is to return as a junior.

Miss Myer is to motor East with her brothers, Walter and Joseph Myers, who are to re-enter Yale. William Koehne, son of Mrs. Louise Schellschmidt Koehne, and Frank Powell also are to be Yale upper-classmen.

A large delegation of girls is bound for Connecticut College for Women. Among them are Miss Mary Stewart Kurtz, daughter of Mrs. Maude R. Kurtz; Misses Joan Metzger, Mary Sheerin Kuhn, Dorothy Barlow, Dorothy Braden, Laura Sheerin and Barbara Haines.

Miss Haines, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morris Haines, is to leave on Sept. 17 for Buffalo, N. Y., to visit a classmate, Miss Virginia Deuel, before classes open.

Entertain Students

"Be sure you write" will figure often in the conversations of Miss Katharine Porter's guests tonight.

at the Indianapolis Country Club. Miss Porter, who is to return to Sweet Briar College, is to have Miss Ardith Mettenet, Chicago, a former Tudor Hall classmate; Miss Kurtz, Miss Jane Zimmer, Foster Clippinger Jr., Noble Dean Jr., William Piel and Richard McDuffee, all college students, as her guests. Miss Mettenet, Miss Porter's house guest, is studying art at the Chicago Institute.

Miss Dora Sinclair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Richardson Sinclair, is to begin her senior year at Vassar College. Among her local classmates are to be Misses Barbara Hickman, Carolyn Stelck, Harriet Jane Holmes, Marynette Hiatt, Mary Louise Merrell, Helen Taggart and Mary Alice Buskirk, Bloomington. Miss Buskirk is a Tudor Hall graduate and attended Indiana University last year.

Introducing

The Family Doctor

Giving The Times Readers a Complete Medical Guide

One New Chapter Every Day

NEWSPAPER health columns of the past have been conducted on the hit-and-miss principle. One day chicken pox, next day falling hair, next day falling arches.

A year ago, The Times' medical authority, Dr. Fishbein, started a new idea in health columns, taking one subject at a time and discussing it thoroughly. First came an extended series on diet. Following this a series on child health. Both ideas were instant successes.

NOW comes Dr. Fishbein's newest series, "The Family Doctor." It really isn't a series. Each column will stand alone, without reference to the previous day's or the next day's release. The entire group of columns, however, if saved and collected in book form, will comprise the most complete and up-to-date medical encyclopedia ever published. In book form, this work might well cost from $10 to $15. Yet newspapers handling the column may give it to their readers, free with the daily paper.

THOUSANDS of new health facts are discovered every year. Medical science now makes more progress in a year than in decades of the past century. Keeping up with this advance, even as it relates to the illnesses in the average home, becomes a problem. "The Family Doctor" is the solution of that problem. It is health news and health advice at the same time.

WRITTEN by Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association and national spokesman for the medical profession, "The Family Doctor" will be of unquestionable authority. Dr. Fishbein has written and edited countless magazine articles and many books, and delivered hundreds of lectures on subjects relating to health. His campaign against medical quacks has won wide acclaim. Dr. Fishbein's name, as author of "The Family Doctor," assures newspaper readers of the high ethical standards with which the column will be conducted.
