

FORMER PASTOR WARNS OF THREAT TO UNITED STATES' NEUTRALITY

War Processes at Work Again, Dr. Unruh Says

Fighting Fever Could Be Spread in 2 Weeks, He Asserts.

BY SAM TYNDALL

Asserting that a propaganda campaign in two weeks could turn the American public in favor of participation in another war, Dr. E. J. Unruh, former Central Universalist Church pastor, today warned that "every institution of human civilization will be imperiled unless the United States adopts a sane foreign policy and enters into a more wholesome co-operation with other nations."

Dr. Unruh, who returned recently from a trip to study international relations in Europe and the Orient, said "unless the intelligent leadership realizes that the 1914 process which led us into the World War, is under way again, the world will be embroiled in another international conflict."

"Step-by-step, we see the causes which resulted in the last war, in progress today. They are the increase in economic activity and the struggle for the balance of power which was led to an armament race," he said.

Says Neutrality Impossible

"It is impossible for the United States to remain economically neutral or isolated in the next war and the only way to prevent one is the inauguration, on the part of all nations, and including the United States, of a more intelligent economic co-operation and a new economic alignment which would result in a freer access for raw materials for Japan, Italy and Germany."

Dr. Unruh, who left the ministry some time ago for work with the Midwest Council on International Relations, said the present distortion in economic relations between nations is evident not only in Europe, but also in the Orient.

"This 1914 process, the armament race, as result of this economic alignment, which would result in a freer access for raw materials for Japan, Italy and Germany, later will lead one of the depraved powers to aggression and another war, one which would bankrupt all participating powers," he said.

Protection Necessary

He also said the United States could not stay out from the point of economics because the nation must protect its industry and agriculture.

"We must have a healthy international trade," he said. "Causes would be manufactured, and propaganda activities would lead us to participate in military activities within two weeks' time."

"If we were to isolate ourselves, we further would paralyze industry, agriculture and increase unemployment. We can't stay economically neutral unless the government controlled industries as it does in a Fascist state."

"If we should stay out of the next war and assume the world markets, we would become the most powerful economic power in the world only to have all the Europe later aligned against us to regain markets."

Dr. Unruh pointed out that one of the most important factors leading to another great conflict was the economic injustices created by settlement of the last war. He said that such injustices intensified economic nationalism—an attempt by a nation to make itself economically independent.

World Markets at Stake

"It has made it almost necessary for some nations to launch a progressive campaign to gain access to needed raw materials and foreign markets, and those nations most threatening peace today are those lacking access to raw materials and world markets," he said. He cited Germany, Italy and Japan as examples.

"The last war, the drawing into two camps and the concentration of economic resources to bring the war to a successful end, took these countries off the world market," he said.

"The withdrawal of European industry and commerce from world markets left the markets to America and Japan and these two countries began to expand their industrial facilities to meet the markets deserted by European industries."

"The expansion was by means of bank credit, and the post-war scramble on the part of European countries to regain these markets began, demands for American goods declined and we dropped to below 65 per cent of production."

College of Religion

Enrollment Higher

A style show featuring old-fashioned dresses is to be held by the women's club of St. Joan of Arc Catholic Church Wednesday in the Cathedral school hall. Women of the parish are to wear old-fashioned clothes. All are eligible for prizes.

'1914 FEVER' HAS GRIP ON EUROPE, DECLARES DR. UNRUH

Describing the sequence of events that led to the World War, of which scenes like that pictured above may recall, Dr. E. J. Unruh, former pastor, Central Universalist Church, said that the same "1914 Process" was under way today and that a propaganda campaign could involve the United States in foreign military activities within two weeks' time.

Dr. Unruh, who recently returned from the Orient, urged a more intelligent economic co-operation between nations as a possible means of clearing present war clouds in Europe and the Orient.
