Indianapolis Athletic Club Opens Winter Social Season With Brilliant Formal Dance

Eleanor Anne Barrett Bids Society Farewell
Prior to Departure After Marriage
Tonight to Oren Bromley Jr.

BY BEATRICE BURGAN
Society Editor

AT the take-off of the winter social season, we sight formality flying high. Definitely, spirits are up and party-goers are dressing as if they expected to bow for encores. And if premieres of the season are indicative of what is to follow, there will be encores—glamorous appearances at more parties than have been on the social calendar for several seasons.

At the Indianapolis Athletic Club's opening Saturday night, the party theme was formality and the newly decorated rooms had only roses for their festive note.

Men in top hats and tails escorted beautifully frocked wives and friends to the supper dance, attended by more than 900.

Miss Eleanor Anne Barrett, a bride-to-be, put in her last party appearance here for some time, for after her marriage tonight to Oren Benjamin Bromley Jr., New York, she will live in the East. Attending with the bridal party, Miss Barrett accepted congratulations and well wishes of many other friends.

She received the attentions smilingly in a deep rose Skinner satin gown, its short sleeves ballooning over her shoulders and its skirt swelling out as if a hoop might be concealed under its shininess. Matching buttons started at the back of the square décolletage and ended at the waistline.

Gold and silver cloth was lavished as plentifully on gowns and trimmings as billions are banded in the political stumpings.

The soft yellow gold of the jacket of Mrs. William Garstang's ensemble was folded softly into effective short sleeves and hung short over a white crepe gown. The Garstangs attended with their week-end guests, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sladen, Richmond, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin R. Turner Jr. They had witnessed the Purdue-Wisconsin football game in the afternoon.

A dark blue tulle evening coat flared over Mrs. Turner's lighter blue evening dress.

A gold belt circled the waistline of Miss Charlene Buchanan's gown, intricately draped around the shoulders and bodice and gathered in Grecian manner in the front of the skirt.

Gold sequins were scattered over Miss Eleanor Lindgren's gown so generously that it resembled a sheath of gold cloth, and puffs of white tulle clouded over the arms and from the knees to the floor.

All naivete was Miss Estelle Berpee's eggshell tulle gown, innocent of trimming.

At the art museum yesterday, Art Association members and friends went to view Mrs. Charles Croesley's rare collection of lace.

Particular attention was drawn to the table, laid with a pearl Venise lace edged, embroidered cloth given to the museum to be used specifically for its teas.

Mrs. A. Dickinson Smith, who led the Indiana State Symphony Society's sell-out membership drive, and Mrs. Noble Dean presided at the tea.

Mrs. J. T. Witherspoon, one of the Junior League's and Children's Theater's most ardent members, was among those burning the collection. Her ensemble invited admiring glances, too. Her black velvet gown swung freely around her and was fastened all the way down the front with jet buttons.

Evans Woolen, association president, was there, but Mrs. Woolen was away visiting in the East. Mrs. Charles Weiss, Mrs. Herman Kolhe, Dr. and Mrs. W. L. Richardson, Mrs. Thor Wessenberg, Dr. and Mrs. Harry Barnard, Dr. and Mrs. Guy Shadinger, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Clute, and Mrs. W. W. Willard. Fest were among the 200 persons who came to see the unusual display.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Burke Billings are visiting in Canada following their marriage here Saturday at the home of Mrs. Billings' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Powell. Mrs. Billings formerly was Miss Virginia Elizabeth Powell. Mr. Billings' parents are Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Billings, Honolulu.

Members of the immediate families attended the ceremony performed by Dr. Richard Millard. The bride wore a beige wool ensemble with brown accessories and an orchid corsage.

After Nov. 1, Mr. and Mrs. Billings are to be at home at 3465 Carrollton-av.

The bride attended De Pauw University and was graduated from Butler University. She is a Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority member. Mr. Billings, Lambda Chi Alpha Fraternity member, attended Butler.
