

Juvenile Court Aid Advised in Child Question

Proof of Unhappy Home Required to Move Boy, Jane Says.

Jane Jordan will help you with your problems by her answers to your letters in this column.

DEAR JANE JORDAN—I took a baby to board when he was six months old and his mother paid his board for two months. Then she went away and I did not see her for a while. When she came back she took the baby and kept him about a week. I missed him so much that when she brought him back and asked me to keep him until she could find work, I did. From then on she did not pay me any more and would not even come to see the baby unless I would look her up. When he was 6 years old she remarried. I asked her if she wanted the boy. She said no, but that she would help me buy his clothes, which were very few. When he was 8 years old, she came and took him away and does not want him to see me any more.

The boy is so unhappy that he runs away from her to come and see me. He says he would rather go to a boys' school than live with his mother, and that I am the only mother he has known. I have moved three times but he always finds me and says if I could only keep him he would not run away as he now does. He says his mother and stepfather go out at night and leave him home, and that they go away Sundays and stay all day, leaving him by himself. I never did leave him.

He is a sweet child and is very intelligent, but I don't know what to do, for his mother says she will keep him or send him to a reform school. He has run away three times and I have to call his mother to come and get him. She has turned him over to the Juvenile Court now and says she can not keep him at home; so if you can give me any advice, I will be very thankful.

MRS. J. C.

ANSWER—The thing for you to do is to tell your story to the Juvenile Court case worker. She will investigate the circumstances and if it is true that the boy is upset over being snatched out of a satisfactory home and being placed in an unsatisfactory one, no doubt the court will be glad to have you take care of the child.

If you can prove your statement that the boy is left alone and otherwise neglected by his mother, it will strengthen your case. You say the boy is now the ward of the court, therefore the court must be convinced before anything can be done.

Moreover, the case worker may be able to discover the causes for the mother's prejudice against you. I feel that you must have withheld something in regard to her change of front. She was glad to have you take care of her child for years and evinced little or no interest in him. Even now, if your story is correct, she doesn't want the care of her son. What, then, are her complaints against you? You must have some inkling of what caused the difficulty. Nothing can be done to clear it up until we know what it is.

JANE JORDAN.

If you are a capitalist, you'll be sure to vote for this diamond clip. It has its ruby center, to wear on your high priced fur cap. You'll favor soft, luxurious mink for your new coat with its roomy sleeves, swaggy lines and small, snug-fitting collar to frame your classic features.

You'll be won over by the wide, flexible gold bracelet with its diamond and ruby buckle, worn over six button suede gloves (shown above). You'll elicit glamour with a fragrant adornment of cypripedium orchids.

If you are a laborite, you'll cast your ballot for a clip of semi-precious stones to wear picturesquely on your Persian lamb or caracul coat. You'll band your wrists with a set of simulated gold bracelets to match your strand of gold beads. You'll wear gardenias or sweet peas instead of orchids. You'll be in good taste, and the budget will balance.

If you are a conservative you will wear a jeweled clip of gold or silver at the neckline of your simple black dress. You even may be influenced by fashion dictates to accent your hat with a matching clip, just to be in the running. You will appreciate that such costume-jewelry accents given the dullest outfit and give a glitter that is smartness in itself.

Several motion picture stars use ice cold lemon juice on their faces. They simply put the juice of two lemons in a bowl in the refrigerator and, when it is very cold, smooth it on. This serves as a mild bleach as well as an astringent.

If your skin is dry, don't apply an astringent oftener than twice a week. Even then it is a good idea to use tissue cream afterward. Almost every astringent has a tendency to be slightly drying.

Facials, if given by an experienced professional operator, tend to prevent flabbiness. However, don't attempt any intricate slapping routines yourself, and don't let any one experiment with the muscles of your face. The right kind of facial is excellent, but a mediocre one can do more harm than good.

Betty Stich and Alva Stonebringer, Manual High school pupils, winners of awards given annually by the post, are to be dinner guests.

Regular Care Will Produce Skin Firmness

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer

Skin that is cared for properly simply doesn't become soft, flabby and badly wrinkled as one grows older. Of course, you might as well face the fact that you will have a few lines and that your complexion will lose that bloom of 18-year-old youth as the years go on.

However, this doesn't mean that you ought to be philosophical about flabbiness. Regardless of your age, you really can have firm skin.

Don't underestimate the importance of ice water and ice. Get into the habit of rinsing your face with ice water after each cleansing. Slap it on until your skin is positively cold. Once a week, after a cleansing, wrap pieces of ice in a clean cotton cloth and rub briskly from base of throat to hairline. Never put ice directly on your skin. Always wrap it in a cloth and then apply.

Test of Worth of Pie Always in the Crust

Wise Is Woman Who Acquires Knack of Making Good Pastry.

BY RUTH CHAMBERS
National Live Stock and Meat Board

"If there's ice cream, it's a party," small Johnny may declare. But if Johnny's dad is consulted as to his dessert preferences, nine chances out of ten he'll say, "Let's have pie!"

There's something about pie which certainly makes a hit with the men. Fancy desserts may come and go—and it is fun to experiment with them. But wise is the woman who acquires the art of good pie-making. She will always be able to cap her dinners with a good dessert.

Of course, as every true pie-fancier knows, the test of a pie's worth is in its crust. Infinitely varied are the fillings—fruits, cooked and fresh; vegetables (pumpkin and squash); custards and creams; fillings baked with the pie crust and those which are put in afterward. Varied are the forms—two-crust pies and open-faced, latticed tops and those surmounted by a meringue. There are full-sized pies and smaller ones, and little individual ones.

Crust Most Important Factor

But for all their variety, one thing good pies have in common is a flaky, tender crust. Good pie-makers have learned by experience to rely upon lard to obtain that ideal result.

It isn't hard to make good crusts with lard, for lard is pliable and workable over a wide range of temperature. It is never brittle even when taken directly from the refrigerator.

In making a pie crust, the ingredients and the hands should be cool, and the mixture should be handled quickly and lightly.

Left-over bits of pastry dough may be used to make little tarts or cheese sticks.

Plain Pastry

1½ cups flour
½ cup lard
1 teaspoon salt
4 to 6 tablespoons ice water

Sift flour, measure and add salt. Cut lard into flour and salt until the crumbs are the size of dried peas. Add the water slowly, using just enough to make the dough hold together. Roll to about ¼ inch in thickness and transfer to the pie pan without stretching the dough. Bake at 425 degrees Fahrenheit for 10-12 minutes. Recipe makes one 8-inch two-crust pie.

Apple Pie

4 to 6 tart apples
½ cup or more sugar
1-3 teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon butter

Slice the pared apples and arrange until the lower crust is well filled. Mix the sugar, salt and cinnamon and sprinkle over the apples. Dot the top with bits of butter. Add lemon juice. If the apples are dry, add 2 or more tablespoons of water. If the apples are juicy, the top of the bottom crust may be sprinkled with a thin layer of flour. Add the top crust, fastening the edges of the crust well. Bake at 425 degrees F. for 15 minutes, then at 350 degrees F. for 30-35 minutes.

Cherry Pie

3 cups pitted sour cherries
1 to 1½ cups sugar
4 tablespoons flour

Drain cherries. Combine sugar and flour and mix with cherries. Fill the lower crust with this cherry mixture. Lay twisted strips of pastry crisscross over the cherries. Bake at 425 degrees F. for 25-30 minutes.

Chocolate Pie Filling

1½ oz. or 1½ squares chocolate
2 cups milk
¾ cups sugar
5 tablespoons cornstarch
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon vanilla

Heat chopped chocolate with all but ¼ cup of milk as it is scalding. Combine dry ingredients; make into paste with the ¼ cup of milk and add to scalded milk. Cook until the spoon leaves its mark in the mixture. Stir just enough to prevent lumping. Add the hot mixture gradually to the beaten egg yolks and reheat. Add flavoring and cool. Fill baked crust and top with meringue.

Meringue

2 egg whites, beaten stiff
2 teaspoons water
2 tablespoons sugar
¼ teaspoon vanilla

Beat the egg whites until frothy. Add the water and vanilla. Continue beating until the mixture will form peaks that stand up when the beater is lifted. Fold in sugar and pile on top of pie. Bake meringue in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit).
