The Rev. Victor R. Griffin Says Man Deserves a Good Home.

(Editor's Note: From a sermon he delivered recently on the model low-cost house [abandoned] at Smith's and Cornerman-pl, erected by the WPA under supervision of Purdue University, the Rev. Victor R. Griffin, Fountain Square Christian Church pastor, wrote the following article for The Indianapolis Times.)

BY THE REV. VICTOR R. GRIFFIN

At the basis of American democracy is the belief in the supreme worth of man. This cardinal principle gives every family the right to live in a clean, comfortable home, to which its members will not be ashamed to bring their friends, and which enables them to establish other worthwhile friendships.

It gives them the right to a home in which they can have some pride, in which at the same time it is within their means.

Numerous families live in poverty-stricken houses because they can afford nothing better. Others live in them as a matter of habit; it is all they have known.

Dull and dilapidated dwellings develop poor bodies, poor morals, and poor spiritual outlooks. Wherever the living conditions of a district are improved the crime rate decreases.

For 19 centuries, Christianity has struggled to awaken the conscience of privileged classes toward the supreme worth of man and the value of its recognition. The implications not always have been clear in the minds of Christian leaders, but Jesus gave expression to them in word and deed.

When Christianity appeared in the world most people in Europe were slaves, servants, farmers, men in trades, in commerce, in manufacturing and the professions were slaves. The prices on their lives were determined by their skill and talents, but they received little humane consideration.

It required eight centuries of repeated advocating and humane living on the part of the few to bring the masters of our forefathers to realize that slavery is unchristian.

We, the freed, have now shown that it is unnecessary.

By an intelligent use of our God-given faculties we have created devices, and so adjusted our social order that we no longer have need of slaves.

The further light now is dawning upon us that, as with slavery, so with slum dwelling. They must go! And with them will go much of the evil and misery they breed.

The Heroism of Christian Faith

Devotional Reading: II Corinthians 4:7-15

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D., International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Nov. 15.

THE title of this lesson is "The Heroism of Christian Faith." It is a better example of Christian faith or heroism could be found in life and action than that provided by Paul, the Apostle.

His faith was intense and clear. With great strength of conviction, he had come to believe that the way of life he had attacked as heresy was the true way. The spectacle of Stephen calling upon God to receive his spirit, forgiving those who stoned him to death, had evidently shaken Paul to his moral foundations.

He had come to see that there was something greater than he himself had found, with all his earnestness and zeal. And the more he knew of the Christian way, the more completely was he drawn toward it, until his relationship to the cruel Galilean and his intention to preach the Gospel concerning Christ became the one sublime passion of his life.

FROM that determination to preach the Gospel, and to build the kingdom of God, nothing could turn him aside. Jesus had said to his disciples: "When they persecute you in one city, flee to another," and Paul fulfilled that counsel with the greatest heroism. His very course was shaped by persecutions. Every form of opposition he took merely as an indication of guidance to preaching and work elsewhere. There was never any thought of abandoning his mission.

Now, as he was returning from his third missionary journey to Jerusalem, he had stopped at Caesarea on the coast and was warned by the prophet Agabus that troubles were ahead of him and Jerusalem. In this there was nothing surprising to Paul.

In his farewell address to the elders at Ephesus, he had stated that he was moving into the unknown, with nothing certain but that bonds and afflictions were awaiting him.

1000 Expected at Franklin Youth Session

'Whither Christian Youth?' Theme of Baptist Conference.

FRANKLIN, Ind., Nov. 14.—More than 1000 young people are expected to attend the second annual Baptist Youth Conference on the Franklin College campus tomorrow.

Christian Unity to Be Guiding Spirit During 8-Day Services Following National Conference

Night Meetings and Combined Worship Arranged by Many Congregations; Mayor Kern Issues Proclamation; Schools to Co-operate.

With hopes of unifying denominations in emphasizing religious needs of the community, pastors in more than 100 Protestant churches are to open an eight-day preaching mission here tomorrow.

Following the National Preaching Mission here in September, and striving to carry forward its ideals and spirit, it is hoped the local observance, with reach Indianapolis' 125,000 Protestant church goers and other thousands who do not attend church.

Preparations in most of the participating churches had been completed today, conforming with general plans outlined by the Church Federation sponsors. Nightly meetings are to be held in many churches.

Posters advertising the week's observance have been placed in downtown windows and street cars. Ministers have been asked to keep church halls lighted each night.

Schools Co-operate

Dr. Ernest E. Evans, Church Federation executive secretary, announced that co-operation of city schools had been offered by Supt. Paul C. Stetson. Mr. Stetson requested that extra-curricular school activities be cut to a minimum to make pupil attendance at church meetings possible.

Mayor Kern said in a proclamation: "Any movement that has in mind the well-being of our people becomes the concern of those who represent community life."

Details of the mission have been worked out by the Federation's local committee, headed by the Rev. Olive McGuire, Indianapolis Baptist Association secretary.

Downtown Worship

Churches in some areas are uniting for meetings. Five downtown churches are to hold their services together. They are the Central Christian, First Baptist, Second Presbyterian, Meridian Street and Roberts Park Methodist Churches.

This group's opening program is to be held tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Maud B. Booth, Volunteer Prison League president, is to speak. Young people are to have charge of the opening service at the North M. E. Church tomorrow. Subjects include, "Who is God?" by George Wier; "Seeking Christ," by Betty Jane Mock; "What Christ Means to Me," by Kenneth Hill and "His Plans for Me," by Anna Margaret Chapman.

Services Each Night

Services are to be held nightly at the New Jersey Street M. E. Church beginning tomorrow. The following themes are to be held: "The Soul's Value," "Alibis," "Failures," "Times of Refreshing," and "An Old Invitation."

The Rev. L. O. Richmond, Terre Haute, has been named to lead the eight-day mission at the Irvington Presbyterian Church. The opening sermon subject is to be "Crown Him Lord of All."

Nightly services beginning tomorrow are to mark participation of the West Park Christian Church. The Rev. John A. Farr, pastor, has announced that he will be at the church twice daily, 10 a. m. and 1:30 p. m. for conferences.

Other Union Services

Third Christian Church members are to celebrate with the theme, "Eight Days With Life Problems." The first two sermon topics are to be "What Is the Church?" and "Courageous Youth."

The Meridian Heights Presbyterian Church has been selected as the meeting place by six North Side churches. Each of the participating pastors is to deliver a sermon. The choir of each church also is to sing. The opening program then is to be "What's the Matter With Us?"

The Prentice Presbyterian Church under leadership of the Rev. Malcolm D. McNeal, is to hold nightly services at 7:30 o'clock. Tomorrow morning's subject is to be "The Purpose of Life."

Plan Old Time Revival

The Rev. M. H. Reynolds, Woodside M. E. pastor, is to combine the mission with an "old time revival." The Rev. A. A. Jameson, Volunteers of America, is to have charge.

The Central Baptist Church is to hold services each night at 7:30, the Rev. Oliver B. Serber announced.

Mr. McGuire said that similar programs had been arranged by several hundred Protestant churches throughout the state and that the Church Federation committee planned to outline a program to perpetuate the mission in some form after next week's observance.
