Representatives of Clubs
From 21 States Enter
Judging Contests.

By United Press

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Boys and girls from 4-H clubs of 21 states will open a record-breaking International Livestock Exposition unofficially today with a contest of skill in picking winning cattle, hogs and sheep.

Exactly 14,553 sleek head of cattle, horses, sheep and hogs were given a last-minute grooming in the stalls of the huge international amphitheater. In another division were 5000 samples of the finest hay and grain from farms in all parts of the world. Both lists were record-breaking in size.

Although the show will not open formally until tomorrow morning, the 4-H contests are expected to draw the first of the record-breaking crowds awaited at the thirty-seventh annual exposition.

Cleo Yoder, Wellman, Ia., youngster who won the grand championship last year with his Angus calf, Pat's Blue Ribbon, will be high in the lists for the last time. This is his last year of eligibility.

The winning team in the contest sponsored by the Chicago Association of Commerce will receive agricultural college scholarships.

B. H. Heide, manager of the show, said all entries would be in place for the formal opening at 7 a. m. tomorrow.

Workmen spent Thanksgiving Day installing two trainloads of prize winners from the recent Canadian Royal Winter Agricultural Fair at Toronto, Ont., including cattle raised on the ranch of King Edward VIII in Alberta.

Canadian competitors, who won the wheat championship and 18 livestock championships, 12 reserve championships and 61 first prizes last year, returned to defend their titles. W. Freelan Wilford, who won the wheat title for Canada last year, is not eligible to compete in this show, but Herman Treble, Wembley, Alberta, who has won the wheat title four times, was entered again.

Also from abroad were entries of Argentine corn, Belgian horses, and Australian corn. The record-breaking entry list represented 41 states and five Canadian provinces.

Features of the opening day include a collegiate livestock judging contest between teams from 27 agricultural colleges, and the exhibitions' first horse show.

neutrality pact in the civil war was called and Germany was expected to reject unconditionally a plan to supervise European air ports to prevent dispatch of airplanes to the rebels and loyalists.

A meeting of the full non-intervention committee was called for next Wednesday to discuss the proposal.

The foreign office received today through Sir Henry Chilton, ambassador to Spain now on the French frontier, an official communication from Gen. Francisco Franco, rebel dictator, defining a neutral zone at Barcelona. It confirmed an earlier message which the admiralty received from Nationalist authorities in the Balearic Islands. The zone lies approximately along an east-to-west line three-fourths of a mile south of Barcelona breakwater and lighthouse.

Walter Runciman, president of Board of Trade in the cabinet, introduced in Parliament yesterday a bill to forbid British ships to carry arms to Spain.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden is expected to make an important speech in the House of Commons within a few days, early indicating the government's coldness toward the new Japanese-German agreement "against communism" interpreted abroad as against Russia. He is expected to make it clear that Great Britain opposes any division of the world into divergent political blocks.

Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos is expected to make a similar speech in the French Parliament Dec. 4 as part of an expose of the general foreign situation.

French dispatches indicate grave suspicion in Paris of the real meaning of the Japanese-German agreement.

There is similar suspicion of Germany and Italy as regards Spain.

'Aw, Gee, Cap,' and Candy Bar 'Burglar' Wilts

A burglar was reported on the fire escape at the Tower Theater, 20 S. Illinois-st., early today. Police investigated. They found a box of burglars' tools in the lobby, a hand drill beside the tampered candy case lock and the burglar upstairs. He was 11 years old and in knee pants.

"What are you doing in here, son?" an officer asked him.

"Aw, I come to the show last night and must of went to sleep," Zaharoff replied brazenly.

"But what about these?" the policeman confronted him with the tools.

"Aw, gee, Cap." His lip was quivering. He was just a little boy again as officers led him off to the detention home.

SAVES PAL BY HURLING HIM UNDER TRAIN

Sure Death Avoided by Split
Second in Daring
Rescue.

By United Press

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—The roar of an approaching express train filled the subway station and across the track, his head on one rail, his legs over the other, lay 19-year-old Buddy Tortore, knocked unconscious by his fall from the platform.

The train was doing 50 miles an hour. The track curved into the station, which meant that the motorman would not see the boy until too late.

It was a matter of only a few seconds and the steadily increasing thunder of steel wheels on steel rails pounded an ear-splitting, throbbing requiem for Buddy, who seemed as good as dead.

On the platform a man whose body jerked with the partial paralysis of panic, leaped toward the change maker's booth, as though that functionary could help. A woman screamed and fainted on a bench. A few persons turned away, unable to look and a few stared down at the track, unable to look away.

The train now was so close that its lights reflected on the curved rails where it would appear in a split second, its roar drowned out the cries of horror mounting in a score of throats. A man ran to the edge of the platform and leaped between the rail, in the path of the train that now came lurching and swaying around the curve.

He jerked Buddy's head off the rail.

At that instant the motorman saw them and the train wheels screamed shrilly as the brakes slammed down. The man on the track seized Buddy's ankles and swung them around, throwing his body between the rails. The train was upon him and he leaped.

A half second later the train had stopped and the motorman emerged, white-faced and trembling. He thought he had hit both men.

Trainmen crawled under the train. Tortore lay, still unconscious but unharmed, between the rails. The train had passed over him. And in one of the safety alcoves, set in the walls of the tunnel for such emergencies, was his friend and rescuer, Louis Gatta, 19.

The accident occurred last night in the 3d-st. station of the Municipal line. Tortore explained that he had been celebrating Thanksgiving and lost his balance and fell off the platform. The line's private policemen charged him with disorderly conduct and intoxication.

said, "but the time is auspicious for our task in America. The rest of the world presents a grim picture of armed camps and threats of conflict.

Clashes Brought to End

"But in our own continent, armed clashes which in recent years have divided American countries, have been happily brought to an end."

Urging a ceaseless continuance of peace efforts, the President said: "The progress we have made must not be allowed to serve as a pretext for resting on our laurels; it should, on the contrary, stimulate us to new and increased effort. It is not enough that peace prevails from the Arctic to the Antarctic, from the Atlantic to the Pacific; it is essential that this condition be made permanent, that we provide effectively against the recurrence of the horrors of war and assure peace to ourselves and our posterity."

"The people of each and every one of the American republics—and I am confident, the people of the Dominion of Canada as well—wish to lead their own lives free from desire for conquest—free at the same time to expand their cultural and intellectual relationships and to take council together to encourage the peaceful progress of modern civilization."
