New American Industry Gets Its Start

Tennessee Clay and Cheap Electricity to Bring Porcelain, Marked 'Made in U. S. A.', to Tables of Nation at Low Prices.

By NEA Service

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 6.—Within the shadow of Norris Dam a small group of men have transformed gray Tennessee Valley clay into light, white, egg-shell porcelain dinnerware that is acclaimed as fine as any in the world—the first time that porcelain has been made from clay found in this country.

Up to now, either the clay or the finished product has been imported from Europe or Asia. And capping the achievement of opening America's clay deposits to industry, for the first time the firing or baking has been done by electricity.

New Industry Seen

It means a new, major industry in the United States. Now you have only to look at the back of your plates, cups and saucers to see that they come from Japan, England, France, Poland and Czechoslovakia. Hereafter, in times of war we no longer will have to depend on other countries for kaolin vitally essential to make spark plugs and electric insulation needed in military transport.

The fact that North Carolina, Georgia and Alabama have rich deposits of kaolin is not news. Up to now small quantities of it have been used in a mixture with imported kaolin. The real news is that porcelain can be made from the native clay. Also that, in such a refined state, it can take the place of imported kaolin.

Mr. Henry and TVA administrators picked Robert E. Gould, an American ceramics engineer, to head the experimental laboratories. Mr. Gould, then chief engineer of a ceramics plant in Poland, picked his staff and set to work. After months of experimenting with a washing and settling process that had not been used before, they found ways and means to remove all impurities from the native kaolin.

Electric Oven Invented

Next was tackled the job of firing by electricity. Up to now electricity had been used in a small way in firing decorations on porcelain ware, but this called for a temperature of only around 900 degrees Fahrenheit, whereas the TVA researchers required a temperature of 2500 or more degrees for fusing.

Fragile-looking eggshell porcelain teapots made from Tennessee Valley clay are among the first all-American products of their kind, made possible through the research of Robert E. Gould at Norris Dam. Those on the left are two pots from the same mold. That at right is the larger because it has not yet been fired. Electric firing ovens (upper left) were designed to make use of the vast Norris Dam power supply that waits only the throwing of a switch (upper right) to work for the potential new ceramics industry.

The serving table is to be lighted by blue tapers, and greenery centerpieces. Cakes are to be decorated with 59, and the ice cream is to be molded as owls, a chapter symbol.

Chapter active and alumnae members, and Indianapolis Association affiliates are to attend. Mrs. Emil Liniger is the Mu Club president and Mrs. Harry Gresham Jones, the association leader.

The association's next meeting on Feb. 9 is to be a supper and program at Mrs. Clark S. Wheeler's home, 4510 N. Meridian St. Mrs. Victor C. Helm, a member, is to give an illustrated talk on "Malay and Siam as Seen by the Camera."

Pupils Study Pet Animals For Project

Barn at Orchard School Is Place of Interest To Youngsters.

By BEATRICE BURGAN

OLD MacDonald's farm didn't have anything on the Orchard School pupils' pet collection.

A barn built by the boys and girls is stocked with many animals and fowl, which previously were merely something seen fleetingly in pastures as they rode in cars across the countryside. Now they know the foods the animals prefer, something about their market value and their habits.

Frederick, John and Lucy Holland contributed a 22-pound pig which has eaten his weight in corn and grown to at least 60 pounds. The children weighed him daily for awhile until he became unwieldy. Now they guess his poundage.

Boys Favor Butchering

Fifth grade boys who are caring for the animal think it's high time the pig is butchered, but the girls have a different idea. "He's too young and innocent," they say.

It's about settled that Christopher, who arrived on Columbus Day from the Frederick T. Holland farm, will go to market, and the children will see the butchering process on some farm.

Carl Eveleigh Jr. contributed a bantam hen and rooster to the "farmyard." They came from his parents' suburban place. The hen and ducks were hatched at the school. At Christmas time many of the ducks were sold for holiday feasts. The chickens have been laying eggs—which are "dated" and sold at current prices. The ducks and chickens were in the second grade project and the children have been keeping "books" recording the profits.

Pet Mice in Collection

Hilton U. Brown II has had some white mice as pets, and he contributed a pair of them for the fourth grade.

A ewe and ram have been mated. Their lamb is to be the property of the kindergarten. The barn also houses pigeons and rabbits.

The children have been taking turns watering and feeding the animals, and have had experience in buying their feed.

In classes they have learned the use of the animals' by-products and have based English course compositions on their observance of the animals.

All Holland in Festive Attire For Marriage of Its Princess

By United Press

THE HAGUE, Jan. 6.—Prince Bernhard of Lippe-Detmold will receive the royal title of Prince of the Netherlands after his wedding tomorrow to Crown Princess Juliana.

All Holland is talking about the forthcoming wedding. It has united all classes into one solid, patriotic group as no event in recent years has done.

Details of the wedding are slowly becoming known. Latest information is that the Crown Princess will have 12 bridesmaids and each will be dressed in a different colored frock so as to give the impression of a living bouquet, a concession to flower-loving Holland.

Beautiful orchids for the wedding decorations already have begun to arrive from far-off Java by fast airplane.

Wedding gifts continue to arrive. One gift was a carpet made by 37,000 women, each of whom took a single stitch. Another was a bracelet of 1700 diamonds from the Dutch East Indies.

Various Javanese and Sumatran sultans have sent lavish golden and bejeweled presents, as have European Governments and the Dutch Army and Navy.

Every night since the marriage banns were posted the stately old buildings of The Hague and the old canals have been illuminated with flood lights.

Juliana will be married in a long white velvet gown. Prince Bernhard will wear the uniform of the Blue Hussars of the Netherlands.
