Roosevelt Relief Text Message

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The text of President Roosevelt's request to Congress for funds to pay relief costs from Feb. 1 to June 30, 1937, was as follows:

The Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Sir: In my budget message of Jan. 5, 1937 I indicated my intention of requesting that Congress provide an appropriation of $790,000,000 for the purpose of carrying the Works Progress Administration and related programs from Feb. 1 to June 30, 1937.

In general, the problem of relief has diminished in nearly all lines of business and industrial activity. At the beginning of the present winter at least 6,000,000 more workers were employed in nonagricultural jobs than in March, 1933, and of this number more than 1,000,000 have found jobs with private industry during the past year.

RECALLS MESSAGE

In my message of March 18, 1936, I stated:

"The ultimate cost of the Federal works program will thus be determined by private enterprise. Federal assistance which arose as a result of industrial disemployment can be terminated if industry itself removes the underlying conditions. Should industry co-operatively achieve the goal of re-employment, the appropriation of $1,500,000,000, together with the unexpended balances of previous appropriations, will suffice to carry the Federal works program through the fiscal year 1937. Only if industry fails to reduce substantially the number of those now out of work will another appropriation and further plans and policies be necessary."

Many private enterprises have co-operated and I hope that there will be further sustained efforts on the part of private employers. Great assistance can be given to the Government if all private employers in every part of the country will seek, in so far as they reasonably can, to obtain additional workers from the relief rolls."

In this connection it is worth noting that by far the larger part of those on the relief rolls fall into the category of unskilled workers.

As a result of the natural increase in our population, each year at least 400,000 new workers are seeking work, and this number of new jobs annually is necessary simply to prevent an increase of unemployment.

Certain other facts are worth noting. The tendency toward a longer work week has had an extremely important effect on re-employment. Hours of work in manufacturing industries, as shown by the Bureau of Labor Statistics index, averaged 33.3 hours per week in September, 1934. That average has increased by 20 per cent, to more than 40 hours per week in October, 1936.

LONGER HOURS

While among most industries and most employers the maximum hours established under the National Recovery Act have not been greatly increased, it is worth noting that in some industries and among some employers the former maximum hours have been unreasonably increased. Every action of an employer along these lines obviously tends toward the stepping up of production without an equivalent stepping up of employment. It is not unfair to say that these employers who are working their employees unreasonably long hours are failing to co-operate with the Government and their fellow citizens in putting people back to work.

In March, 1936, more than 3,400,000 employable persons were provided for by the works program, not including the Civilian Conservation Corps. At the present time, as a result of an exhaustive review of the needs of the families of workers on the works program, we have found that it will be necessary, during the winter months, to provide employment for at least 2,500,000 workers, of which number 250,000 will receive employment from funds appropriated in the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935.

This represents a net reduction of more than 800,000 since last March.

Further reductions will be made in the spring and summer, at the time of seasonal increases in private employment.

DROUGHT PROBLEM

An unforeseen factor in Federal expenditures for the relief of destitution has been the drought, which laid waste large areas of the country, and brought disaster to hundreds of thousands of farm families.

During last summer and fall, an emergency program was developed to provide employment for the destitute of the stricken families. With the advent of winter, about 250,000 of these families are being transferred from work projects to the Resettlement Administration, which will provide them with direct grants for subsistence through the winter, and make other provisions to get them started on an independent basis when the planting season arrives.

Since the balance of the present appropriation of $1,425,000,000 for relief and work relief will be barely sufficient to finance this program through the month of January, I recommend that the Congress provide a supplemental appropriation of $790,000,000 for this purpose for the remainder of the fiscal year 1937.

We have promised that the men, women and children of America who are destitute through no fault of their own shall not be neglected. Before the end of this fiscal year I shall make specific recommendations to the Congress, defining in detail by views relative to the continuing problem of unemployment relief and its administration in 1938.

Respectfully,
FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

STATE MEDICAL CARE ATTACKED BY DR. FISHBEIN

Socialized Medicine Favored
By Chicago Professor in Debate Here.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, Chicago, editor of The Journal of the American Medical Association, and Dr. R. Clyde White, University of Chicago social psychology professor, last night presented opposite views on socialized medicine in a debate at the Kirschbaum Community Center.

Dr. White said that a Federal-State system of medical care should be established for individuals or families with annual incomes of $3000 or less.

He said that families in that income bracket do not receive adequate medical attention; that the individual cannot budget for medical attention because illness is a hazard just like death or accident.

Lands Health Measures

He said that, even so, the actuarial principles can be successfully applied as they are in insurance. He said that in more than 50 years of the German insurance system, expenditures never have exceeded the income of the system and that in Great Britain, after 25 years expenditures exceeded income in two worst depression years only by a small amount.

Health insurance, he said, has promoted the health of children, maintained or restored the working capacity of adults and expanded preventive public health measures.

Dr. Fishbein said that under socialized medicine it would cost a great deal more because there "would be two bureaucrats for every doctor."

"In medicine," he said, "there should be mutual responsibility between doctor and patient, not between doctor and Mayor, or Governor or Commissioner of Internal Affairs."

"Who really lacks medical care in this country? The real indigents do not, for from time immemorial doctors and hospitals have taken care of them without counting the cost. Is it the people whose notion of necessities comprises food, clothing, shelter, movies, cigarets and all the installment gadgets without any provision for medical needs of the calamity of a child?

"People can have operations and babies, too, on the installment plan," Dr. Louis Segar introduced the speakers and presided.
