Weekly Sunday School Lesson

Eternal Life in Christ

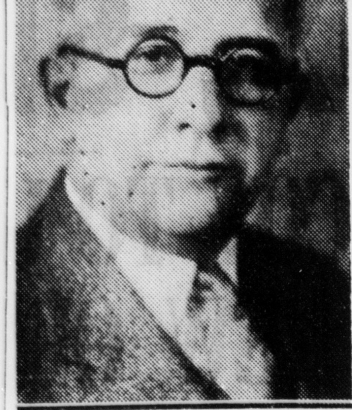

Text: John 14:1-15

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance

WE have seen how the shadow of death and of destiny was already over the circle of disciples, as Jesus, in mystic words, spoke concerning His mission and its fulfillment through sorrow and sacrifice. The disciples undoubtedly must have been puzzled by words that told the kingdom of God was going to be realized in earthly power and glory was in reality to be established through loss and sacrifice. It was to disciples in this puzzle state of mind that Jesus expressed the words of our lesson, "Let not your heart be troubled. The remaining portion of that verse may be variously translated as "Ye believe in God, believe also in me," or as a twofold exhortation, "Believe in God, believe also in me." Jesus spoke to the disciples in parables or in symbols. He speaks of mansions in His Father's house. He speaks of a place that He is going to prepare for the disciples, and He speaks of coming again and receiving them unto Himself. He speaks of a way that He is going that the disciples know.

Where does this lead? Right back to the love that we have seen emphasized in the preceding lesson. "If ye love me," says Jesus, "ye will keep my commandments." It is in response to the love of Christ that the message of Christ is revealed, and the love is led to see in Jesus the earthly manifestation of a loving God and Father. If one cannot find the evidence of God and the way to God in Jesus, where can he find God?

Class Speaker

Dr. John Benson, superintendent of Methodist Hospital, is to begin a series of talks at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow before the Christian Men Builders Class of Third Christian Church. His subject for tomorrow is "Policing Jericho's Road." He is to conclude the series Easter Sunday at services in Zarings Theater.
