

DUKE AND BRIDE PAUSE IN VENICE ON HONEYMOON

'Self-Conscious' Newlyweds Rest in Hasty Dash To Castle.

they entered Lausanne, and left 15 minutes later for their honeymoon castle. They are due there late tonight.

Cross Eastern France

They were wakened this morning during the halt at Lausanne when five carloads of cows arrived on a neighboring track, mooring mournfully and shaking their joyless cowbells.

The country into which they went has been a honeymooners' heaven for more than a century. Following the shore line of Lake Geneva with its placid blue water, the Savoy Alps looming on the French side, and terrace after terrace of vineyards rising a thousand feet above their train on the Swiss side, the train went on through Switzerland.

The train flashed by interspersed gray stone walls and terraces that looked from the windows like a huge patchwork quilt of green, brown, gray and purple.

Continue to Montreux

Between Lausanne and Montreux the honeymooners passed residences of two rulers even less fortunate than was the Duke. At Vevey could be seen the villa which Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia is trying to sell because Swiss authorities will not let him live there. A few miles on was the villa of former King Amanullah of Afghanistan, who lives quietly at the lakeside with a retinue of relatives and retainers, who are reported to be eating up his fortune.

Beyond Montreux the train went past the three round towers of the Castle of Chillon, the prison of Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon." White swans dotted the castle lake.

Then beyond the lake the train advanced through the Rhone Valley and passed the snowcapped Dent du Midi ("tooth to the south"), so named because of its irregular flat top looks like a molar.

Guarded Closely

The honeymooners were guarded closely from the moment they motored away from the Chateau de Cande at Montreux where they were married yesterday. Forty gendarmes awaited them at Laroche Station where they boarded the Orient Express. So close was the guard, in fact, that the passengers in the one car which was placed ahead of theirs in the train demanded better than even waiters to pass through corridors of the train.

The Duke delayed the usually on-the-minute express eight minutes while he checked the baggage. The Duchess was pale while the Duke was cheerful. He left the Duchess alone in the motor car for a moment while he walked to the train to count the bags and help with them. Then, the Duchess following, along with a maid and their three dogs, they went aboard and walked the length of the train to their car.

In the train, the Duke and Duchess locked themselves at once in their compartment.

Not for Sale

Baby Is Returned to Mother Who Sold It for $200.

By United Press
LOS ANGELES, June 4.—Two women, sisters-in-law, contested today for a six-week-old baby which one sold to the other for $200 before it was born, and then regained on a court order.

The baby was back today with its mother, Mrs. Marian Brown Beard, 20. She had kept her bargain, and delivered her infant to Mrs. Evelyn Brown, but later decided she wanted the child.

The child was transferred to the mother yesterday in Superior Judge Goodwin J. Knight's court-room.

The mother had pleaded: "Please, judge, give me back my baby. I let my sister-in-law take her away a few days after she was born but I can't stand it."

Cloisia Stevens, a woman deputy sheriff, and a male deputy, went to Mrs. Brown's house for a child with a writ of habeas corpus. The foster mother refused to give up the child. The deputies forced their way into the house and found little Nadeen Gloria in a bedroom clad in a diaper.

Mrs. Brown screamed in protest and the male deputy had to hold her while Deputy Stevens wrapped the baby in a blanket and carried her away.

Judge Knight ruled: "The mother shall have the baby for the reason she had no legal right to attempt to sell her unborn child, and the other party was in error in attempting to purchase the child."

STRIKES CLOSE UP CHRYSLER PLANTS

rumored a strike settlement was near.

The Committee for Industrial Organization lost in an election to determine the collective bargaining agent for employees of the Yale & Towne Lock Co., Stamford, Conn.

As Governor Davey brought strike leaders together, pickets and sympathizers halted a food-laden train at Warren O., by blocking ties to the track. The 40-car train was headed for the Republic Steel Corp., where 200 nonstrikers are in the plant.

Philip Murray, S. W. O. C. head, said the Youngstown rail workers had refused to transport "strike-breakers, food or munitions" to strike-bound plants. Rail officials were not available for comment.

Blocking of the train was considered another instance of the violence which three railroads complained of a few days ago when they asked an injunction against the strikers.

In Warren, O., the postmaster refused to accept food for delivery into the plant, saying that such packages were "irregular shipments."

Republic officials continued firing food into the Warren plant, and offered $2000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of any one found sniping at the crafts.

Minor Mystery
A minor mystery confronted Detroit police, where Prosecutor Duncan McCrea said his officers had arrested a man who sought to drive an auto filled with tear gas bombs, cartridges, black jacks and gas masks into the plant of the Great Lakes Steel Corp. The man said he had been discharged last week as a company policeman, but company officials denied they knew anything about the affair.

"There has been no trouble here and we do not expect any," a spokesman for Great Lakes said.

Mr. Beery, commenting today, said: "It was very orderly as far as I could see."

The girls said they answered the studio's call thinking they were reporting to work. When they reached the ranch and found it decorated like a miners' camp of the forty-niner days, with champagne and whisky on the tables, they still thought it was to be just a "mob scene" before the cameras, they said.

They soon learned, however, that they had been imported as real life entertainers, the girls said, and the boisterous sales executives began playing them with liquor and forcing amorous attentions upon them.

help Indianapolis pay for winter maintenance, some plan might be worked out.

Mr. Doeppers, in accepting the explanation, took exception to the safety of emptying sewage into the river during the winter. He charged that the sewage endangered the drinking water of his town, saying that he feared the driven wells from which citizens get their drinking water would be poisoned by the sewage.

In discussing the Harding St. construction which forced late opening of the Meridian St. station, Mr. Steeg said that only six months' work remains on the project, and it will be carried out next winter. He said work had been done late in the spring to take advantage of WPA labor.

The Mayor told Mr. Doeppers that the Harding St. project is important to all residents in and near Indianapolis.

Mr. Doeppers said he would take the Mayor's suggestion on operating funds to the Rocky Ripple Town Board for consideration.

Sewage Not Diverted
Donald Bloodgood, Sanitary Department superintendent who also attended the meeting, said no sewage has been diverted into the river since the opening of the Harding St. sewer.

Mr. Bloodgood's statement to the Mayor follows, in part: "There has been no sewage dumped into the river by the North Side sewers since Tuesday, and the pollution of the river during the last months comes from resorts north of Indianapolis."

"Also the river is tested hourly by the Health Department and immediate prohibition of swimming would be taken should contamination be shown."

Mr. Bloodgood further stated that when the City turns off the pump station at the Meridian St. pumping station during the winter months, to save expense, it is doing nothing that is not practiced by other larger cities throughout the country.
