

LABOR DIVISION HOLDS BIDS FOR INCORPORATION

Petitions of Not-for-Gain Groups Being Checked, Hutson Announces.

Application for incorporation certificates involving labor relations are being held by the State Labor Commissioner pending investigation, the Labor Division said today.

Not-for-profit groups seeking to organize for mutual benefit must show they are controlled by employees, the Division announced.

Until recently, employee associations have been granted charters by the Secretary of State on application. All petitions now are to be investigated by the Labor Division, Commissioner Thomas Hutson said.

Organizations must comply with Wagner Labor Relations Act provisions, he explained, before being granted a charter. Company controlled unions or employee groups are in violation of the act and will be denied charters on Labor Division recommendation, Mr. Hutson explained.

Company union formation under the not-for-profit statute recently was protested by the State Labor Federation.

Charters may be dissolved by the Secretary of State if investigation proves their purpose to be in violation of the labor relations act, according to the labor Division.
