

CHICAGO FIRM TO MAKE AUTO TITLE HOLDERS

Local Company Loses in Bid For Million Gadgets Adopted for '38.

The N. Shure Co. of Chicago today was awarded a contract to provide the State with 1,000,000 windshield holders for automobile certificates of titles.

Frank Finney, Auto License Bureau head, said the company is to sell these gadgets to the State for 13 cents each, and the State is to resell them to all motorists for 25 cents.

Under terms of a new State law, car owners will be required to display their certificates of title in approved holders beginning Jan. 1, 1938. Profits from the transaction are to be credited daily to the State general fund.

Since there are more than 900,000 license registrations in Indiana this year, Mr. Finney estimated that an even larger number of holders would be needed next year.

He claimed the display of certificates of title would aid police in checking up on law violators, and hamper criminals who now pass their automobile titles back and forth to each other.

The Zenite Metal Co. of Indianapolis was the only other bidder for these holders, but their figure was higher than the Chicago firm, Mr. Finney said.

Failure to display the holders properly after next Jan. 1 is punishable by fines of $1 to $25 and a possible 30-day jail sentence.

25 FIRMS TO GET 'NO SMOKE' PLEAS

City Opens Major Drive Against Nuisance.

A major drive to rid Indianapolis of its smoke nuisance was launched today by J. W. Clinehens, City Combustion Engineer.

This week, 25 industrial concerns in all parts of the city are to receive requests from the Engineer to comply with the smoke abatement Ordinance, Mr. Clinehens said.

The method of eradication, whether it is a change in type of coal used or in the combustion equipment, will be left up to the offender, he added.

Since the co-operation of the WPA was gained in March to conduct a city-wide survey, the Smoke Abatement Department has been accumulating data to locate excessive smoke sources.

"Now we are prepared to make a concerted drive for enforcement," Mr. Clinehens said, "and as other data comes in the same procedure will be followed."

Some of the firms already have eliminated their troubles, Mr. Clinehens said.

Those who have co-operated and spent money should be commended for their co-operation and spirit," he added.

He declined to name the 25 who are to receive notices this week.

They are all "serious and extreme cases of violation of the ordinance," however, he said.

The Fight for Power in Washington

Roosevelt's Battle May Be Heading Democrats Toward Major Breach

The Tug of War-shington . . . Cartoon by Herblock.

This is the second of six stories by Dodney Dutcher, interpreting the bewildering economic and political events of the day in terms of a gigantic fight for power.

By RODNEY DUTCHER
Times Special Writer

WASHINGTON, July 22.—The Congressional phase of the fight for power in America turns on whether Roosevelt can "purge" the Democratic party of certain conservative opponents, or whether those opponents can purge away his power over legislation and thwart his ambition to control the party in the Presidential year of 1940.

The immediate issue is the latest chapter of the Roosevelt reform program—the Supreme Court plan compromise, the wage-hour bill, government reorganization, the dream of "seven more TVA's" to blanket the country, more effective crop control, and tax diminishing his influence.

2. A middle group whose members have no great zeal for reform, prefer to stand by the President, and those who may desire him on certain issues and who at the moment are glad to close up Congress and go home.

3. The third group includes congenital conservatives and others who believe the power and policies of Roosevelt and his ally, John L. Lewis, are a national menace, presidential aspirants who know they can expect no Roosevelt support, proud and jealous men who resent Roosevelt's success or arrogance, and men who owe allegiance to special interests antagonistic to Roosevelt.

The first group includes congenital conservatives and others who believe the power and policies of Roosevelt and his ally, John L. Lewis, are a national menace, presidential aspirants who know they can expect no Roosevelt support, proud and jealous men who resent Roosevelt's success or arrogance, and men who owe allegiance to special interests antagonistic to Roosevelt.

The second group also contains some men who worry more or less about expansion of executive power, independence of the judiciary, sitdown strikes and labor violence and New Deal social-economic schemes. But its members often can be swayed by partisan appeals, patronage bait or political prudence.

The third group includes the rump leadership—Senators like Black, Barkley, Minton and Schwellenbach, usually working with the Progressive La Follette, which overrode the late Joe Ribeyro in the relief bill fight. It includes most of the progressives and many who maintain allegiances to Roosevelt for purely political reasons.

There may prove to be more bark than bite in the so-called congressional revolt. Nevertheless, it's amazing that nothing but routine and appropriation legislation has been passed after six months of a Congress which began with the emergence of an aggressive, liberal, pro-Roosevelt rump leadership.

Roosevelt has been ambitious for many years to make the Democratic Party a progressive party and swears it will again be such a party as nominated a Morgan lawyer for President in 1924.

Who does Roosevelt want to succeed him? Barkley? La Follette? Wallace? Ikes? Hopkins? Eddie? Farley?

Probably he doesn't know yet, but don't ignore the order in which those names are placed. If you want to pick a Presidential aspirant from his Senatorial opposition, you can begin with Clark, Byrd, Wheeler, Copeland and Burke and keep on going for quite a while.

Judging from past quirks of history it's only a guess whether the Roosevelt endorsement in 1940 will be an asset or a liability.

Next—Roosevelt and the Supreme Court.
