

The Round-Up

The West may have its rodeos but Indiana has its roundups. Among the most interested spectators and participants at the Indiana Saddle Horse Association Roundup tomorrow will be members of various local riding clubs.

1. Miss Betty Fuller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Fuller, is one of the younger equestrians eagerly looking forward to tomorrow's event. (Times Photo.)

2. The keen eyes of this trio watched Arlington Stables entries training. Left to right are Mesdames A. L. Peel, Alex Metcger and Clayton Mogg. (Times Photo.)

3. One of the most enthusiastic attendants is to be Mrs. Russell Williams, wife of the roundup's general chairman. She is to be among the riding pairs with her son, Russell Williams Jr. (Voorhis Photo.)

4. The Algonquin Riding Club's chances of sharing in the awards are discussed by Miss Mary Moore (left), Miss Gertrude Brown (center), and Mrs. Donald Bose. (Times Photo.)

5. Mrs. Robert Coleman, wife of the Williams Creek Saddle Club vice president, and Miss Bernice Church, a director and secretary, plan the club's participation. (Times Photo.)

20,000 Expected to Witness State Saddle Horse Roundup

The largest gathering of pleasure horses and riders and one of the largest charity shows in the Middle West is to take place tomorrow at Greg Farms when the Indiana Saddle Horse Association holds its fifth annual roundup. The Sunnyside Guild is cosponsor.

Twenty thousand spectators is the estimated attendance for this year's show, and between 500 and 600 horses are to participate in events beginning at 10 o'clock and continuing until 5 p. m. Competition is limited to Hoosier horses used for bridle paths and pleasure, rather than the professional show class. Grand champions are to be seen, however, in the grand march.

Greene-Booker Rites Tonight Hold Spotlight

One of the most important weddings of the season is to take place at 8 p. m. tonight in Christ Episcopal Church when Miss Eileen Bingham Booker becomes the bride of Thurston Greene, New York.

Miss Booker is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Bishop Mumford. Mr. Greene is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Thurston Greene, Montclair, N. J., and Hyannisport, Mass.

The ceremony is to be read by the Rt. Rev. Joseph M. Francis, D. D., Bishop of Indianapolis, before an altar of candelabra ferns, Easter lilies and smilax with a background of seven-branch candelabra. The chancel screen, walls and ceiling beams are to be hung with lilies and greenery of the same type.

In her exhibit here, Mrs. Brown is to include Syrian wedding shoes over 100 years old, Bavarian shoes and Staffordshire shoes.
