

BRITISH, SOVIET CARS ATTACKED NEAR SHANGHAI

Japanese Planes Blamed in Raid: High Diplomatic Officials Periled.

secretary to the military attaché who had been with the British party.

Picked Up by British
Mr. Shavov's car broke down and the British picked him up. A spokesman for the consulate said one of the cars attacked was owned by the Bills Motors Co. and flew the American flag.

The Soviet Consulate said Mr. Shavov telephoned to Shanghai after his car broke down and the consular car went out to rescue him. However, the car returned to Shanghai after having been attacked. The driver was not injured.

Members of the embassy party said that the planes were Japanese. Arriving here they went at once into emergency conference with other embassy and consulate general officials—and, in token of their conviction that the planes were Japanese, notified the Japanese Consulate General of the attack.

Though none of the party was wounded, it was realized at once that the incident was a dangerous one diplomatically, and embassy officials refused all requests for statements. They said they would make no statement before tomorrow, but began at once to send urgent official dispatches.

One of the British Embassy party was flight Lieut. S. S. Murray. A bullet nearly hit Mr. Murray's foot while those in the cars were running to fields to escape the attack.

H. M. Braham, a member of the consular staff, also was in the party.

In the party, in addition to the assistant air attaché and the consulate attaché, were Consul General Herbert Phillips, Wing Commander H. S. Kerb, air attaché, E. Hall Patch, British Embassy financial adviser, and Lieut. Francesco Riebozi of the Italian Navy. Hall Patch was present when Japanese planes attacked the British ambassador's car.

The incident today was regarded all the more seriously because it was learned that the British Embassy notified Japanese authorities that the cars were leaving Nanking for Shanghai. In the previous incident Japanese insisted that there had been no such notification.

Also, as the Italian Navy lieutenant joined the British Embassy conference on the attack, it was believed that an Italian protest was likely.

Report Britain Seeks To Aid Loyalists

BY RALPH HEINZEN
(Copyright, 1937, by United Press)
PARIS, Oct. 12. — Responsible quarters said today that the British Government was exerting extreme pressure on France to open the Spanish frontier at once to permit a full flow of men and munitions to the Loyalists.

This assertion caused astonishment here. It was in almost direct conflict with previous reports. But it seemed to be a fact and to represent a definite new turn in the general European situation.

It had been evident that there was some difference of opinion between Britain and France as to the advisability of opening the frontier. Generally reports have implied that it was France that wanted to open the frontier while Britain counseled caution.

According to the information today it is actually the British Government that wants immediate action in reprisal for Premier Mussolini's refusal even to discuss on a business basis withdrawal of foreign volunteers from the Spanish civil war.

HUSBAND IS FREED IN DEATH OF WIFE

ANDERSON, Oct. 12 (U. P.).—Hobart Thacker, 34, Elwood, held for two weeks during investigation of the strangling of his wife, Ruth, today had been released from the County Jail by Judge Charles E. Smith.

Judge Smith ordered Thacker's release before the scheduled hearing on a habeas corpus suit filed by his attorneys.

The grand jury may be called for further investigation of the case if the Prosecutor's office desires, Judge Smith said.

Thacker and his wife had attended a party at the home of Frank Elbert the night before the woman's body was found in the Elbert yard.

Should We Adopt the One-House Legislature? Pro and Con Debate Material

Our Service Bureau at Washington, by special arrangement with The Debater's Digest, has produced an 18-page Booklet on the debate question selected by the 1937-38 debating season in the schools of the U. S.—"Resolved: That the several states should adopt a unicameral system of legislation."

The booklet analyzes the question, presents complete affirmative and negative briefs, and gives a list of selected references.

Any debate team preparing to discuss this subject this fall and winter will find this material of the greatest possible help.

If you want this pro and con booklet on the subject, send the coupon below and your copy will be mailed to you promptly.
