

Health Rule First 'Must' For Glamour

Revised Living Habits Often Clue to Charm Attainment.

By ALICIA HART

Make up your mind right now that you're going to be a glamour girl this fall and winter—or else! (Or else be ashamed in the knowledge that your lack of the precious quality is your own fault.)

There's no reason why anyone should resign herself to the idea that Hollywood has a monopoly on this fine modern business of being glamorous.

While only a minute minority have beauty in the Garbo or Crawford or Dietrich manner, the fact remains that the vast majority can be glamorous even though not endowed with enormous eyes, delicate dimples and a veritable mane of shining, naturally curly hair. After all, many of Hollywood's most famous really worked to attain glamour. It didn't just happen.

Revised Living Habits

If health is the foundation of true beauty (and it is), then it's the firmer than firm foundation of glamour. How in the world can you be a "sparkling attractive glamour girl" if you never seem to have any energy, if your sense of humor is pretty dull or if you walk as though your joints are loaded with lead? Revise your living habits and see if you aren't a pleasanter, younger-looking, more charming person. Sleep eight hours every night and do take long walks in the fresh air. Whether you are fat, thin or just right, walking makes for a kind of indescribable buoyancy that is lovely in a woman.

Unless you are naturally slender, plan to have only fruit juice, one cup of coffee and a slice of thin toast for breakfast; a huge salad, a beverage and fresh or stewed fruit for lunch. Then you can eat anything you like for dinner—but no chocolate creams or rich pastries between meals, please.

Match Cosmetics

Brush your hair every night. Every night—no just when you happen to be in the mood! Figure out an excellent complexion routine, then stick to it. Smooth, clear skin is one of the first requisites of glamour. And anyone who cares and tries can have nice skin.

Spend some time and thought on the selection of new fall cosmetics. There's not much point in getting your face in finest condition if you are going to deck it with dark rust rouge that was lovely in July but does nothing at all to dramatize your present coloring or new black and dark clothes. See that powder matches exactly one shade lighter than your skin.

Curl Eyelashes

Do look at new eye make-up. A bit of eyeshadow, in a shade you never even considered before, applied painstakingly with a small camel's hair brush, often makes for evening glamour.

And how about curling your eyelashes? You can, you know, get a fine little gadget which makes even the straightest, shortest lashes seem longer and more alluring. It's a good idea to apply mascara sparingly, then to clamp the curler gadget right on moist lashes.

Try this anyway. You may not like the result, but then again, you might. And anything which makes for glamour certainly is worth a trial at least.

FOOD SHORTAGE FOR BEES FEARED HERE

Feed Hives Artificially, State Warns.

Hoosier beekeepers were warned to artificially feed their honey-producers this winter if they haven't stored enough food to sustain themselves.

Virgil M. Simmons, Department of Conservation commissioner, said he was issuing the warning because of predictions that a food shortage may be fatal to many more bees this winter than in previous years.

However, continued mild weather may enable bees in some parts of the state to build up their food supply from asters and other late blooming flowers.

Pact Prevents China Declaring War, Utley Says

Far East domination is the ultimate goal of the Japanese in their undeclared war with China, according to Clifton M. Utley, director of the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations.

Mr. Utley spoke last night in Caleb Mills Hall in the first of a series of lectures sponsored by the Indianapolis League of Women Voters.

Mr. Utley said that the nonintervention pact of the United States prevents China from declaring war because this in effect would make the United States a Japanese ally.

"Japan, in a position to manufacture sufficient munitions, could not get raw materials, but China would be barred from importation of munitions," he said.

He termed President Roosevelt's Chicago speech "shrewd, realistic statesmanship."

QUESTION RAISED IN DEATH OF EX-COED

Attack on Former Suitor 'Attempted Murder.'

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 14 (U. P.).—Coroner Willis P. Butler today recorded the death of Lois Lewis, 21, attractive former coed at the University of Oklahoma, as "questionable suicide."

Mr. Butler made his report last night to the District Attorney on the death of Miss Lewis, daughter of an oil company engineer, and the wounding of her sweetheart, R. Downs Poindexter, 23, of Shreveport, University of Oklahoma student.

Poindexter reported to the coroner that Miss Lewis shot him, then killed herself Sunday afternoon after Poindexter told her he had found another girl and that they were "through."

"I have a report from the fingerprint department that the gun does not show fingerprints of either of the parties," the coroner said. He added that "it would be extremely difficult and awkward for anyone to inflict such wounds on his own person" as those which killed Miss Lewis. He held that the shooting of Poindexter was "attempted homicide."

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14 (U. P.).—The new National Unemployment Census Bureau today enlisted more than 70,000 local units of existing

The 9000 Red Cross chapters are co-operating in the census; so are 25,000 local units of various trade associations, representing industry and mercantile establishments, and 32,000 local labor unions.

A plan was also being considered to ask the 48 Governors to issue unemployment census proclamations on those days, throwing the weight of state governments behind the drive.

Milestones in Customer Service

"... but we've always had elevators!" Oh, no! Some folks will remember when shopping was a matter of climbing stairs. Not very many, of course, because buildings were not so high. Ayres' was among the first stores to have an elevator. Even in the "old store" that had been the Trade Palace, there was a "hydraulic lift." When Ayres' moved into the new store at Meridian and Washington, four new electric elevators were installed. Now we take them for granted, but in those days they were a boon to tired shoppers, and were truly another milestone in customer service.

and now comes....
