

TREASURY DEFICIT HEARING $695,000,000 LIMIT SET BY ADMINISTRATION IN OCTOBER

Day-by-Day Report of Government Expenditures and Receipts Shows Budget $723,366,339 Out of Line; Fiscal Year Almost Half Over.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22 (U. P.).—In the month since President Roosevelt last summarized his budget expectations the Treasury deficit has crept to within a few millions of the $695,000,000 limit for which the Administration is striving. This fiscal year began July 1, and is almost half over.

Mr. Roosevelt believed last January that it might be possible to complete this fiscal year with the budget in approximate balance. He revised his budget expectations last April and forecast a deficit of $418,000,000.

Again on Oct. 19 Mr. Roosevelt summarized the budget outlook and reported that the deficit prospect had increased to $695,000,000. The day-by-day Treasury report of Government receipts and expenditures shows the budget now out of line by $723,366,339 including $35,937,000 for debt retirement, or a net deficit of $687,429,000—less than $8,000,000 short of the estimate for the year. That figure is as of Nov. 19.

Three Treasury pay days intervene between now and final liquidation of Treasury books for the fiscal year 1938, which will end on June 30. On Dec. 15, March 15 and June 15 income tax payers who set with the Treasury in quarterly installments will pour millions of dollars into the Government receipts file.

Some unfriendly critics of the Administration insist that Federal expenditures will considerably exceed Mr. Roosevelt's latest estimates and that when the books close for this fiscal year the deficit will be swollen far beyond the $695,000,000 now proposed.

Count on Money Drive

Other observers are counting upon rising economy enthusiasm to hold Federal expenditures within planned limits. Both Congress and Mr. Roosevelt will be under severe winter pressure to spend. Despite widespread Congressional opposition of economy proposals, the House Agriculture Committee has adopted familiar legislative strategy in avoiding the issue of spend or save. The committee has been working on Agricultural Crop Control Bill which is expected to cost from $175,000,000 to $275,000,000 more than the $500,000,000-a-year soil conservation plan which it is intended to supplant.

Coincident with the House committee's effort to avoid the issue of new farm revenue, the Senate Agriculture Committee planned to report favorably its Farm Bill. The committee has been working on a "blanket" authorization for finances. There had been a movement to trim the bill to the limits of a $500,000,000 budget. That would have relieved Congress of finding agricultural revenue beyond that already provided by existing tax schedules.

Similarly bearing directly on chances for holding this year's deficit to $695,000,000 is the extent of business recession and its further effect on Treasury revenue. Mr. Roosevelt's budget summary last month reported that the Treasury was revising its revenue estimates downward. The October summation reduced the April estimate of $256,000,000. Business indices indicate a continuing slackening of industrial activity which probably will be reflected in income-tax payments.

It is not possible today and may not be possible for two months to estimate precisely the extent to which business recession and seasonal weather conditions will increase the Federal deficit. The peak relief load of this fiscal year is expected in February and March.

All these factors confuse the budgetary outlook as the fiscal year nears the half-way mark. The Treasury reported a deficit of $472,870,000 on Oct. 18 as Mr. Roosevelt revised his budget estimates. The Nov. 18 budget figure increased to $726,302,000. But the Treasury position today is far superior to one year ago when the Government was $1,153,746,000 in the red. The national debt has increased from $36,946,000,000 on Oct. 18 to $37,079,000,000 on Nov. 18.

China Makes Final Plea for Help

BRUSSELS, Nov. 22 (U. P.).—China made a final appeal to the 19-nation Far Eastern Peace Conference today as the United States was reported to have turned down a proposal to join with Great powers not to leave Brussels without giving the material aid.

The Chinese delegates argued that if the Conference adjourns without some concrete action, the situation would be worse for China than before. They contended that in such event Japan would be encouraged by the "helplessness" of the United States, Britain, France and the other powers, while China's morale would be weakened by the failure of the powers to unite against an aggressor.

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, the chief delegate, originally demanded that the Conference give China arms and credits and at the same time, apply economic sanctions against Japan.

Now, it appeared to Conference delegates, the Chinese would be satisfied in the conference powers merely agreed to supply war materiel. The Chinese emphasized that China would fight to the end in any case, but claimed that with war materials China would be able to prolong the struggle and force Japan into a stalemate because of Tokyo's supposedly weak economic position.

With the conference ready to adjourn after having limited itself to a denunciation of Japan, the Chinese delegation urged the United States and the European

Fr. Coughlin Asks for End To Agitation

DETROIT, Nov. 22 (U. P.).—The Rev. Fr. Charles E. Coughlin today replied to the rebuke he received Saturday from Pope Pius XI by urging his friends and followers to cease their efforts to secure the resumption of his radio broadcasts.

The rebuke came as an approval of the conduct of the Most Rev. Edward Mooney, archbishop of Rochester, in his controversy with the priest. The statement asserted that the archbishop had acted correctly in criticizing Father Coughlin's radio condemnation of President Roosevelt's appointment of Supreme Court Justice Hugo L. Black.

The rebuke was made public Saturday in a statement issued from Washington by His Excellency the Most Rev. Amleto Coggiani, Apostolic delegate.

The papal statement had revealed that "any priest, in loyalty to the church, has the duty of using his influence to keep a grievance from being made the occasion of public agitation."

Fr. Coughlin, who was struck by an auto in the 1600 block of Union St. on Nov. 14, died Saturday.

Funeral services were to be held in Voigt Mortuary and Sacred Heart Church today and burial was to be in St. Joseph Cemetery.

ROYALIST SEEKS FRENCH THRONE

Guise Manifesto Is Linked With Discovery of Arms In Paris.

PARIS, Nov. 22 (U. P.).—Rumors of the alleged plot to overthrow the French Government were seen today in the proclamation issued by the Duke of Guise, through Royalist circles here, announcing that he had decided to reconquer the "throne" of his fathers.

The manifesto was scheduled originally to be issued at Geneva, where it was reported that Jean, Count of Paris and son of the Duke, planned a meeting with Royalist supporters from the border departments of France.

Apparently the meeting was cancelled after reports that Swiss authorities had asked the Duke to leave the country. Reports that he actually had been expelled were denied, however, when the Duke returned to Geneva after visiting relatives at Lausanne.

Members of the French pretender were linked with the "cagouliers" or hooded men. Raids by police in Paris and other parts of France during the last few days have uncovered large stores of arms and ammunition and secret radio stations.

The Duke's manifesto promised a constitutional parliamentary monarchy with regional as well as a national parliament. "Feudal powers and money have never crushed the Frenchmen for more than a day," the manifesto said, appealing to the Catholics while protecting the church will not be clerical.

'WHITE LIE' BY GIRL BLAMED IN CADET SUICIDE

Police Say Youth Was Told He Would Become Father.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22 (U. P.).—A "white lie" 15-year-old Loretta Harynek told Warren Sinclair Stanley, 17, her sweetheart of four years, was blamed by investigators today for the youth's suicide.

"I told him I was going to have a baby," the girl said. "It wasn't true at all. I just wanted to make him happy."

Stanley, student at the exclusive Missouri Military Academy, Mexico, Mo., and son of a wealthy Chicago manufacturer, shot and killed himself early Sunday after the stolon car he drove was wrecked in suburban Berwyn during a police chase.

Loretta, an alluring brunette, is a first-year high school student. Clad in a fur coat and wearing a half-vell, she sobbed as she told state policemen she had loved the boy since grammar school days.

"We loved each other," she said. "We were anxious to get married. He wanted to quit school and go to work."

Leaves Notes

"He always said he wanted a baby so I just told him that."

Lieut. Maurice Schwartz, state policeman, and Sgt. Walter Healy of the Blue Island police, said the youth probably was shaken by the girl's story.

"He apparently was worried about the predicament in which he believed he was involved," Schwartz said. Notes the youth left supported this belief.

Saturday Stanley attended a football game at Mexico. Later he slipped away without leave and took possession of an automobile belonging to Dr. R. S. Williams and drove it to Berwyn.

Leaves Letter to Girl

He was identified through a strangely worded note and a letter, addressed to the girl, found in his pocket. The letter read:

"Dearest, darling, sweetest girl in the world:

"I love you. I love you. I love you. I cannot stand the strain of being away from you. I am sending you what money I have. I hope you have a good time with it. Do what you want with it. I am going to shoot myself tonight."

"Please forgive me. I think I have also wanted to. I really love you, darling. Sweetheart, I love you. You can use this letter as evidence that I am the father of your child if you get one. I love you with all my life."

The note, addressed to "whom it may concern," said:

"I hereby certify that I am the father of Loretta Harynek's 3822 N. Kedvale Ave., Chicago, Ill., child. I suppose it is born between the months of June and July, 1937." (Police said he apparently meant to write 1938.)

Sir William discussed in detail the occasion at Aberdeen, Scotland, in the summer of 1936, when the former King allegedly gave up his public engagements to meet the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson.

"The suggestion that he threw over the authorities in Aberdeen for any reason or failed to keep his engagements is demonstrably false," he declared.

He finally rejected the report that Edward decided to abdicate early in the crisis but delayed his decision in order to demand money from the Government and Royal Family.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 22.—It's bad enough to lose your money through crooked associates, but I think even greater than the loss of your money is the shattering of your confidence in human nature.

One day Aunt Puney came home from shopping and found Uncle Chigger over in the corner with his face in his hands. He said, "I'll never trust anybody again! Not long ago I signed some contracts for mining stocks and some contracts for oil stocks and then I endorsed a note for a friend and now they've all turned crooked and I'm completely wiped out!" Aunt Puney turned pale and said, "Well, I don't care about the money, but they tell me when poverty comes through the door, love flies out the window and I want you to promise me that you'll always love me."

Uncle Chigger thought a while and says, "Well, I'll give you my word—but I won't sign anything!" (Copyright, 1937)

Sir William said "Coronation Commentary" suggested that the real cause for King Edward's abdication was that his advisers wanted to "get rid of him for other reasons."

Marriage Not Excuse

"If it had been necessary to proceed with this case," he declared, "I would have been in a position to call persons in responsible posts to show that the proposed marriage was not used as an excuse to get rid of the monarch."

"It also was alleged that he had recourse to other sources of courage. I suppose this means having recourse to drink."

"It is utterly untrue to say that then or anytime in the reign—before, during or after these events—was his courage affected by drink or other sources."

Sir William declared that the former King was accused further on grounds of "neo-Kaiserism . . . muddling, fuddling and meddling."

"I also in connection with the Egyptian Treaty Day and with the Ataturk Day in Athens."

Those charges, he added, "were mere, idle gossip and devoid of any truth whatsoever."
