

Butler Graduates Told to Keep Alert to Protect Democracy; I. U. Gives Degree to Fortune

Ex-Secretary of Interior Given LL. D. at DePauw Rite.

"It is the obligation of our citizenship to protect democracy," Dr. Frank L. McVey, University of Kentucky president, told 400 Butler University graduates at commencement exercises today.

It was the school's 83d commencement and the 10th that the seniors and their families, the sons and daughters of Butler, sat in the Fieldhouse while Dr. McVey pleaded for the preservation of democracy through an alert public opinion.

They had heard the Rev. C. A. McPheeters, North M. E. church pastor, urge them to "work for democracy" as baccalaureate services yesterday.

Today Dr. McVey told them that "National living in the larger sense of democracy is possible when the people realize their heritage, their opportunity and their obligations. If this is done, as dictation is on the horizon, an autocratic state sets up its control, for then the people rule."

Democracy Requires Vigilance

Defending the democratic system, Dr. McVey struck at persons who have forgotten our heritage" and prophesy the doom of representative government. He listed among the benefits of democracy high standards of living, public works, liberty, and a public school system giving all children an opportunity to share in government.

But, he warned, "democracy requires vigilance." "The great system of education established in America points to a merit system of government. This has not ignored by those in politics who make education a mere by-product when it should be a contributor to the business of government."

The slackness of democratic government is due in part to failure to see the need of careful business processes and more particularly in governmental procedure. A great revival of spirit in our own hearts and minds with an attendant interest in government would do marvels for the nation. Politicians prefer to do the right thing, but if the greatest pressure comes from deterrent sources and no support from others, government is forced off the line and the people suffer."

Summer Enrollment Starts

Meanwhile, the two-day registration for the Butler summer session began today at Arthur Jordan Memorial Hall. Classes are to start Wednesday, and will meet six days a week until Aug. 5.

Instruction is to be given by 58 faculty members. Enrollment of about 800 is expected.

About 250 have enrolled for Aransas Technical High School summer courses. Instruction began today and will end July 29.

Awards Scholarships in Marion County

Seven county scholarships, equal to contingent fees for one year, have been awarded Marion County students by the Marion County Board of Education.

The vote for Charley Lutz, the nominee, was decreased in the recount by 408 votes to 3937 against Canvassing Board figures of 4421.

There were only minor changes in the recount of the vote in the Marion's race between Reginald Sullivan, the nominee, and Sheriff Otto Ray.

Recount Commissioners today counted the vote in four precincts of the Seventh Ward.

Call Off Conference

The new tabulation gave Mr. Sullivan those four precincts a total of 312, which is the same as the Elections Board totals. The recount, however, decreased Mr. Lutz's vote to 388 from the four precincts from 342 to 328.

The Commissioners had intended to confer with Special Circuit Court Judge John G. Rauch, regarding a policy in handling affidavits made by voters who asked assistance at the election.

Elbert R. Clifton, Board chairman, said the conference was called off and that the Board action on these affidavits would depend upon whether or not there was a specific request for action.

Reach Junction Point

"You have reached a junction point from which there go numerous roads," Dr. Elliott asserted. "Some are old, some new, into the region of the future."

Others to receive the LL. D. degree this evening are Dr. Givens, Dr. Frank C. Mann, director of experimental surgery and pathology division, Mayo Clinic, and Frank L. Jones, New York Equitable Life Assurance Society vice president.

Once more the entire John Herron Art Museum family is all at home.

In the last two years about 50 pictures have been on loan to various museums and special exhibitions throughout the country. Now they are home and will be shown during the summer months here.

Herron, like all museums with valuable pictures, has a special collection loans them sparingly and only to the very best exhibitions. At least one picture—that of James Whitcomb Riley by John Singer Sargent—the Museum refuses to lend at all.
