CITY HOUNDS OUTLIVE RURAL ONES, CLAIM

NEW YORK, July 7 (U.P.).—City dogs are healthier and live longer than country dogs besides enjoying more comforts, the American Veterinary Medical Association was informed today.

Dr. C. P. Zapp, director of a dog and cat hospital and member of a committee that studied vital dog statistics, reported that the average life of the country dog was nine years; that of the city dog 11 to 12 years.

The reason, he said, was that country dogs suffered from too much exposure to the sun, changes of weather, skin irritations acquired by contacts with vegetation, and maladjustments of diet.

GREENE COUNTY CROPS REMAIN UNDER WATER

July Rains Cause $350,000 Damage, Survey Shows; River Still Rising.

BLOOMFIELD, July 6 (U.P.).—Between 13,000 and 14,000 acres of crops are still under water in Greene County as a result of the record July rains over the weekend which caused damages estimated at more than $350,000, it was announced today.

The damage and amount of acreage still inundated was estimated following a survey made by Arthur Haseman, county agent, and O. H. Brown, United States weather observer. Brown reported that White River in the southern part of the county was still rising at the rate of three-quarters of an inch an hour.

Crops covered by water from overflowing rivers and streams included 200 acres of alfalfa, 2000 acres of corn, 1000 oats, 2000 soy beans, and 2000 acres of wheat. Haseman and Brown explained that it was the heaviest rainfall ever recorded in the county during July.

Water Is Bad And Costly, 78 Complain

A complaint was on file today with the Indiana Public Service Commission by 78 Loogootee residents who charged that the town's water company assessed "unreasonably high" rates for water that had "a very unpleasant taste and odor." Declaring they thought the company should be required to install water softening and purifying equipment at once, the petitioners also asked the commission for a rate investigation.

They said the water had a high iron and lime content and could not be used for drinking.
