Czechs Expect Briton To Aid in Compromise

PRAHA, July 27 (U. P.)—Sudetens hailed as a victory today the selection of Viscount Runciman of Great Britain to be an active adviser in negotiations next week on the government minorities statute.

They asserted that Viscount Runciman's appointment was an admission that the government had made insufficient concessions to the minorities and that his participation would force the cabinet to go far beyond any concessions it had envisaged.

There were signs, too, that some members of government circles thought that Viscount Runciman's visit here would aid Premier Milan Hodza in forcing leaders of the government-coalition parties to accept compromises in the interest of a lasting agreement with the German and other minorities.

There had been a feeling that the Government might have something to lose, and that its enthusiasm over Viscount Runciman's visit might be more apparent than real. But regardless of the view expressed in other capitals that Viscount Runciman might urge over-enthusiastic concessions to the Germans, Government circles in Prague today to be convinced that Great Britain would defend Czechoslovakia against invasion if it came and that Britain's increased interest in the situation was an increased guarantee of Czechoslovakia's safety.

Sudetens Germans watched closely today for news of a new factor for good or ill in the minorities situation—the court martial of Police-Master Franz Koranda on May 21, it is charged, shot and killed two Sudeten German farmers at the frontier. Officer Koranda was scheduled to go on trial at Pilsen today.

Mexican Court Denies Expropriation Injunction

MEXICO CITY, July 27 (U. P.)—Supporters of President Lázaro Cárdenas' law expropriating the oil industry believed today that foreign oil companies have exhausted all Mexican legal procedure on the question of its constitutionality.

The Mexican Supreme Court last night unanimously upheld the decision of the second district court denying an injunction against expropriation.

The companies still have several appeals pending on highly technical legal points, but last night's decision was the first time that the Supreme Court had ruled clearly on the legality of the law which President Cárdenas utilized for the seizure of the National Railways, the Agua Caliente Hotel and the oil properties.

Rebel Plane Sinks British Steamer

VALENCIA, July 27 (U. P.)—The British steamship Dellwyn was bombed and sunk by a Spanish Rebel plane after surviving four previous bombing attacks in four days, a dispatch from Gaudia said today.

The plane bombed Gaudia at midnight, the dispatch said, and sank the Dellwyn.
 In a raid Sunday, a Rebel plane sank the Spanish steamship Vicente near the Dellwyn's berth. A small Spanish steamship was sunk and six dockside freight cars destroyed in a raid early Monday.

Four bombs dropped in the Dellwyn's vicinity in the fifth and final attack, and the ship sank slowly in 16 feet of water. None of the crew was aboard and there were no casualties, port authorities said.

HENDAYE, July 27 (U. P.)—Spanish Loyalists today fired into the streets of the important insurgent base of Gaudia, nearly 30 miles north of the Ebro River, from which they launched their offensive in eastern Spain.

Japan Makes Official Border Fracas Report

TOKYO, July 27 (U. P.)—Details of a fight between Russian and Japanese-Manchukuo forces on the Siberia-Manchukuo frontier were received by the foreign office today. It was announced coincidentally that the Manchukuo Government had protested to Russia against the incident, holding that the Russians crossed the frontier.

The foreign office asserted that 100 Russians occupied an island in the Ussuri River on the frontier. Later, it was asserted, the Russians were reinforced by 60 soldiers. Then, the foreign office spokesman said, in relating the story, the Russians invaded the Manchukuo side of the river and burned the villages of Sunhsington and Yalintze.

Five hundred Manchukuo troops made a three-sided attack on the Russians next day and, in a five-hour fight, expelled them. As in newspaper dispatches which previously reported the clash, there was no mention of casualties in the foreign office version.

SHANGHAI, July 27 (U. P.)—Japanese troops started a two-point drive toward Hankow from Kiukiang today and planned it so that not even a new flood along the Yangtze River would hold them back.

U. A. W. Board Trying Officers

Members of the trial board that is hearing the charges brought against officers of the United Automobile Workers of America are (left to right): Morris Field, Lester Washburn, Desmond Garst, President Homer Martin (standing), and Larry Davidow, union attorney.

MARTIN LISTS 'SPECIFIC ACTS' Charges 4 Vice Presidents To Unseat Him.

DETROIT, July 27 (U. P.)—Four suspended vice presidents of the United Automobile Workers Union on trial before the union's executive board were accused by the prosecution today of making "solemn promises" to overthrow the administration of President Homer Martin.

In his opening statement before the U. A. W. executive board, Larry Davidow, union attorney, listed "specific acts" which he charged the men on trial conspired to disrupt the organization.

The four officers—Richard Frankenstein, Ed Hall, Wyndham Kortmeyer and Walter Wells—sat quietly but glared angrily at Mr. Davidow.

'Poison Pen' Letters Cited

The principal charges were:
 1. That a series of "poison pen" letters were sent out by the accused as early as March 1938.
 2. That these letters were written at the direction of Mortimer and his associates.
 3. That a postoffice box was obtained in the Detroit postoffice upon application by Robert Travis, who gave Mortimer as a reference.

"In 1937 at Flint, before the U. A. W. convention," Mortimer was charged, "the accused conspired to overthrow the administration of President Martin, who was endeavoring to get Communists in control of the Flint union through means of a unity group dominated by Communists."

"In February of 1938 while the Flint union was celebrating the anniversary of the conclusion of the General Motors strike, George Adde, Hal and Mortimer joined with Travis in a caucus to select a slate of officers to run in that city."

Addes, former secretary treasurer of the union, was expelled in a separate trial two weeks ago.

ARTHUR V. BROWN, Indiana Trust Co. and Union Trust Co. president: "Mr. Fairbanks was an unusual man. He was a typical journalist of great courage with a discerning mind. One of the chief characteristics which has always impressed me was his universal poise and evenness of temper which permitted him to analyze in an unbiased way the many questions which came to a newspaperman."

His independent and fearless attitude was well known and this trait gave to the Indianapolis News a large part of its standing in the community. The fact that under his leadership the Indianapolis News advanced from a small afternoon paper to one of the leading daily papers of the country is a true measure of his success."

IRVING W. LEMAU, president of the Security Trust Co.: "I am very deeply shocked to learn of the passing of Mr. Fairbanks. He was a gentleman of learning and a splendid businessman, loyal to his friends. He will be greatly missed by the citizens of Indiana."

FDR Checks Coast Split; Earle Bills Pass House

Pacific Democrats in Furor, But All Factions Favor President.
Legislature in Pennsylvania Speeds to Block Probe By Grand Jury.

(Editorial, Page 10)

By THOMAS L. STOKES
 Times Special Writer

SEATTLE, Wash., July 27.—The Democratic Party is in constant turmoil along the Pacific Coast, trying to save itself from itself. By which is meant that old-line conservative Democrats are forever trying to save the party from the Progressives and left-wingers and vice-versa.

The battle is raging furiously this year from the Mexican to the Canadian border.

But all types of Democrats sing hallelujahs to Franklin D. Roosevelt. Somehow, he holds the divergent elements together and covers successfully a multitude of isms and schisms.

The best political judgment out here is that the Pacific Coast will remain predominantly Democratic this year. As for the future, it seems that this coast country will be New Dealish and progressive for a long time because of President Roosevelt's close attention to what people out here want—waterpower, irrigation, reclamation, social security, unemployment insurance, relief and PWA. Republicans have to go along. They lack an issue.

Republicans will make no gains in Congress in Washington, Oregon and California, according to informed observers. They now have only five of the 29 House members from the Pacific Coast.

Democrats are due to win the three Senate seats at stake. Senator McCord is expected to return from California, sanctified as he was by the President; Senator Bone from Washington, and a Democrat, Willis Mahoney, to be victorious in Oregon. He is running for the seat from which Senator Steiwer, 1936 Republican "renegade," resigned a few months ago.

Divided by Labor Issue

Mr. Mahoney, one-time staunch Townsendite, came within 4000 votes of defeating Senator Republican Leader McNary two years ago. One issue which divides Pacific Coast voters generally is labor.

Harry Bridges, the C. I. O. general-in-command, is the bete noire of business, industrial and financial interests, which include many Democrats. He is a lieutenant of John L. Lewis, and John L. Lewis is identified with the New Deal, so the chain of resentment leads back to the White House. They claim that Mr. Lewis and President Roosevelt have let Mr. Bridges get out of hand.

The Administration yielded a bit a few months ago when it instituted a deportation case against Mr. Bridges, who is a labor leader. The Oregon primary in which Governor Charles Martin, who was fought bitterly by the C. I. O. with help from Secretary Ickes, was defeated for renomination by Henry L. Hess, a small town lawyer supported by the C. I. O. Some Democrats talk of voting for the Republican candidate in November.

Washington Democrats also are bitterly divided. Governor Clarence Martin, like the Oregon Martin, is a left-wing organization with some heads the conservative faction.

ANOTHER STUDY OF AIR COOLING SITUATION SET

Move Prompted by Reports Of Future Trouble With City Water Supply.

A new investigation into the air-conditioning situation in downtown Indianapolis will be launched next month by the Indianapolis Air-Conditioning Council, according to President William Friele.

The Council, composed of about 20 air-conditioning contractors and engineers, is not convinced that local air-cooling systems face trouble with their water supply, Mr. Friele said, but "we're going to investigate to find out."

Details of the proposed probe will be outlined at the next Council meeting about Monday, he said.

The action will be the latest development in a series of moves that began July 8, when several public and private groups and individuals expressed concern over the situation.

They reported that about 200 air-cooling systems in downtown Indianapolis, most of which use well water to carry off the heat, faced the possibility of having to revise their systems to cope with higher water temperatures.

The geology division of the State Conservation Department reported a state-wide shrinkage in ground water levels, and other sources reported a 10-degree jump in well water temperatures.

City authorities reported themselves concerned over the load that waste water from cooling systems placed on city sewers, with over 300,000 gallons of water dumped into city sewers hourly from cooling systems alone.

Recirculation Favored

In addition, a reduction in well water supplies, indicated by higher temperatures, probably would mean ultimate revision of cooling systems to operate with less and warmer water, authorities said.

On July 11, Henry B. Steeg, City engineer, recommended recirculation of cooling water to:

1. Conserve the supply.
2. Remove the load from sewers.

He predicted this would be done in the next two or three years.

Recirculation method requires only 5 per cent the amount of water being used now, Mr. Steeg said, and will restore the ground water supply which geologists say is being depleted.

Mr. Steeg said a city ordinance could be enacted to require recirculation, but he felt it wouldn't be necessary, as "the situation will correct itself."

He predicted it would be solved without cost to the city.

Water can be recooled by recirculating it either through either evaporative condensers or cooling towers, he pointed out, thus using it over and over.

FLIER'S DEATH LAID TO HEART ATTACK

PENSACOLA, Fla., July 27 (U. P.)—Naval officials today blamed heart disease for the death of Lieut. W. T. Hillberg, U. S. Naval Reserve, who collapsed after landing his seaplane in Pensacola Bay.

Lieut. Hillberg had landed his plane and was preparing to leave it when he was stricken and fell into the water. Physician's examination disclosed he had died of a heart attack.

UNIONS DEMAND JAMES OUSTER

U. S. Marshal Has Opposed Labor, Is Charge in Petition.

the undersigned, presidents of our respective organizations affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, do hereby request the removal of Mr. Charles W. James from the office of U. S. Marshal for the Southern District of Indiana, and

"Be it further resolved, that under no consideration shall his name be presented for appointment to any position either State or National, whereby he will be in a position to interfere with the progress of the organized labor movement."

Mr. James' four-year appointment as Marshal will expire Aug. 24, 1939.

Mr. Morgan, former Republican State Committee chairman, could not be reached for comment.

District Attorney Val Nolan and Robert Cowdill, regional NLRB director, both declined to comment.

The report of James C. Batton, trial examiner who conducted the NLRB hearing in the packing plant dispute, has been sent to Washington and is awaiting action there.

In his report he recommended that the company bargain with the Teamsters and the Pressmen's unions, and that all strikers who had been employed as of July, 1937, be returned to their jobs.

Copies of the resolutions were accompanied by letters signed by Carl H. Mullen, and Adolph J. Fritz, secretary-treasurer of the Indiana State Federation of Labor. The letters commented:

"The officers of the Indiana State Federation of Labor feel that this resolution constitutes a serious charge against a public official and are confident that this gentleman was involved in a way that no public servant should ever be."

"During the turmoil which has been taking place at Austin for the past year and a half, there is every indication that Mr. James did use his official position to protect the interests of an employer who was very much 'anti-labor, anti-New Deal, anti-NRA' and anti everything else which stands for progress and human betterment."

"We sincerely hope that you will give serious consideration to the enclosed resolution and that you will use your influence to see that Mr. James is not reappointed to this important position."
