

Legion Presents Flags to Schoolrooms

BUTLER REVISES NEWS COURSES

Board of Hoosier Journalists Will Aid in Shakeup of Curriculum.

Twelve Indiana newspapermen will form an advisory council to aid in improving the Butler University journalism department, Prof. Charles Kinter, department head, announced today.

Members of the advisory council are: Hilton U. Brown, treasurer of the Indianapolis News Corp., chairman; Ralph Burkholder, associate editor of The Indianapolis Times; Stephen C. Noland, editor of the Indianapolis News; Eugene Jepson Cadou, bureau manager of the International News Service, and Joseph S. Hubbard, executive secretary of the Hoosier State Press Association. James A. Stuart, managing editor of the Indianapolis Star and one-time national president of Sigma Delta Chi, journalism fraternity; Fred W. Lahr, president of the Indianapolis Advertising Club; Edward J. Hancock, publisher of the Greensburg Daily News; Paul Smith, United Press bureau manager in Indianapolis; Bennett Wolfe, chief of the Indianapolis Associated Press bureau; John F. Mitchell Jr., business manager of the Hancock County Democrat; and C. E. Van Valer, publisher of the Gas City Journal.

Prof. Kinter has announced that the newly formed advisory council will soon pass on a revised curriculum of the Butler journalism department. A well balanced style chart soon will be submitted. The advisory council will be able to advise members of the department so that courses in business, editorial work, community journalism, public relations, advertising, and circulation will be more closely correlated with the changing needs of newspapers.
